WOLL ASSAILS ROOSEVELT ON LOWER TARIFF

Labor Leader Calls on Workers to Defend Protection.

MENACE OF FOREIGN WAGE SCALES BARED

G. O. P. Challenges Claims of Democrat That U. S. Blocks World Trade.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Rejecting Gov. Roosevelt's appeal for lower industrial tariffs, as presented in his Topeka address last week, Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, urged organized workers throughout the country last night to rally to the defense of protection in the national elections this year.

"Unless we stand guard, the barriers which have been erected to protect our standards and institutions will be nibbled away or torn down by our enemies and by our well-meaning but ill-advised friends," Mr. Woll said in a radio address broadcast over a Nation-wide chain under the auspices of the American Wage Earners' Protective Conference.

This conference, organized some five years ago, is composed of 21 international labor organizations affiliated with the A. F. of L. The affiliated membership exceeds 1,000,000 organized workers in 34 branches of American industry, which are in direct competition with foreign production. Adequate protection, plus the prevailing policy of restrictive immigration, are the basis of American wage standards and should not be sacrificed in political experimentation, Mr. Woll said.

Wage Scales Compared.

Average wages in American manufacturing industry last year were 80 cents an hour, against 12 cents in France, 9 cents in Italy and 7 cents in Japan, he revealed. In many cases the foreign advantage was even greater than these figures indicated, because of depreciated currencies. Abandonment of the present tariff system, Mr. Woll declared, would place American wage earners in competition with such wage scales abroad.

"Government statistics clearly indicate that more than 93 per cent of the products of American labor and agriculture are consumed in America. This is due to the high standard of life and work which prevails in our land. Our problem is rather that of extending this home consuming power.

"Unrestrained competition of foreign with domestic goods in our home

Coutremarsh to Seek Seat as Independent

New Munro Treaty Rejected by Haiti

Armour to Arrange Pact on American Rule Over Island's Finance.

Port au Prince, Haiti, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—Norman Armour, new American Minister to Haiti, faces the task of negotiating a new treaty with the Haitian government to supplant the document signed in 1915 providing for American supervision of the island's financial affairs, it became known today.

Armour will have to arrange a treaty because the Haitian legislature has rejected the one negotiated on September 3 by his predecessor, Dana G. Munro.

President Stenio Vincent, in an official proclamation, has thrust all responsibility for rejection of the Munro treaty squarely on the legislature. He points out that the Munro document provided for the end of American occupation in 1934 instead of 1936, as under the old pact.

Army Flier Bails Out Over Canal Zone Wilds

Balboa, Canal Zone, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—Lieut. Hamilton, U. S. A., descended safely with his parachute today when the motor of his plane failed while he was flying over the jungle near Penonome.

Hamilton, whose home is in Athens, Ga., was in one of five planes participating in a training flight. He landed in the top of a tree after "bailing out," and was discovered wandering about in the jungle by a rescue party from France Aviation Field.

STATE INVESTIGATES BALLOTING IN MAINE

Depositions Sought in Ten Precincts in Which Vote Proved to Be Close.

Houlton, Me., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—An investigator for the attorney general's department came to Aroostook County today seeking depositions from the election officials in charge of ten voting precincts in last Monday's State election, in which a Democratic governor and two Democratic members of Congress were elected by narrow margins.

The investigator, United States Commissioner Richard K. Gould, of Portland, declined to explain the object of his inquiry.

Attorney General Clement F. Robinson said in Portland that Gould, who is associated with him in his Portland law office, was in the northern part of the State as his representative, but he would not disclose the nature of his mission.

Aroostook County is part of the Third District, in which, on the face of unofficial returns, John G. Utterback, Democratic congressional candidate, defeated former Gov. Ralph O. Brewster, Republican, 34,369 to 33,195. The county gave Utterback a majority of 354. Burleigh Martin, defeated Republican gubernatorial candidate, carried Aroostook by a margin of 1,378 over Louis J. Brann, Democrtic governor-elect.

The ten precincts covered by Gould's investigation, all comparatively small communities, gave generous majorities to both Brann and Utterback.

The towns were Cyr, Grand Isle, Madawaska, Frenchville, St. Agatha, Fort Kent, Van Buren, St. Francis, Connor and Eagle Lake.

Their combined votes gave Brann 3,333, Martin 652, Utterback 3,491, Brewster 652.

In the gubernatorial election of 1930, seven of the towns returned Republican majorities.

At that time the ten precincts gave 1,299 votes to the Republican candidate and 973 to the Democratic.

Adm. Pringle Receives Transfusion of Blood

San Diego, Calif., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Vice Admiral Joel R. P. Pringle, 59, commander of the battleships division of the U. S. fleet, who was brought to the Naval Hospital here after becoming ill at Port Angeles, Wash., underwent a blood transfusion today.

Capt. L. W. Johnson, of the Naval Corps, said Admiral Pringle was suffering from anaemia, and added his condition was serious, but not critical. Admiral Pringle was stricken Thursday and brought here by his flagship, the U. S. S. West Virginia, which made the 1,500 mile trip under forced draft, arriving yesterday.

GOV. ROOSEVELT PLEDGES WORLD MONEY PARLEY

Tells Throngs at Butte U. S. Should Lead in Such Matters.

SPECIAL IS DELAYED AS TRAIN IS WRECKED

Governor's Carrier Switched Around Derailed Cars on Temporary Track.

Aboard Roosevelt Special, Out of Missoula, Mont., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—After several hours delay due to a train wreck, Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight moved on to carry his campaign for the Presidency into Washington and Oregon, leaving behind in Montana a promise to call an international monetary conference "without delay or evasion."

For three hours his train was held at Bonner, Mont., while a wrecking crew a few miles ahead worked hurriedly to clear away the damage done by a broken axle on the engine of the eastbound North Coast Limited, a crack Northern Pacific passenger train.

The engine and two cars were derailed, but except for throwing the tracks out of line, little damage was done. A temporary track was set up to move Gov. Roosevelt's special around the wreckage and it sped on to Missoula, a few miles away.

Works on Speech in Delay.

While preparations were being made to move his train forward, the presidential nominee of the Democrats sat in his private car working on the speech on public utilities he will deliver in Portland, Oreg. On either side of the train arose the towering mountains that form the walls of Hell Gate Canyon and to the southward stretched the timbered slopes of the Lolo National Forest.

Informed that several thousand persons were waiting at Missoula for the arrival of the train, James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana; C. C. Dill, of Washington, and Key Pittman, of Nevada, left the special train with James Roosevelt, son of the nominee, to motor to Missoula. When they arrived, however, most of the crowd, informed of the delay, had dispersed, and the speeches that they had formulated during their automobile trip went unsaid.

Pledges World Parley.

Only a little earlier, Mr. Roosevelt had told a crowd that jammed the streets in front of the Butte (Mont.)

Club in New York Raided; 21 Seized

Agents in Evening Clothes Eat Meal and Then Make Arrests.

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Seven prohibition agents in evening clothes ate a leisurely meal at the Club New Yorker tonight, then ordered out 150 men and women patrons and arrested 21 employes on charges of violating the prohibition laws.

The club was lavishly outfitted with furnishings and equipment which the agents estimated to have cost more than $40,000. It occupied a four-story building in East Fifty-first street.

On the first floor was a reception room, on the second a dining room and three bars, one reserved for women, and on the other two floors were private dining rooms. Among those arrested was a headwaiter, who described himself as Mero Morro, of 70 Prospect Terrace, East Rutherford, N. J.

Strawn Tax Cut Plea Stirs Clash at Parley

Education and Welfare Chiefs Make Attack on Curtailment.

Clashes of opinion between Silas H. Strawn, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and educational and public welfare officials flared last night at the National Government Conference at the Willard Hotel.

Speaking before the National Municipal League, one of the participating organizations in the conference, Mr. Strawn said: "Taxes must be reduced because we have reached the end of our financial rope."

When he had completed his address three speakers, representing public education, public health and public welfare, respectively, took issue with him.

William G. Carr, director of the research division of the National Education Association, declared: "The hysteria of tax reduction has undermined our most treasured ideals and institutions."

Dr. Carl E. McCombs, of the Institute of Public Administration of New York City, asserted that disastrous results would follow the curtailment of health service during depression.

Frank Bane, director of the American Public Welfare Association, of Chicago, declared: "More money is going to be spent for public welfare during the next few years because our common conscience is going to demand it."

Mr. Strawn expressed the view that the people are rapidly coming to the realization that the cost of governmental functions has reached a stage where it is impossible to raise sufficient revenue to meet it.

"I believed," he said, "we are awakening to a realization of the fact that if we are to get out of the trough of the present depression, we must see that there is immediately exercised in the management of our governmental corporations the same intelligent economies that are now evidenced in the administration of our private affairs."

Mr. Carr described the extent to

BOY KILLED; POLICE BESIEGED BY CROWD

3,000 Men and Women in Jersey Strike Menace 53 Officers.

South River, N. J., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—State troopers dispersed a crowd of approximately 3,000 persons who held 40 deputies and 13 policemen captives in a town hall for six hours as a climax to labor disorders tonight in which a 9-year-old boy was wounded fatally.

A detachment of 20 troopers met little opposition from the gathering, composed of workers in the needle industry and sympathizers, aroused by the fatal shooting and the wounding of three other persons during a clash between workers and deputies late in the afternoon.

After the arrival of the troopers it was learned five deputies had been wounded by stones and one had been shot during the afternoon riot. Two were held for the slaying of the boy, Walter Rojek, in $10,000 bail for the grand jury after a hearing before Recorder James Black. They also were charged with carrying concealed weapons and were taken to Middlesex County Jail in default of bail.

Those held were Peter Coller, 36 and F. M. Majewski, 35, both of Newark. Coller was one of those who was cut by flying stones when the deputies, hired from a Newark detective agency, met a charge of workers at the R. & P. Wash Suit Factory.

The crowd had chased the officers

Lindbergh Suspect Denies Complicity

Specimens of Handwriting of Marlowe Asked by Jersey Police.

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Specimens of the handwriting of L. M. Marlowe, held here on a charge of removing mortgaged property, were requested of local authorities today by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of New Jersey police, for comparison with notes in the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

Marlowe refused to submit his handwriting voluntarily and denied any guilty knowledge of the Lindbergh case.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Capt. J. J. Lamb, of the State police, directing investigation of the Lindbergh kidnaping, said today request for samples of handwriting of L. M. Marlowe was a routine proceeding. Marlowe's record, if any, Capt. Lamb said, had not been received and he could offer no further comment on his possible connection with the case.

Robbers Abduct Store Official; Take $3,500

Galveston, Tex., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Robbers early today kidnaped and later released unharmed the office manager of Eiband's department store here. They escaped with about $3,500 in cash.

Officers, notified that the manager, Nells J. Neidermann, had been taken by strangers to the store, arrived just after departure of the robbers. Several months ago a pay roll messenger for the store was held up on the street and robbed of more than $5,000.

KIDNAPERS FREE SON OF NEW YORK BROKER

Child Is Sent Home Shortly After Ransom Demand of $25,000.

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Eight-year-old John A. Russell, son of a broker, was restored unharmed to his parents tonight after two men had kidnaped him on his way home from school and then released him, apparently finding that they could not negotiate for a ransom. One telephoned demand for $25,000 had been received by his parents.

The boy related that he was taken to an apartment and kept there until near midnight when a woman took him to a street car, gave the conductor 5 cents and instructed that he be left off a few blocks from where he lives.

As he alighted from the car three telephone operators, who had read of his disappearance in the newspapers, recognized him and took him home.

Although the boy was unharmed, he was tired and nervous and Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney, who had directed the search for him, refrained from questioning him extensively until tomorrow.

The boy said, however, that he recognized the two men who picked him up as men he had seen while visiting the New York brokerage office of his father, Arthur S. Russell.

They told him his father had sent them to take him to his office in New York, the boy said, and he did not hesitate to enter their machine. When they reached the apartment house, apparently not far from his

Three Alarms Sounded For Columbia U. Fire

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—A stubborn fire in a book store in the basement of Columbia University's school of journalism gave firemen a battle tonight.

Three alarms were sounded and much apparatus was rushed to the scene to prevent any possibility of the flames spreading to other buildings on the Columbia campus.

Miller, President Of R. F. C., Ill Abed

Physician Reports He Will Be Confined for Several Weeks.

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Weakened by overwork and the effects of an attack of penumonia, suffered in Washington nearly two weeks ago, Charles A. Miller, president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation since last July, will be confined in a hospital here "for a number of weeks," his physician, Dr. Edward R. Evans, announced tonight.

Mr. Miller came to his summer home at Barneveld, near here, several days ago, hoping to recuperate, but his condition got worse and necessitated his removal to Faxton Hospital yesterday.

Before his appointment by President Hoover as president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Mr. Miller was manager of the New York regional office of the same organization, with offices in New York City, and president of the Savings Bank of Utica. He resigned the latter office after receiving the presidency of the Finance Corporation.

R. F. C. Is Eager to Make Small Job-Making Loans

Asks Haste in Applications for Funds That Will Create Work; $2,000,000 Granted P. R. R. for Repairs That Will Aid 2,000.

(Associated Press.)

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation wants proponents of small self-liquidating projects to hurry in their applications and thus help create jobs.

Making this known yesterday, it also announced a $2,000,000 "work" loan to the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. creating an estimated 2,000 jobs. It made as well an emergency relief allowance of $283,367 to Virginia.

Through Harvey Couch, a director, the corporation issued the call for small projects. The statement, he said, was "to correct a false impression that seems to exist in the minds of some people to the effect that the corporation is not interested in making small loans for self-liquidating projects."

"It is the policy of the corporation," he said, "to look favorably upon all applications regardless of the amount involved if the projects meet the requirements of the act as to eligibility, self-liquidating character and sufficiency of security, and will create employment."

The corporation has before it a number of very large projects, which would create thousands of jobs. It has advised the Southern California Water District that it will bid on $40,000,000 of bonds of the project.

DAVIS ACCUSED OF BIG LOTTERY GAINS FOR SELF

But His Counsel Paints Him as Unselfish Charity Worker.

MOOSE EDITOR CALLS SENATOR 'MUSSOLINI'

Prosecutor Says Receipts of Alleged Drawings Totaled $3,000,000.

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, was alternately pictured as a shrewd promoter of fraternal lotteries, pocketing liberal profits for himself, and as an unselfish, able organizer of charities today in his trial in Federal Court on a charge of violation of lottery laws.

The trial is on two indictments charging conspiracy and naming eight counts in which transportation of lottery tickets from Pennsylvania to New York are alleged.

Emphasizing to jurors that there is no criminal charge of wrongfully appropriating profits from alleged lotteries in the Loyal Order of Moose against Senator Davis, Louis M. Treadwell, assistant United States attorney, declared the Government nevertheless would prove Davis got thousands of dollars in profit from the project.

$3,000,000 Receipts.

"We will show," he said, "that Senator Davis did derive profits from running the lotteries, because that is the most convincing proof he knew what was going on."

He said that two alleged lotteries, conducted in conjunction with the Moose charity balls of 1930 and 1931, brought in some $3,000,000.

After the first one, he said, three checks totaling $100,000 were drawn to the order of Fred W. Jones, "financial agent" for Davis, and used as payment on a note at the Fidelity Trust Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa., which was the "personal responsibility" of the senator. He said another check for $15,300 was deposited to the personal checking account of Davis.

Not Charged With Theft.

"Obtaining money from the lotteries is not a part of the crime charged," Treadwell declared, "but remember, if he participated in running the lotteries, he is just as guilty if he didn't get a penny out of them as if he did."

The favorable picture of Senator Davis' part in promoting the balls for the Loyal Order of Moose, of which he is director general, was painted by his chief counsel, Charles H. Tuttle, a former United States attorney.

"Senator Davis is not charged with stealing any money," he said, "nor with any mail fraud case." In the last analysis, he is charged with having in some way put through a proj-

GEN. LEJEUNE HURT IN CAMPUS MISHAP

V. M. I. Superintendent's Skull and Arm Are Broken in Fall.

Lexington, Va., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, superintendent of Virginia Military Institute, suffered a fracture of the skull and a broken left arm today when he fell in walking down an embankment on the campus. Dr. C. C. Coleman, Richmond brain specialist, was summoned this afternoon.

Gen. Lejeune, a former commandant of the United States Marine Corps, was accompanying Col. William Couper, business executive of V. M. I., on a trip to the school power plant, when the accident occurred. He lost his balance and was forced to jump a retaining wall at the bottom of a hill, striking his head against a pile of wood.

After an operation tonight, hospital attendants reported Lejeune's condition was "good," although he had not regained consciousness since the injury.

15 Casualties Reported In Nicaragua Brushes

Managua, Nicaragua, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Two National Guard brushes with Sandinista insurgents were reported at headquarters today. The casualties in both encounters numbered fifteen. An engagement at Naranja resulted in the death of four Sandinistas and one guard. One Sandinista and one guard were wounded.

Two Sandinistas were killed and four wounded at Guasaca. The guard lost one dead and one wounded.

Edge Coming Home To Talk for Hoover

Paris Hears He Will Stump Wet Areas on G. O. P. Liquor Plank.

Paris, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—Ambassador Walter Edge announced definitely tonight that he will sail for New York on the S. S. Leviathan October 1 to aid in the campaign for the reelection of President Hoover. Senator David A. Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, will sail with Edge.

The ambassador announced his return to Paris for December, but in American circles it is understood that in return for his stumping support of President Hoover, Mr. Edge is to be rewarded with a post in the second Hoover Cabinet, in the event of reelection. It is understood that the post would be other than Secretary of State.

Before starting across the country, Ambassador Edge will confer with President Hoover on the "wet" plank, which the diplomat framed for the Chicago convention. It is understood that his stumping will be done in the wet areas and that he will wage the Hoover battle on prohibition reform.

U. S. OPPOSES REICH'S PLEA, HERRIOT TOLD

Reed and Edge Confer in Paris With Premier on Arms Equality.

VIEW HELD SIMILAR TO THAT OF BRITAIN

America Feels Germany May Reenter Conference Before February.

Paris, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Authoritative American sources understand that Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, and Ambassador Walter E. Edge told Premier Herriot today the people of the United States are inclined to believe Germany's recent move for equality in armaments was inopportune.

The senator and the ambassador discussed disarmament and the action taken by the German government at a luncheon given by the premier and attended also by J. Theodore Marriner, counselor to the American embassy, and Minister of War Joseph Paul-Boncour and other French government officials.

At the conclusion of the luncheon it was understood the senator and the ambassador told the premier the American view on the German arms question was similiar to the view of Britain.

Progressive Disarmament.

They informed M. Herriot the United States Government stands for progressive disarmament and the sanctity of treaties. It was understood they told him also the American people would prefer that the German problem be worked out within the framework of the disarmament conference. Germany has given formal notice that she will not participate in the conference further unless her arms demands are met.

In addition to disarmament and the German problem, the conferees are understood to have discussed informally the situation created in the Far East by Japan's recognition of the new State of Manchukuo.

The Americans were believed to have emphasized that they anticipated a strong stand by the powers at the League of Nations Council meeting at which this situation will be taken up. They told M. Herriot, it was understood, the United States is ready to support the league's action.

Talked With MacDonald.

Before coming to Paris Senator Reed talked with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in England, where he did helpful spade work in connection with both disarmament and the problem of Manchukuo.

Because the United States has announced it will not recognize territorial changes resulting from treaty violations, Washington is interested, it was said, in having the French representative on the League of Nations Council insist upon the same sanctity for treaties respecting the Far

Boy of 3 Mistakes Mother's Signal and Dies Under Auto

Tries to Reach Parent and Runs Into Car's Path; Driver Is Held.

An eager dash for his mother's arms yesterday cost the life of a 3-year-old boy. He was crushed beneath the wheels of an automobile as he darted into a stream of traffic near Second and East Capitol streets.

It was a gala day for little Douglas Cornwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Cornwell. He had come to Washington with his parents, who planned to move here from their home in Lanham, Md. The entire day had been spent in touring the city to locate a suitable place to live.

400 FARMERS BLOCK ROADS IN MINNESOTA

Picket Movement Spreads to New Area; Strikers Are Armed.

Worthington, Minn., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Picket lines of Midwestern farmers attempting to bring about higher prices for their products reached into new territory today with more than 400 "strikers" guarding highways in this territory.

One farmer, S. W. Calvin, was escorted safely through the lines to the local market by county authorities after a scuffle with the blockaders, but other truckers were turned back.

Proceeding without sanction of the State Farmers Holiday Association, the farmers armed htemselves with clubs, wire cable, spiked machinery belts and steel girders.

Repeating that the purpose of the attempted blockade was to intercept at its source the flow of nonperishable products into the Sioux City, Iowa, area, M. B. Miller, vice chairman of the county holiday unit, said there would be no cessation of effort until "our national officers have notified me" of the Sioux City developments.

Dispatches from there said picketing had been discontinued, but leaders of the county unit announced their intention of maintaining lines until definite confirmation was obtained.

Attention throughout the States covered by the Holiday Association, tonight was focussed on the official order to begin Wednesday on a drive to solidify the movement by intensive organizatoin efforts down through township units.

Iowa farmers had the assurance of United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart that he would attend a meeting of farmers in a cornfield at Moville, Iowa, Wednesday.

Nebraska farmers were urged to begin Wednesday withholding nonperishable produce from market, in a plea by Harry C. Parmenter, president of the Nebraska Farmers Holiday Association.

STRAWN'S TAX CUT PLEA STIRS CLASH which public schools systems have suffered in the Nation-wide movement to cut governmental costs.

Cost of public health work could be cut if each community gave a scientific study to its own peculiar conditions, Dr. McCombs told the conference. He suggested reduction of personnel service costs which represent more than 80 per cent of health expenditures, he said. He advocated reduction of numbers of the health personnel and disapproved of salary reductions.

Mr. Bane declared that the cost of care and treatment of the mentally and physically ill can be curtailed by the inauguration of sound mental hygiene and public health programs.

The league reached the conclusion that increased efficiency and elimination of waste would go a long way toward solving the problems. The league will continue a study of all phases of economy and elimination of services today and tomorrow.

Disposal of Lands Aired.

While these contradictory opinions were being presented, other conference groups were hearing a discussion of the problem of disposal of national public lands.

The problem of what is to be done with 130,000,000 acres of this land was presented by Henry W. Toll, director of the American Legislators Association.

"There is a grave peril," he declared, "in following the recommendation of the Garfield commission and dismembering the public domain by dividing it among the States. But that peril is due largely to the lack of machinery which we are constantly needing for interstate cooperation. We must develop our methods of interstate ententes.

"When such methods are developed it will be largely through the agency of your organizations. When the Federal Government can deal with the public land as a regional unit, and when a group of States can administer jointly the problem of public domain may largely disappear."

Addresses by Others.

Addresses on the same subject were made by Dr. L. C. Gray, of the Department of Agriculture, and Dr. Theodore Palmer of the Biological Survey. Albert Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews and World's Work, presided.

The conference then turned its attention to the problem of wild game conservation. Speakers were: Paul B. Riis, director of the department of parks of Allegheny County, Pa.; Hugh S. Davis, curator of the zoo at Tulsa, Okla.; W. C. Henderson, associate chief of the Bureau of Biological Survey, and Harold C. Bryant, assistant director, National Park Service.

Groups participating in this conference were: the American City Planning Institute, the American Civic Association, the American Institute of Park Executives, the American Legislators Association and the National Council for Protection of Roadway Beauty.

Talk on Planning.

Alfred Bettman, chairman of the city planning commission of Cincinnati, speaking at a session of the Municipal League yesterday morning, declared that planning should be left to an organization of private citizens rather than to the city administration.

"Planning," he said, "requires a special interest, a special public, a special enthusiasm, not apt to be supplied or aroused by those whose main thought is concerned with good current government and administration."

Citizen support of planning was discussed at a session yesterday morning of the American City Planning Institute, the American Civic Association, the National Association of Civic Secretaries and the National Council for Protection of Roadside Beauty.

The National Association of Civic Secretaries elected the following new officers yesterday: Harold S. Buttenheim, editor, The American City, New York City, president (reelected); William P. Lovett, director of the Detroit Citizens League, vice president; Miss H. Marie Dermitt, of Pittsburg, secretary, and Miss Louise Morel, of Louisville, treasurer.

The convention banquet will be held tonight at the Willard. Roadside improvements and billboards will be discussed at sessions throughout the day.

Captain Was Tied On Ship, He Says

Cuban Political Refugee Tells U. S. Officers of Havana Torture.

Key West, Fla., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Capt. Nieto Gomez Elola, master of the sloop Julio which was seized with six Cuban political refugees aboard last Saturday, today testified he had been tied below decks and his boat brought into United States waters after setting out from Havana on a proposed fishing trip. Capt. Elola's testimony was given at a hearing started today by United States immigration authorities.

Miguel A. Cruz, former member of the Cuban marine corps and one of the refugees, testified he had been tortured by Cuban officials in Havana and displayed a broken thumb and finger which he said were the result of being strung up by his wrists with ropes while officials endeavored to obtain information which they believed he possessed.

Immigration authorities here will submit the case to Washington officials after the testimony is completed. The refugees were landed here Sunday after the craft was taken into custody Saturday by the Coast Guard cutter Woodbury.

BOTH SIDES CONSENT TO END CHACO FIGHT

Paraguay Replies to New Note She Will Quit if Guaranteed Security.

(Associated Press.)

Paraguay advised the American neutrals last night she was willing to cease hostilities in the Chaco jungles, but must insist upon proper security before negotiating any agreement.

A Bolivian army statement said yesterday that Bolivia's offer to cease fighting in the Gran Chaco territory, ownership of which is disputed with Paraguay, "was not a sign of weakness."

In offering to end the fighting, which began two months ago, Bolivia demanded that Paraguay must agree beforehand to the truce.

The Bolivian army chief of staff said his forces have held Fort Boqueron against a surrounding Paraguayan army for ten days. He denied Paraguayan claims that they had entered the fort, important Bolivian defense unit in the heart of the Chaco.

The Paraguayan war ministry siad its troops prevented Bolivians from breaking through lines encircling the fort.

The neutrals in Washington cabled the Asuncion government a new note urging cessation of hostilities.

Besides meeting with the four neutral representatives, Chairman White talked privately with Minister J. Varela, of Uruguay, and Dr. Enrique Finot, Bolivia's confidential agent and one of the two Chaco delegates to the interrupted nonaggression pact negotiations. Possibility of shifting peace negotiations to Uruguay has occupied observers recently.

In their note to Paraguay yesterday the neutrals incorporated what were described by Chairman White as "the essential parts" of the Bolivian reply. This reply was described by the chairman as agreeing to a cessation of hostilities. He declined to discuss provisions suggested by Bolivia for naming of a commission to guarantee nonaggression.

Thief's Victim, 66, Is Still Unconscious

Charlie Sandler, 66-year-old locksmith, who was struck over the head by a colored man and robbed of $25 in his store at 606 Sixth street northwest Sunday morning, had not regained consciousness at Emergency Hospital early today and was considered in a critical condition.

The holdup victim, who makes his home at 808 H street northwest, had entered a rear room of his store, when his assailant attacked him with a brick. Police have been unable to get an accurate description of the robber, as Sandler is in a coma.

HANSSON PREDICTED SWEDEN'S PREMIER

Defeat of Conservatives Is Taken to Mean Former Clerk Will Get Post.

Stockholm, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Despite the fact that the Social Democrats fell short of a clear maority in the Riksdag election of Sunday, their leader, Per Albin Hansson, was regarded as an almost certain choice for the premiership.

The government of Premier F. T. Hamrin resigned today when it became apparent that the Conservatives had been beaten in the election of a new lower house, that the Social Democrats had gained fourteen seats, and the agrarians nine.

There still remained a possibility that the agrarians might assume leadership of a government, but this eventuality was considered unlikely by most political commentators.

Hansson began his career as a clerk in a cooperative store, left that to work on a Socialist newspaper, and in 1911 was elected to a seat in the Riksdag.

Early in life he earned a reputation for his radical views, a reputation now diminished. His antimilitary views as reflected in the book, "Comrades in Uniform," were disapproved, and the volume was suppressed by the government in 1909.

In 1920, when Hjalmar Branting, famous Swedish Socialist, formed his first cabinet, Hansson, or Per Albin, as he is generally known in Sweden, was appointed minister of national defense. In the succeeding Socialist cabinets, under Branting and Sandler, he occupied the same office.

Since 1925 Hansson has been the acknowledged leader of the Social Democrats in Sweden. Efforts to force him from that control, through a rift in the party over the question of disarmament, have so far failed. This despite the fact that the years have added a more conservative tinge to Per Albin's political dealings.

Dismissal Is Asked In U. S. Leave Case

Navy Yard Officials Deny Property Right in Federal Job.

Denying there is any property right in a Government position, or accrued leave, officers of the Navy Yard yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to dismiss a request for a mandamus the court had been asked to issue on behalf of Alfred M. Gregory, of Landover, Md., who brought suit when, under the economy act, he was refused permission to take three days of accrued leave.

It had been Gregory's contention that he was being deprived of his property without due process of law, but the Government, through Assistant United States Attorney John J. Wilson, asserted there was no such right in a Government position. Further the Government claimed Gregory had another redress for denying him his leave, and that was to take the leave and then sue the Government if his pay was deducted.

The court took the motion under advisement. Attorneys William E. Leahy and William J. Hughes, jr., filed Gregory's suit two weeks ago.

KIDNAPERS FREE SON OF NEW YORK BROKER

Brooklyn home, they were joined by a woman. They treated him kindly, he said, and gave him sandwiches and candy.

Before reaching the apartment, John said, the automobile stopped while one of the men made a telephone call. Police expressed the opinion that this was the demand for a $25,000 ransom, in $5 and $10 bills, which the father received several hours after John failed to reach home.

The elder Russell said no ransom was paid, and police appeared satisfied that the intensive manhunt they started immediately had convinced the kidnapers that they would be caught if they attempted to negotiate further for one.

Police said Russell could give no clue as to the possible identity of the kidnapers, but they hoped to obtain a more specific description of the men from the boy tomorrow.

3 STATE PRIMARIES TO BE HELD TODAY

New York, Wisconsin and Massachusetts Face Heavy Slates.

(Associated Press.)

The year's long run of State primaries for selection of national, State and local candidates ends today with Democratic and Republican voting in New York, Massachusetts and Wisconsin.

After that, party conventions in a few States and some scattered runoff primaries will complete the country's electoral lists for November.

Heavy voting is predicted by political leaders in the Wisconsin primaries because of the spirited campaign between Gov. Philip La Follette and former Gov. Walter J. Kohler for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, and the vigorous contest between Senator John J. Blaine and John B. Chapple, Ashland editor, for the senatorial nomination of that party. Three Democrats are seeking the nomination for governor, but for the senatorial choice F. Ryan Duffy is not opposed.

17 House Seats at Stake.

Selection for 17 of New York's 45 seats in the next House are at issue, together with many seats in the State Legislature. The senatorial and gubernatorial candidates are to be selected at party conventions early in October.

Eight congressional nominations are being contested in Massachusetts. Gov. Joseph B. Ely is without opposition for renomination by the Democrats. Lieut. Gov. William S. Youngman is seeking the Republican gubernatorial nomination and has three opponents, including Frank A. Goodwin, chairman of the Boston Finance Commission.

There is no senatorial election in the Bay State this year, but the record number of candidates for State and local office was broken with a total of 15,800 entries.

Prohibition figures as an important issue in some of the New York and Massachusetts congressional primaries. The big issue between La Follette and Kohler in Wisconsin concerns taxation, while Chapple has charged Blaine with radicalism.

Two prominent Republican women members of the House, Representative Ruth Baker Pratt, of the Seventeenth (the so-called silk stocking district) in New York City, and Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, of the Fifth Massachusetts, have serious opposition for renomination.

Former Senator James W. Wadsworth is without opposition for the Republican nomination on a repealist platform in the Thirty-ninth New York Congressional District.

Wagner Is Boomed.

New York Democrats meet in convention at Albany October 3 to name senatorial and gubernatorial candidates, and Senator Robert F. Wagner has been mentioned for both offices. Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, however, is being boomed as a successor to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt by the chief executive's friends. Mayor John Boyd Thacher of Albany also has considerable support for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for Aeronautics, and William J. Donovan, former Assistant Attorney General and Republican candidate for governor is 1922, are seeking the G. O. P. gubernatorial nomination.

With the exception of a few scattered run-off primaries, the preelection campaigns will end with the Rhode Island State conventions, where the Democrats meet October 7 and the Republicans four days later.

New Mexico Republicans convene September 22 and the Democrats on the 26th to prepare their slates. In Massachusetts, Republicans meet in convention September 30, and Democrats October 1.

Benjamin to Head Buffalo Agencies

Social Hygiene Society's Secretary Succeeded by Mrs. West.

Paul L. Benjamin, former executive of the District of Columbia committee on unemployment and executive secretary of the Social Hygiene Society, left Washington yesterday for Buffalo, N. Y., where he will become director of the Buffalo Council of Social Agencies.

Mr. Benjamin has been active in social welfare work here for more than two years. He was at one time an instructor at George Washington University.

Mrs. R. Thomas West has been appointed acting secretary of the Social Hygiene Society.

Strange Frogs Moving Along Half-Mile Front

Bradenton, Fla., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—A horde of strange frogs, the like of which has never been seen hereabouts, has taken possession along a half-mile front near here.

The ground is literally covered with the little creatures that are brown in color, like the toad, but they have long hind legs like the bullfrog.

Many people have seen the strange migration, but none knows whence they came or whither they are going, although they are hopping in the general direction of the Gulf of Mexico.

Thus far, they have not caused any damage, and no one has molested them.

ect by measures the district attorney chooses to call lottery tickets.

"In the first place, we deny the plan of the charity ball was a lottery. We deny there was anything illegal about it. We deny Davis participated in it. And in the fourth place, we deny he got a penny out of it."

Both attorneys described a trip off the coast of Connecticut in the Priscilla, on which "lucky stubs" were drawn to determine who would win large sums of cash which Treadwell called "prizes" and Tuttle insisted were only "awards."

"They are trying to make out that trip on New Year's Day down the bay to the 12-mile limit was for the purpose of a secret drawing," said Tuttle. "It was a group of distinguished citizens on board that day, including officials of the Knights of Columbus and the Shrine. I tell you, the trip to the 12-mile limit New Year's Day was not for a secret drawing, but for a very different purpose."

Remark Brings Smiles.

There were smiles at the counsel table and in the jury box at this.

Tuttle went to laud the extent and organization of the Loyal Order of Moose and the fraternal orphange conducted at Mooseheart. He told of Davis' own career, beginning as an immigrant boy from Wales, and of how he worked up from a messenger boy and steel mill puddler to become Secretary of Labor and United States senator.

He answered the charge about the $100,000 note paid from profits of the alleged lottery by stating it was properly a liability of the Moose in connection with the organization.

The trial moved alon gpromptly. A jury of twelve, with two alternates, was chosen before the noon recess.

Editor Testifies.

Opening statements were completed by midafternoon and testimony began with Donald F. Stewart, editor of the Moose Magazine for the past six years.

Treadwell called Senator Davis the "Mussolini of the Moose," the "general head of everything." He said his connections with the order were two-fold: First, official, as director general of the order, and second, as holder of a "very lucrative" life contract as organizer for the Moose.

He said he contracted with Bernard C. McGuire (also under indictment in the case) to conduct the alleged lotteries, and declared that McGuire was "running around with punchboards" for 20 years before the Moose balls.

"Cheap Chisler."

"McGuire was just a cheap chisler with his punchboards," he declared, "before the mind of this great organizer took up the plan."

Later, in Tuttle's opening statement he said the Moose was "a great humanitarian mission, and Senator Davis not a cheap chisler as the district attorney called him."

"Just a minute," interrupted District Judge Frank J. Coleman. "Mr. Treadwell did not say that Senator Davis was a cheap chisler."

"He did," contradicted Tuttle.

"I rule to the contrary," said the judge. "Mr. Treadwell said that Mr. McGuire was a cheap chiseler in comparison to Senator Davis."

Forest Fire 6 Miles From Colorado Town

Boulder, Colo., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Gale-harried flames sweeping through Roosevelt National Forest toward the mountain village of Nederland today reached a point but 6 miles from the town. The flames were estimated to have burned over 2,000 acres of wood land and greater damage was forecast by the 300 fire fighters.

Eldora, mounatin summer camp with several hundred cabins, was saved by Lake Eldora, which stopped the fire and turned it aside. No such natural barrier protects Nederland. Forestry officials believed careless campers started the fire.

M'KEE CLOSES TWO BURLESQUE HOUSES

Mayor Turns Briefly From Financial Problems to Moral Matters.

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Turning for a brief moment from mattters of finance to morals, Mayor Joseph V. McKee today placed an official ban against burlesque shows in West Forty-second street, the heart of Broadway.

Acting on a report by Commissioner of Licenses James F. Geraghty, he ordered that the licenses of two houses be revoked. Police prepared to place the order into effect tomorrow by stationing policemen at the doors to see that the order is obeyed.

The commissioner's investigation followed upon protests from the clergy, civic organizations and property owners along the street.

"New York City has no place for the filth these theaters are purveying," declared the mayor. "They created immorality. They had a bad influence. And they lessened property values in the section, a matter which is of less importance than the issue of morality."

Recent Revival.

Burlesque, which for more than a year had not been shown at any theater in the Broadway district, had in recent months enjoyed a marked revival. "Barkers" on the sidewalks and displays of photographs of semi-nude women in front of the theaters, in addition to the actual performances, were among the subjects of complaints.

The mayor, however, in ordering the two theaters closed asserted he was not setting himself up as a censor of the theater.

Closing of the burlesque theaters, however, was only one phase of a busy day for the mayor.

Resumes Budget Study.

Resuming his efforts to cut the 1933 budget by $100,000,000, he indicated that Dr. William Schroeder, jr., chairman of the sanitation commission and personal physician of former Mayor James J. Walker, would be dismissed unless he provided a satisfactory explanation for the commission's failure to deal adequately with the incinerator problem.

Among the matters which the mayor has asked Dr. Schroeder to explain are the commission's delay in moving to comply with an order of the United States Supreme Court forbidding the dumping of garbage at sea after June, 1933, and the recommendation that a contract for construction of three new incinerators be awarded to joint bidders whose estimate was $250,000 over the low bid.

Dr. Schroeder was appointed to his post by Walker. The position pays $22,500 a year.

apartment before returning to Lanham.

Mr. Cornwell parked his machine in front of the new Supreme Court Building, near Second and East Capitol streets. Mrs. Cornwell went into a nearby apartment house. Douglas, his brother, Richard, 13, and two sisters, Dorothy, 12, and Evelyn, 9, waited with their father in the parked car.

Ice cream cones were suggested. Richard, his father said, could take Douglas to the corner drug store and bring back cones for every one.

The ice cream was obtained and all settled back in the machine to enjoy the treat—all except little Douglas. He wanted to eat his while sitting on the running board.

Hardly had the youngster finished his cone when Mrs. Cornwell appeared in the entrance of an apartment house across the street. Douglas jumped to his feet and in childlike joy began waving to his mother.

Mrs. Cornwell walked to the curb and stood waiting for traffic to let up before crossing. Douglas apparently thought she was waiting for him and started to run into the street.

Panic stricken, the mother motioned for him not to move. He mistook her waves as meaning to hurry and dashed to the center of the street.

Meanwhile, Mr. Cornwell saw his son rush into the thoroughfare and started to clamor from the car to reach his side. He had just reached the sidewalk when a scream from his wife warned him he was too late.

Douglas had been hit by an automobile, the rear wheels of which were resting on his tiny body. In hysterical agony the child's mother rushed into the center of the street and attempted to push the stalled machine from Douglas' mangled form.

The driver of the car started his motor. The rear wheels revolved at top speed. The child was thrown several feet along the street by their spinning.

Douglas was taken to Casualty Hospital, where he was pronounced dead a few minutes later.

The driver of the machine, whom police say was Charles Thomas, 44, of 520 E street northeast, was held for the coroner's jury.

Mr. Cornwell recently obtained work at a welding company here and decided to move into the city to be nearer his work.

Panama Advances U.S. Liquor Treaty

Transport Convention Is Passed by Assembly on First Reading.

Panama City, Panama, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—After a heated half-hour of debate, the assembly this afternoon passed on first reading the liquor transport convention between the United States and Panama.

(The treaty was ratified by the United States Senate on June 21. Senator William E. Borah, of the foreign relations committee, at that time explained controversies had arisen because of the lack of such a treaty. Apparently the Panamanian opposition is based on the premise that no treaty is necessary, since Panama by a previous treaty has the right to free transit of the Canal Zone.)

Several deputies attacked the American attitude, protesting against the application of Federal legislation to the Canal Zone. They insisted that article 6 of the Panama Canal treaty reserved to Panama the right to free transit of Canal Zone highways. The government contended that the convention was not damaging to Panama's interests. Stiffer opposition is expected on second reading.

courthouse that he believed in American initiative in the matter not only of an international monetary conference, but of all other important matters of world concern.

Speaking from a specially constructed platform at the top of the courthouse steps after passing through a parade that had passed slowly across the town four times through its crowded streets, the Democratic presidential candidate said:

"The Republican leaders say that when an international conference is called by some one else, they will participate. We promise to call such a conference. This I promise to do without delay or evasion.

"I believe in American initiative in this and in all other important matters of world-wide concern.

"The improvement of conditions in the mining industry will be attained by no single panacea. I want to be fair and honest with you as I was with the farmers at Topeka the other day and say that with problems of such many-sided importance the way out is difficult.

Restoring Pacific Trade.

"Particularly is this true of the problem of improving the condition of silver and the restoration of trade on the Pacific.

"It must be done with the pledge of the platform in mind that sound currency be maintained at all regards. This must and shall be done.

"I pledge to you as I pledged myself to the farmers, willing hands and a sincere purpose. This is, my friends, the issue of the campaign—on the one side cynical and unsympathetic acceptance of things as they are—on the other determination and faith in the possibility of change—of progress—of a new deal."

The new York governor said the difference between the Republican and the Democratic platforms on the money question "is not a difference of alleged purpose, but a difference of attitude and method."

"But remember well, that attitude and method, the way we do things, is nearly always the measure of our sincerity," he added.

Mr. Roosevelt spoke briefly after he had been welcomed to Montana by Gov. Erickson and introduced by Senator Walsh, of Montana. J. Bruce Kremer, Democratic national committeeman for Montana, and Frank Walker, of Montana, treasurer of the Democratic national committee, also made brief talks.

Pays Tribute to Senator Walsh.

Gov. Roosevelt paid high tribute to Senator Walsh as a man who for nearly twenty years "has stood foresquare in the front of every fight in behalf of human rights."

The parade that brought the party to the courthouse wove its way slowly through the crowded streets four times behind a band before it fully came to a stop besides the courthouse.

The candidate was applauded frequently as his automobile passed down the line of parade, but here and there were groups that stood silently watching. The public school had suspended classes for the day and hundreds of children crowded into the streets, dozens running behind the automobiles that carried members of the official party and many climbing up to cling perilously upon the fenders and unraised tops of the open cars.

At several places the crowds pressed so thickly into the streets that the machines were forced to halt until a path could be cleared. The route led past a restaurant which bore a sign: "Eat here or I'll vote for Hoover."

Just across the street a building carried a sign: "Republican headquarters." Still a little further along the line of march, a man leaned from a third story window to shout in stentorian tones: "Hooray for Hoover."

In his introductory speech, Senator Walsh assailed President Hoover for failing to call a silver conference. Another good-sized crowd gathered at the station to wave goodby to the candidate as his train pulled out on the way to Missoula before crossing Idaho into Washington for a stop at Spokane.

AMERICA DECLARED OPPOSED TO GERMANY'S EQUALITY PLEA

East as for those affecting Europe. The league soon is to be involved in the Far Eastern question again as a result of the impending presentation of the report of its investigating committee.

So far as disarmament is concerned, it was understood M. Herriot gave renewed assurance of his support of President Hoover's plan, which calls for a general reduction of about one-third in all arms. The premier outlined France's reasons for insisting on safeguards for her national security, but promised to do the best he could when the disarmament conference at Geneva is convened.

Debts Not Discussed.

There was no discussion of war debts at the luncheon meeting.

Both Ambassador Edge and Senator Reed are planning to sail home in a fortnight, to take part in the presidential campaign. Mr. Edge hopes to negotiate the essentials of a new Franco-American commercial treaty before he sails.

(Associated Press.)

Insofar as the German demand for arms equality in Europe affects the course of world disarmament efforts, it is viewed by this Government with keen regret.

This position was expressed yesterday by a high official after press reports from Paris said Ambassador Edge and Senator Reed (Republican), of Pennsylvania, had conferred with Premier Herriot.

However, beyond effect on the scheduled resumption of the disarmament conference in February and on the American proposal for a general one-third cut in armaments, it was emphasized that such a European political problem as the German was not for American consideration.

At the same time, it was indicated that this Government was not disposed to take a gloomy view of the situation, believing that a way will be found to bring Germany back into the disarmament conference before February. With that in mind, preparations for resuming the parley are continuing.

Denied by Department.

The State Department disclaimed official knowledge of the Paris conversation, and, in response to newspapermen's questions, officials denied that Senator Reed was sent abroad to discuss disarmament. However, Reed is a high ranking member of the Senate foreign relations committee, served as a delegate at the London naval conference, is a personal friend of Ambassador Mellon and has frequently figured among the close advisers of President Hoover on international affairs.

His name has been mentioned here as a possible delegate to the world economic conference, for which preparations now are underway.

Rome, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—The initial disappointment over the British armament note expressed in government circles today was modified when further study apparently revealed that the note "furnished some tangible points for negotiation."

It was officially stated that Italy was inclined to agree that some measure of disarmament might form a basis for solution of the problem, and that this country was disposed to travel with the British in seeking to harmonize the French and German ideas in that manner.

COLOMBIAN CROWDS WANT WAR ON PERU

Bogota Aims to Regain Port, Despite All Obstacles; Feeling Runs High.

Bogota, Colombia, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—While public demonstrations demanding war with Peru continued without abatement tonight, the senate unanimously approved a $10,000,000 national defense bill on third reading. The bill was sent to the house, which passed it unanimously on first reading.

The action followed the reported seizure by Peruvians of Leticia, the Amazon River port city ceded to Colombia by Peru in a boundary treaty.

The bill would authorize the government to arrange a credit of $10,000,000 to be used for national defense.

President Enrique Olaya-Herrera returned to the capital today to find thousands of dollars pledged by various organizations and women offering jewels to finance a military expedition against the Peruvians.

Quito, Ecuador, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—The Colombian legation today received word that the Colombian government is "determined to obtain, by any means, reestablishment of its authority" in the port of Leticia, which was reported seized by Peruvians.

The message said public order in the Amazonas Province (Brazilian territory across the Amazon, or Maranon River, from Leticia) was "disturbed."

The message received by the legation here said the government intended to obtain "jurisdiction of territories recognized as her own by virtue of international pacts, no matter how great the obstacle it must overcome in defense of the national sovereignty."

It said the President of Colombia had issued a decree warning he would suspend or fine any Colombian newspaper publishing "information prejudicial to the interests of the country."

Lima, Peru, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—It was announced today that President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro had given one month's salary, amounting to 3,500 soles ($1,680 at par), toward a national defense fund destined to purchase armaments for Peru.

Dubois and Wife Buried; Morbid Kept at Distance

Braintree, Mass., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Two gray coffins containing the bodies of Charles E. DuBois, Braintree and Tuckahoe (N. Y.) jeweler, and his wife, were lowered today into twin graves in Blue Hill Cemetery. DuBois committed suicide Friday in a Quincy rooming house, five hours before the body of his wife was found in a concrete vault in the cellar of their summer place in Plymouth.

While the aged mother of the jeweler, Mrs. Cecile DuBois, of New York City, wept and a few other relatives looked on, the Rev. Howard K. Barton, of Christ Episcopal Church, Quincy, read a simple ritual. The curious were kept at a distance by police.

Strikers, Defeated By Troops, in Trek

Miners to Assemble Over County Line to Protest Bombing Charges.

Taylorville, Ill., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Defeated by National Guardsmen in an attempt to hold a mass meeting here, nearly 600 striking miners this afternoon moved toward the Sangamon County line outside the jurisdiction of Christian County authorities and planned a protest meeting at Pawnee.

The strikers were refused admittance to Miners Park here where they intended to take concerted action to protest charges that strikers were responsible for the exploding of two bombs here Sunday, damaging the office of the Daily Breeze, a newspaper, and the building housing headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America, the union advocating the $5 wage scale.

About 120 Illinois Guardsmen flanked the park and turned back miners as they sought entrance. There were no disorders.

Called here on request of Sheriff Charles A. Wieneke and various citizens, the militiamen arrived early today and began patroling streets under orders to allow no meetings and to prevent crowds from congregating.

U.S. INQUIRY STARTS IN INSULL COLLAPSE

Justice and Postoffice Departments Seek Data on Billion-Dollar Debacle.

Special to The Washington Post.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—The Department of Justice and the investigative agencies of the Postoffice Department have instituted an inquiry into the collapse of the billion-dollar Insull utilities enterprises, it was learned officially today.

Entry of the Federal agencies into the case was learned soon after United States Attorney Dwight F. Green returned here from Washington, where he had been making a study of extradition treaties with France and Canada. Samuel Insull is in Paris on an $18,000 yearly pension, while his brother, Martin Insull, is in Canada.

The investigation of the failure of the mammoth utilities enterprises is expected to be threefold. The tangents are: Study of the use of mails by the Insull concerns; a search for possible attempts to shield or conceal assets, and an inquiry into the income tax payments of the Insull officers.

State's Attorney John A. Swanson is also inquiring into the affairs of associated companies. Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley, who appointed receivers for the concern, announced at that time that no evidence of a criminal nature has been presented.

BULLET SLAYS BOY, 9, IN STRIKE DISORDER

from the scene of the riot to Borough Hall when news of the death of Walter Rojek spread. At 11 o'clock tonight, it kept its ground outside the hall while the borough council met in a private home to make plans for halting the disorder.

Sheriff Barney Gannon, of Middlesex County, and Prosecutor Douglas M. Hicks arrived at the hall shortly before midnight and both spoke to the crowd from the steps. They asked it to disperse, but were greeted by boos and failed to make any headway.

Young Rojek died in a hospital at 6:30 from a bullet wound in the head. It was not known who did the shooting. Deputies from the Newark detective agency said they fired only to scare the crowd when it attacked them with stones and bricks. They said some of the workers were armed.

John Wilczynski, 13, was shot in the leg and was released from New Brunswick Hospital after treatment. An unidentified woman also was wounded in the leg and an unidentified man was shot in the arm.

The trouble broke out in front of the R. & P. Wash Suit plant, which opened this morning for the first time since a strike was called more than three weeks ago. Leaders of the workers voted Saturday night to permit five plants to open today and promised not to interfere with those who went to work.

An advertisement in a New Brunswick newspaper yesterday, over the name of Mayor James B. Armstrong of South River and the borough council, said two plants would reopen, but it also pointed out deputies would be present at the scene.

Twenty of the private detectives were there when the plant opened. Apparently aroused by their presence, workers and sympathizers gathered this afternoon and began to chase them with stones. The officers charged and were repulsed. Reserves in the form of borough police and twenty more private detectives came to their aid and again they charged.

Employer Asks Court Aid in Ousting Worker

Jobs are scarce and most people are hanging on to theirs, Robert Lee Craycroft, of Aquasco, Md., will certify. Mr. Craycroft yesterday asked the Prince Georges County Circuit Court for an injunction to force one of his employes to give up his job.

According to his petition, Mr. Craycroft hired N. T. K. Swartz as manager of a poultry hatchery in 1929. This month, he says, he dismissed Swartz, but the defendant has refused to give up the keys of the plant and has sold some of the "goods and property" of the hatchery. He wants Swartz enjoined from acting as manager, as well as an order for Swartz to turn over the keys.

CONTEMPT CHARGES OF 2 YEARS REVIVED

Nebraska Dry Official Gets Bail in Delaware in Old Raid on Clubhouse.

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Harold D. Wilson, deputy prohibition administrator for Nebraska, was released in bail today after spending several hours in the custody of a United States marshal on a charge of contempt of court placed against him nearly two years ago.

Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, national director of prohibition, and Maj. Randolph C. Shaw, chief counsel of the Prohibition Bureau, representing Wilson, obtained his release in bail of $1,000 through Judge Victor B. Woolley, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The Nebraska deputy was released pending an appeal to the Circuit Court on the ground that District Court Judge John P. Nields erred in holding Wilson today, because the case in which the charge arose no longer existed.

While serving as deputy administrator in Delaware in October, 1930, Wilson raided the clubhouse of the Democratic League of Delaware. The club appealed to the District Court on the ground the raid was illegal. During a hearing on the appeal, Wilson refused to tell from whom he received a key with which he entered the place and Judge Nields ordered him held in contempt. The Circuit Court of Appeals recently upheld Judge Nields and the case came before him today for final disposition.

Before the case was heard, the court, on application of Leonard E. Wales, United States attorney, ruled that the raid was illegal and ordered the return of property seized. Woodcock followed this move with an application that the contempt charge against Wilson be vacated on the ground that whatever Wilson did was in a case that does not now exist.

Woodcock said he was representing the prohibition department, and Wilson admittted that an error had been made and apologized for what had occurred.

Judge Nields, however, refused to vacate the charge and ordered Wilson held in the custody of the marshal until he purged himself of the contempt charge.

Several hours later, Judge Nields and Judge Woolley held a conference after which it was announced the District Court had agreed to permit Wilson's release pending an appeal on the ground that the case no longer existed.

Stage Actress Who Failed To Crash Hollywood Suicide

Hollywood, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Police found yesterday, at the foot of a gigantic letter "H," evidence of a movieland tragedy—the bruised body of a girl who failed.

Today the body was identified by Charles Entwistle as that of his niece, Lillian Millicent "Peg" Entwistle, a New York stage actress and graduate of the Theater Guild, who, he said, had failed to find recognition in the movies.

A note left by the girl read:

"I'm afraid I'm a coward. I am sorry for everything. If I had done this long ago, it would have saved a lot of pain."

A workman's ladder was still leaning against the gigantic letter, part of an illuminated sign 50 feet high.

From the condition of her body, found about 100 feet down the slope, police decided the 24-year-old blonde had climbed to the top of the "H," the first letter in an illuminating sign in a real estate subdivision, and jumped off.

An anonymous telephone message revealed the suicide.

A woman called the central police station in Los Angeles and said: "I was hiking on Hollywood Mountain, and near the Hollywood land sign I found a woman' shoe, jacket and purse. In the purse I found a suicide note. I looked down the mountain and saw a body. I don't want any publicity in this, so I wrapped up the purse, shoe and jacket and laid the bundle on the steps of the Hollywood police station."

The woman refused to identify herself and hung up.

Miss Entwistle left the home of her uncle Friday, telling him she was going to keep a "rendezvous with a friend." That, he told police, was the last he saw of her.

Police went to the scene and found the body, which lay at the county morgue unidentified until today, when Entwistle said it was that of his niece.

The girl came here more than a year ago, but movie success seemed just out of her grasp. First she was engaged for a leading role in support of Billie Burke in "The Mad Hopes," and Miss Entwistle depended upon this part to draw the favorable attention of Hollywood movie producers, but nothing came of her efforts. She played the role in a brief run here, and the play did not go on the road from Hollywood.

She got screen bits here and there and finally was given a part in "Thirteen Women," an R. K. O. picture. Friends said this part would have "made" her in Hollywood, but the picture was not released, being held up by the studio for later showing and change.

She was divorced in May, 1929, from Robert Lee Keith. She charged Keith with cruelty, alleging he tore hair from her head and did not tell her before their marriage that he had been married previously and was the father of a 6-year-old son.

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Peg Entwisle, who leaped to her death in Hollywood, was best known along Broadway for her performance in "Tommy," in which she attained stardom several years ago.

Her most recent engagement was with the Theater Guild last year in Bernard Shaw's play, "Getting Married." She appeared with a Theater Guild repertory company in 1929, making a 40-weeks' tour, and prior to that had roles in Eugene O'Neill's "The Great God Brown," and in George M. Cohan's "The Home Towners."

G. A. R. VISITORS PAY HOMAGE TO LINCOLN

Encampment at Springfield May Vote Tomorrow on City for 1933.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Veterans of the War Between the States, gathered here for the sixty-sixth annual encampment of the G. A. R., spent a day visiting the places where Abraham Lincoln once walked and worked, but already the serious business of the gathering—selection of next year's conclave city—made bids for their attention.

Only two cities have made formal invitations. They are St. Paul, runner-up for the honor last year, and Grand Rapids, Mich., site of the 1925 and 1927 encampments. Long Beach, Calif., withdrew its invitation until 1934. Other cities mentioned in preofficial discussion were Cleveland, Washington and Albany, but Grand Rapids and St. Paul, its banners in evidence and its financial guarantees posted for a year, appeared to be favored. The veterans will not get down to business until Wednesday.

The decimated hosts of the G. A. R. today went through the ceremonies of dedicating trees and tablets and viewing the sites hallowed by memories of the "Great Emancipator." They finally united at the modest white house whence Lincoln went to Washington as President and passed, en masse, on to other shrines—the old Sangamon County Courthouse, where he practiced law; his old office and his tomb. They went in automobiles, not on foot as they insisted upon doing several years ago.

Tonight they held their first semi-official meeting when welcome was extended to them in behalf of the city and State.

Brookhart Leaves To Get Farm Vote

Stakes Political Future on Cornfield Rally to Be Held in Iowa.

(United Press.)

Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart sped westward last night toward an Iowa cornfield to place his political future in the hands of 1,000 discontented farmers. Defeated in the Republican primary and apparently headed for private life, Brookhart may decide to gamble on running as an independent and riding back into the Senate on a wave of agrarian dissatisfaction.

His decision will be made tomorrow when he reaches a stubblefield outside of Moville, Iowa. Already hundreds of farmers, caught in the whirlwind of the depression and the farm strike, are on the march for Moville. There they hope to find a Moses to lead them into the promised land of prosperity, and indications were last night that they were pinning their faith on Brookhart.

A telegram from Ed A. Ellison, farm strike leader, arrived at Brookhart's office yesterday. In 20 minutes he had cleared his desk and announced his intention of going before the farmers in one final plea for continuation of his political life.

R. F. C. WOULD RUSH JOB-MAKING LOANS

It has before it such projects as the $75,000,000 Thirty-eighth street tunnel in New York City, and the belt line bridge at New Orleans. Many similar projects are in sight, but the small-loan projects are comparatively few.

The Pennsylvania Railroad loan yesterday was the first resulting from the series of conferences the corporation held with railroad presidents and members of the Interstate Commerce Commission two months ago. It was granted for construction of 1,285 freight cars and will keep 500 men busy at the Altoona, Pa., shops for five months. Besides this, it will bring about employment, the corporation estimates, of 1,500 more men in plants making axles, trucks, brakes, roofs, wheels and other parts. About 30,000 tons of steel will be used.

The unusual situation of the finance corporation announcing a loan before the Interstate Commerce Commission announced its approval, featured this advance. The commission's approval was given last week, but the opinion did not become public until after the corporation made its announcement.

There is one other such loan now before the commission. The Central Railroad of New Jersey Saturday asked for $500,000 to repair its equipment.

The corporation has made two other somewhat similar loans to railroads. Three months ago it loaned $27,000,000 to the Pennsylvania so that road might be able to continue electrification of its New York-Washington line. Saturday a loan of $3,850,000 was granted the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad that it might build the 40-mile Dotsero cutoff in Colorado, thus creating hundreds of jobs.

PRESIDENT GREETS MICHIGAN EDITORS

Group "Going Home Cheerful" After 2-Hour Audience at White House.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover last night talked for nearly two hours to a group of Michigan newspaper editors upon national political and economic affairs, after which a spokesman for the group told newspapermen "we are going home cheerful as to the outcome."

"We are confident that Michigan will vote overwhelmingly for continuation of President Hoover's policies," George R. Averill, editor of the Birmingham (Mich.) Eccentric, said in a statement as the group left the White House at 11 p. m.

The President chose as the stage for his talk the Lincoln study of the Executive Mansion. Henry Allen, publicity director of the Republican campaign, sat with the editorial group as Mr. Hoover answered virtually all the questions put to him.

Answers Written Questions.

Others in the Lincoln study included Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan; Secretary Chapin, of the Commerce Department; Ferry K. Heath, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and Theodore Joslin, presidential secretary in charge of press contacts.

Following the rules laid down for the President's usual press conferences, the Michigan editors submitted several score questions in writing. Mr. Hoover ran through one after another, giving his ideas and interpretations.

As the editorial group left the Executive Mansion Averill issued the following statement:

"We have had a discussion with the President of the social, political and economic problems of the United States and the world and we are going home cheerful as to the outcome. We are confident that Michigan will vote overwhelmingly for continuation of President Hoover's policies."

Averill said he had helped to arrange the "pilgrimage" of the Michigan editors to the National Capital. Both Senator Vandenberg and the Republican national committee took charge of the party after its arrival here yesterday.

Party Goes Sightseeing.

Just before going to the Executive Mansion they were guests of Senator Vandenberg at a private dinner to hear Secretaries Chapin and Heath speak.

After a morning of sightseeing, which included visits to Mount Vernon, the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and the George Washington Masonic Memorial in Alexandria, the editors were guests of the Republican national committee at a luncheon. There they were greeted by Assistant Secretary Jahncke, of the Navy Department, and Theodore Joslin, Secretary to President Hoover.

State Senator Chester M. Howell, of Saginaw, took to the White House a sugar beet grown in his county. He said he would present it to President Hoover as symbolic of the increased price which Michigan sugar beet growers had received as a result of the Hawley Smoot tariff on the crop. Previously the State senator had presented beets to Secretary Chapin and Senator Vandenberg.

Included in the party were: George R. Averill, Birmingham Eccentric; F. J. Miller, Royal Oak Tribune; C. R. Eaton, Plymouth Mail; R. M. Cook, Hastings Banner; A. Van Koevering, Mrs. and Miss Van Koevering and J. N. Clark, Zeeland Record; Joe Haas, Holly Herald; Frank D. Brown, Bellevue Gazette; F. B. Haskins, Howard City Record; William H. Canafield, Howell Republican Press; M. H. Defoe, Charlotte Republican Tribune; T. O. Huckle, Cadillac News; R. T. Baldwin, Northville Record; W. R. Crissey, Midland Republican; Henry L. Woolfenden, jr., and Walter Y. Stanley, Pontiac; J. John Pope and Miss Marie Pope, Grand Rapids.

Grand Jury Quiz Of Feud Ordered

Conditions Causing Death of Two Are Termed Deplorable.

Manchester, Ky., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Investigation of the feud shooting which killed two men and wounded another here yesterday was ordered by Circuit Judge William Lewis on empaneling the grand jury here today.

Conditions causing the killings are "deplorable," Judge Lewis told the grand jury men, in the course of a charge that lasted an hour and a half. He told them that when he first came to Clay County 28 years ago feud feeling was causing killings.

A company of National Guardsmen was on duty during the day at the county courthouse, from which marksmen fired yesterday the shots that killed Commonwealth Attorney Frank H. Baker and John Brockman.

BUTLER'S WET PLAN RAPPED BY DUNFORD

Antisaloon League Attorney Brands It Hopeless and Inconsistent Scheme.

(Associated Press.)

The State liquor traffic control plan advanced Sunday by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler was assailed in a statement last night by Edward B. Dunford, attorney for the Antisaloon League of America.

"The proposal by Dr. Butler to solve the drink problem by repealing the eighteenth amendment and providing for the sale of liquor through a system of government-regulated dispensaries," he said, "is as futile and hopeless as it is inconsistent and impractical.

"While Dr. Butler declares 'it is essential to the success of any plan for State liquor control that the eighteenth amendment be unconditionally repealed,' those interested in the prevention of the effects of alcoholism are not concerned with the success of any plan for a State liquor traffic.

"They believe that alcohol is a narcotic poison and a habit-forming drug, and that no unit of government, State or national, has any moral right to license its sale or encourage its consumption.

Public Education Needed.

"If more time were expended in public education upon the true nature of alcoholic beverages, there would be less law violation and little occasion for discussion of the question of the repeal of the amendment. * * *

"Even if Dr. Butler's plan were ideal, what guaranty can he or anyone else who favors the repeal of the eighteenth amendment furnish that New York or any other State would enact his so-called liquor-control plan? * * *

"Dr. Butler says that Congress in its authority over interstate commerce possesses the necessary power to regulate traffic in intoxicating liquor, and no State will need any protection which it is not now within the power of Congress to give.

"One of the reasons why the eighteenth amendment was adopted was because of the violation of the prohibitory laws by liquor dealers in wet States through the channels of interstate commerce. * * *

Drinkers' Permits Rapped.

"State controlled dispensaries were tried in South Carolina and failed, both under the plan of State and local control. Dr. Butler's plan, furthermore, is concerned only with the exclusion of private profit from the moment the liquor comes into the possession of the State liquor traffic authority. It manifests no concern whatsoever about the profits which may be derived by the brewers, distillers and others who manufacture the liquor sold in such States, whether bootlegged or otherwise. * * *

"To have any measure of success the Butler plan would require a system of licensing drinkers by having them obtain a permit to purchase from some governmental agency * * * Such a paternalistic system is discriminatory and un-American. Some citizens could lawfully buy, others would be denied the right. Prohibition applies to all alike.

"The proposal that no liquor shall be consumed on the premises where sold is worthless as a police regulation. It is not the place but the liquor sold and consumed that produces the public and social evils."

ROOSEVELT'S TARIFF IDEAS ATTACKED BY LABOR LEADER

market, whether of agricultural or industrial products, can not and will not solve our problems, but will contribute to their severity."

Denies Embargo Charge.

Coincident with Mr. Woll's appeal, the Republican national committee challenged Gov. Roosevelt's declaration in Topeka that the United States maintains a practical embargo against world trade. A special study of international trade in 1931 disclosed that per capita tariff collections were higher in every country in the world save British India and Japan. In Italy, per capita tariff collections were 3 per cent more than in the United States; in Belgium they were 51 per cent more; in Argentina, 120 per cent more, and in the United Kingdom, 307 per cent more.

The American tariff on wheat is 42 cents a bushel, but in the principal countries of Europe the rate is more than twice that figure. Germany maintains a tariff of $1.60 a bushel; Poland, $1.27; France, 85 cents, and Mexico, 82 cents.

Whereas the United States collects $3.25 per hundred pounds on imported bacon, France imposes a tariff of $10.69 to $12.29 per hundredweight Poland collects $4.07 per hundred pounds and Argentina $9.31.

Industrial Rate Disparities.

Similar disparities prevail in the principal industrial schedules, the analysis reveals. The United States' tariff on pig iron is $1.25 per ton. France charges $1.80; Italy, $7.20; Brazil, $21.20; Mexico, $33.40; Canada, $2.50; Australia, $5, and Chile, $5.60.

Characterizing Gov. Roosevelt's economic discussions in the West as "mere shadow boxing," Senator Henry D. Hatfield, of West Virginia, chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee, declared yesterday after a White House visit that the transcontinental tour of the Democratic presidential candidate is "an invitation to the Nation to chase rainbows."

"As Gov. Roosevelt moves further into the West he becomes increasingly Utopian. Everywhere he stops he releases a new butterfly of his fancy. At Salt Lake City, with a benign wave of one hand, he promised the railroad workers the highest wages they had ever known. Then, waving the other hand, he demanded railway costs be cut to the bone. This is not presidential stuff. It is the kind of economic nonsense that one would expect from a visionary or a peddler of dreams."

Curtis Starts Tomorrow.

Although week-end conferences at the White House resulted in broad plans for an intensification of the Republican campaign throughout the country, no change has been announced regarding President Hoover's personal part in the effort. Some of the President's closest advisers are convinced he will adhere to his original plan of three well-rounded discussions of vital national problems, and devote the remainder of his time to the development of the reconstruction program now so well under way.

Vice President Curtis will leave tomorrow on a campaign tour which will take him to the Pacific Coast, with speeches in Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia, Kansas, Oklahoma and Colorado.

Next week Secretary Mills also will head into the West. Under a program announced yesterday by the Republican national committee, he will speak at Detroit September 29; Los Angeles, October 3 and San Francisco, October 6.

President Hoover's Middle Western address, in Kansas City or Minneapolis, probably will be arranged for early October.

4 SPEECHES LISTED FOR GARNER'S TOUR

Managers Say He Will Make Two in Middle West and Two in East.

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Speaker Garner is expected by Democratic campaign managers, they said tonight, to make two campaign addresses in the Middle West and two in the East.

The vice presidential nominee will come to New York to map out his stumping tour and to confer with his running mate after Gov. Roosevelt returns from his swing across the country. If the party standard bearer makes another trip West, the Speaker may accompany him, it was said.

A tentative speaking program for Garner was announced by one of his aids. It includes an address in New England, one in Pennsylvania, one in St. Louis and one in the Middle West corn belt.

A report from those in charge of the drive for campaign funds was that many more small contributions had been coming in since the Maine election.

Commenting on the Republican reaction to Gov. Roosevelt's railroad address, Charles Michelson, Democratic publicity director, said:

"Half the Republicans who have commented say the governor has no real railroad program, and the other half say he copies his railroad program from President Hoover."

The official "campaign book" of the party was distributed at national headquarters. It contains 103 pages and is paper bound.

It lists the "Roosevelt creed"—beginning, "I, too, believe in individualism"—which the governor outlined in a recent speech. In a biography of Garner, the Speaker's prohibition vote is explained as follows:

"In company with some of the country's most enthusiastic wets at that time, Garner, after voting against the eighteenth amendment, voted for the Volstead act on the theory that if three-quarters of the States had decided they wanted national prohibition and approved the constitutional amendment providing for it, the duty of Congress to enact legislation to enforce it became clear."

Col. Goedecke Dies From Heart Attack

Retired Officer Served in Regular Army From 1901 to 1922.

Lieut. Col. Frederick Goedecke, U. S. A., retired, of the Army and Navy Club, died yesterday morning at Walter Reed Hospital of heart trouble. He was 59 years old.

Col. Goedecke was a native of Belle Plaine, Iowa. Formerly a captain in the Fiftieth Iowa Infantry, he was appointed a first lieutenant in the Regular Army in 1901. He was a graduate of the Army School of the Line at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Col. Goedecke was promoted to the rank of major on August 3, 1917. Later the same month he was raised to the rank of lieutenant colonel, National Army, and in 1920 was promoted to the same rank in the Regular Army. He was retired for disability in November, 1922.

Col. Goedecke is survived by a son, Lyne S. Goedecke, of Frankfort, Ky. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

REICH PRESS BITTER ON BRITISH REFUSAL

Von Papen Spokesman Says Disarmament Parleys Will Be Avoided.

Berlin, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—Germany will adhere to her decision not to participate in further disarmament conferences unless the other powers grant her military equality, a spokesman for the government said tonight.

Berlin will not be represented when the budget bureau of the disarmament conference meets at Geneva Wednesday, the spokesman said.

While the reaction in the press to Great Britain's memorandum, which bluntly expressed disfavor for the German demands, was one of either wrath against the Franz von Papen cabinet or against Britain, government officials seemed surprised at "the change in British official opinion."

"A different attitude was expected," one official said. "If France insists on an investigation of so-called secret arms in Germany, the situation will be seriously aggravated."

Arthur Henderson, chairman of the disarmament conference, addressed a letter to Baron Constantine von Neurath, the German foreign minister, asking that Germany reconsider her decision not to attend Wednesday's meeting at Geneva.

"Prolonged absence of Germany from our deliberations," the letter said, "may seriously affect the cause of general disarmament."

The Hitlerite organ, Angriff, bluntly demanded that von Papen resign as chancellor and make way for a Hitler cabinet, "so the dummy armaments now being used in the autumn maneuvers can be replaced with a real means of defense."

The Socialist paper, Vorwaerts, asserted that the German foreign policy is leading to isolation, with France and England presenting a united front on the political horizon.

JAMES S. CARSTAIRS, FAMOUS ARTIST, DIES

Overdose of Sleeping Potion Fatal; Bankrupt May Have Been Suicide.

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—James Stewart Carstairs, famous but bankrupt and disillusioned artist, died today in an ambulance, apparently from an overdose of a sleeping potion. Found ill in a hotel room where he had been living the last two weeks, the 40-year-old internationally known artist was being taken to a hospital when he died.

Detectives, searching the room, said they found two bottles which had contained a sleeping potion and expressed the opinion he might have taken an overdose. A friend said Carstairs had been suffering from heart attacks and had been taking the sleeping potions for some time.

It was at a bankruptcy sale of his possessions last July that Carstairs renounced art and assailed Americans as "rogues and children" ruled by "morons."

He had filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy on April 4 last, listing his liabilities at $56,407, and his assets at a book value of $137,500. At the auction sale of his first editions, paintings and antiques he had expected to get at least $50,000, but the sale brought only $7,000.

The disappointment was so great he declared he would renounce art and look for another job. "Unless I find a congenial occupation," he was quoted as saying at that time, "I prefer to destroy myself."

Carstairs' paintings have been exhibited in New York, London and Paris, and he was generally ranked as among the foremost artists of the day. Police refused to say whether they regarded Carstairs' death as suicide or accidental, pending an autopsy tomorrow.

Man and Wife Held In Detroiter's Death

65 Insurance Policies Are Found in Home; Boasts Are Investigated.

Detroit, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Benjamin Palmer, who married Theodore Simons' widow four days after Simons' body was recovered from the Rouge River last July 31, is held by police pending an investigation of the death. His wife also is held.

Meanwhile, police have telegraphed Oklahoma authorities to learn if there is any truth to boasts attributed by them to Palmer that he killed two Indians there in a cattle feud. They also are investigating allegations that Palmer killed a Negro in Union, S. C., during a poker game. Police said Roy Elliot, a former policeman who worked with Palmer at the Ford Motor Co. plant, told them he had heard Palmer say he had killed three men and intended to kill a fourth. Elliot, police said, quoted Palmer as saying his intended fourth victim has $8,000 worth of insurance.

Late today investigators found 65 insurance policies, the principal sums aggregating about $20,000, in the Simons' home, made out for Simons and his children. They said Mrs. Simons had realized on other policies aggregating $2,500 since her husband's death.

B. B. CAIN, RAILWAY LEADER, DIES AT 73

Last Rites to Be Held Here for Official of Short Line Association.

Benjamin Butler Cain, 73, since 1921 vice president and general counsel of the American Short Line Railroad Association, and who for more than 50 years was actively connected with a number of railroads and public utilities in Texas, died yesterday of a paralytic stroke at Boulder, Colo., according to word received here.

The body will be returned to Washington, where Mr. Cain made his home at 3930 Connecticut avenue. Burial will be in Abbey Mausoleum, Arlington. Funeral arangements had not been arranged last night. Mr. Cain had been a patient at Boulder Hospital since July 10. A widow and two sons survive.

Mr. Cain was born at Wetumpka, Ala., and first connected himself with the railroad business in 1881, when he was 19 years old, in the capacity of secretary and auditor of the Kansas & Gulf Railroad. In 1883 he became assistant to the president and assistant general attorney of the road. During his early railroad career he studied law, and in 1865 became regional attorney for the International & Great Northern Railroad and the St. Louis, Arkansas & Texas Railroad.

He later took up law practice in Los Angeles, Calif., became connected with the Gulf, Texas & Western Railway and ultimately was promoted to the post of general manager of the line, which position he held until 1921.

Mr. Cain was one of the organizers and the first president of the Tyler Car & Lumber Co., and one of the organizers of the Tyler Electric Light Co. and the Jester National Bank of Tyler, Tex. He also organized, built, and was part owner of the Tyler Sewer Department.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Belle C. Cain, he is survived by two sons, James W. and Ben, jr., of Alexandria, Va.

Southern Pacific's Return Delayed.

Mexico City, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—Return of operation of the Southern Pacific Railroad to its owners, scheduled for tomorrow, has been delayed. No reason was given for the Government's decision to continue operation of the road, which was removed temporarily from the owners' control when failure to settle a strike of the workers resulted in an emergency.

U. S. COMPETITION STIRS DOCTORS' IRE

Medical Association Protests Hospital Care Given Nonservice Cases.

(Associated Press.)

The American Medical Association voiced a protest yesterday against Government hospitalization.

Speaking to the Shannon committee, investigating for the House Government competition with private enterprise, William C. Woodward, representing the association, said the policy of allowing free treatment to veterans for ailments not of military origin was unfair to the medical profession.

"In 1925," he said, "the first year after provision had been made for treatment of diseases and injuries not of service origin, the total number of admissions to veterans' hospitals for all diseases and injuries was 76,812. In 1931 the number had risen to 107,468. In 1925 admissions of patients suffering from nonservice disabilities was 13,243. Admissions in that class in 1931 numbered 82,850. In other words, the number of admissions of patients suffering from diseases and injuries not of service origin rose from 17 per cent to 77 per cent.

"Such Gratuity Uncalled For."

"The medical profession cries as loudly as any other group of citizens for the liberal treatment of all persons suffering from disabilities incurred in military service and of the widows and orphans of those who have died or may hereafter die because of such disabilities. Where persons suffering from disabilities incurred in military service can be best treated in hospitals and homes maintained by the Government, they should be so treated. Their own interest and welfare are the prime consideration.

"What the medical profession complains of, however, is the treatment at public expense of veterans who are suffering from disabilities not incurred in military service and having no relation to such service. Patriotism and national honor call for no such gratuity.

Brush Company Protests.

"Government competition of this character will tend to undermine the morale of the medical profession, to hinder its development and leave the people without adequate medical service in time of need, and without adequate medical resources in case of military necessity."

Another witness was Charles N. Wheeler, representing the Illinois Terminal Co. He recommended that the recapture clause of the interstate commerce act be repealed and said this would release more than $300,000 now in dispute with the railroads.

The committee also heard E. F. Johnston, of the Wolf Brush Co., Pittsburgh, who protested the Government bought brushes made at Leavenworth Penitentiary.

ROUT OF SAO PAULO REBELS IS REPORTED

Meanwhile, Fighting Goes On Near Boundary Junction of Three Nations.

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—The government announced tonight federal troops, closing around Campinas, had repelled a counter-attack and routed Sao Paulo rebels south of Amparo after a seven-hour battle.

Rebel losses were reported to be heavy. Superiority of federal artillery was said to have been a deciding factor in the engagement.

(Earlier government reports said Campinas, an important railroad center leading to the Sao Paulo capital and the coast, was being evacuated. It is about 50 miles from Sao Paulo, the state capital, and 87 miles northwest of Santos.)

Rebels in the State of Matto Grosso, to the westward, were reported to have left more than 100 dead after a fruitless attack on federal forces. Fighting was continuing in the vicinity of Porto Murtinho, on the Paraguay River near the meeting point of the Paraguay, Bolivia and Brazil borders.

Mexico and Peru Fail To Resume Relations

Mexico City, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—Negotiations for resumption of diplomatic relations between Mexico and Peru have been abandoned because of the failure of mediation by Spain, it was learned reliably today.

It was said negotiations would not be resumed unless Peru takes the initiative, with concessions from her latest expressed attitude. Negotiations were broken off several months ago when a Mexican diplomat in Lima, Peru, was accused of relations with members of the opposition Peruvian party.

Gains of Roosevelt Branded Negative

Norman Thomas Fails to Find Any Who Think He's Constructive.

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, declared in an address tonight that "such popularity as Gov. Roosevelt is developing throughout the country is wholly negative."

The tall silver-haired party leader was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the Thomas-for-President committee before his departure on a second coast-to-coast campaign tour.

"I have yet to talk to any one around the country," he said, "who believes that Roosevelt or the Democratic party offer anything constructive. They will vote for him and his party, if they vote at all, because they want to hit Hoover. * * * Except as an instrument of vengeance these voters have no real faith at all in political action."

Program of Hadassah In Palestine Is Lauded

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Federal Judge Julian W. Mack and Morris Rothenberg, president of the Zionist organization of America, addressed the annual dinner tonight of the Hadassah, women's Zionist organization. Judge Mack praised the Hadassah as "the best organized body in Zionism," and Mr. Rothenberg lauded its program of rehabilitation in Palestine.

At a business session of the Hadassah's eighteenth annual convention today, Israel B. Brodie, chairman of the American economic committee for Palestine, discussed the group's work in improving economic conditions. The convention will close tomorrow.

Unification Urged For Union Pacific

Western Road Would Save $600,000 Annually, I. C. C. Told.

(Associated Press.)

Examiner Thomas F. Sullivan yesterday recommended that the Interstate Commerce Commission approve unification of the Union Pacific Railroad system.

The recommendation was that the Union Pacific be permitted to take over full control of the Oregon Short Line Railroad Co., the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation Co., the Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railroad Co. and the St. Joseph & Grand Island Railway Co.

The Union Pacific has controlled these lines for a number of years and sought the unification as a means of saving approximately $600,000 a year in accounting costs.

HIGH TIDES DAMAGE COAST OF LOUISIANA

Many Flee Homes South of Morgan City as Tropical Storm Wanes.

New Orleans, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—A tropical storm in the Gulf of Mexico that fought winds raging from 20 to 40 miles an hour and drove numerous residents from their homes moved inland south of Morgan City, La., late today, apparently with diminished intensity.

High tides were driven over the low Marsh country of south Louisiana and scores of families evacuated for higher ground. Schools were closed and children were sent to their homes well in advance of the storm's fury.

Trees were uprooted at Morgan City, but no other damage was apparent there.

In Terrebone Parish the tides advanced within 7 miles of the town of Montague, which is 20 miles north of the gulf coast.

Lake Ponchartrain was whipped into a fury north of New Orleans and a number of fishing camps were demolished. The water overflowed the lake shore, but the countryside is thinly settled and damage was not great.

High winds were experienced all day along the Mississippi coast, occasional squalls reaching 40 miles an hour. Tides 3 feet above normal beat against the sea walls.

Farther eastward, Mobile, Ala., and Pensacola, Fla., reported winds with velocity as great as 30 miles an hour.

Diminished winds and a rising barometer late in the afternoon indicated to the Weather Bureau that the disturbance lost force after its center passed inland. The barometer at Morgan City rose and the wind died down to 9 miles an hour.

New Orleans was not in the direct path of the disturbance, but police took all precautions to guard against any eventuality.

An advisory from the Washington Weather Bureau said storm warnings have been ordered down along the Louisiana coast. Earlier in the day warnings were lowered on the Texas coast as the disturbance shifted its course and headed for Louisiana.

It originated off the coast of Mexico last week and moved slowly northnortheastward.

(Associated Press.)

A telegram suggesting that disaster-preparedness organizations be ready to function, and authorizing use of chapter funds if needed for relief purposes, was sent from Red Cross headquarters yesterday to chapters in Houma, Lake Charles, Abbeville, Franklin, Thibedaux and Scarsdale, La.

The Louisiana chapters were requested to keep the National Red Cross headqquarters informed of storm developments.

Shortly before the priest died in agony at the Union Hospital here Saturday, he accused Turek of having poisoned him after stealing $200 from him. The clergyman said Turek had advised him to take a medicine to "build him up." Turek, police said, had sometimes acted as secretary for Father Sleinis.

Frankfort-on-Oder, Germany, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—Grotesque contraptions made of cardboard and tin to represent tanks and flimsy stovepipes for heavy artillery appeared here today for use in the autumn maneuvers of the Germany army. The Versailles peace treaty forbids German use of tanks or big guns.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"
OUTLAW OF THE JUNGLE . . . "Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the great animal painter, Paul Bransom . . . inspired by the leopard's fierce fighting power and relentless hunt for prey which makes him the terror of every beast of the African jungle.

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies ... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

WAGES AND LIVING COSTS.

Living costs have turned upward after a long and disastrous decline. Wholesale food prices advanced 1½ per cent in August. The index number for all wholesale commodity prices moved up from 64.5 in July to 65.7 for the week ended September 10. This compares with an index of 72.1 in August, 1931, and 100 in 1926.

This upturn of prices is regarded in business and industrial circles as one of the most encouraging signs of recovery from the depression. There is a disposition among the working classes, however, to consider the rising cost of living as another calamity added to unemployment and lower wages. Where purchasing power has been cut to the level of meager subsistence, it is quite natural that a workingman's family should view with alarm a general increase in prices. But other factors should be taken into consideration.

A reversal of the downward slide of commodity prices means that the demand for goods and services is gradually increasing. It means that the orgy of liquidation has been checked, and that purchasers are beginning to take advantage of the bargains that are offered. As soon as the upward price trend is definitely established manufacturers will no longer be afraid to go ahead with their plans for normal operation. Higher prices mean smaller losses or greater profits, and consequently more work with better pay. Labor has everything to gain from a steady and moderate advance in commodity values.

There is considerable encouragement for the workingman in the fact that the increase in commodity prices is not yet reflected in the retail cost of merchandise. If the present trend continues, of course, retail prices must also advance. In due time, however, wages may be expected to follow, thus restoring a more reasonable equilibrium. Workingmen do not object to paying higher prices when work is available and wages are adequate.

It is unfortunate that wages have a tendency to decline even after prices turn upward. This may be inevitable, since wages decline much more slowly than prices after a period of hard times sets in. But there will be powerful forces at work to adjust wage scales in accordance with rising commodity prices. Manufacturers realize that they can not operate at a profit unless the great body of workingmen are able to purchase their products. Purchasing power for the worker and his family is more essential to prosperity in the United States than in any other country. Industry as a whole will doubtless find it good business to operate with very meager profits during the period of adjustment, devoting most of its increased earnings to the restoration of purchasing power.

MAJ. GEN. STEPHAN.

Maj. Gen. Anton Stephan will have a medal bestowed upon him by President Hoover at the White House today in honor of his 45 years' continuous military service to the United States. Gen. Stephan's military career goes back to 1887, when with boyish pride, he enlisted in the "Ordway Rifles," using a broomstick for a gun in drill formation, and wearing a uniform composed of cast-off Civil War clothing. Gen. Stephan is of French descent, and was born at sea while his parents were en route to the United States.

In July, 1887, he was known as Private Stephan. He was soon given the noncommissioned officer's rank of Corporal, which was followed by his promotion to Sergeant within a year. He was commissioned a Lieutenant in 1898, but at the outbreak of the Spanish American War he dropped back to Sergeant. Twelve years after joining the Fourth Battalion, District National Guard, he was commissioned a Major. He served on the Mexican border as Lieutenant Colonel from June 29, 1916, to March 12, 1917. He then saw active service in the World War, where he trained men in France to participate in the action on the front lines. Approximately 500,000 men passed through Col. Stephan's various commands while he was overseas.

He was promoted to the rank of Brigadier General on April 26, 1920, at which time he was made Commander of the District of Columbia National Guard. He was made Major General on July 31, 1923, and given command of the Twenty-ninth Division, which is composed of the National Guard of Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia, and a heavy artillery regiment from Pennsylvania. Maj. Gen. Stephan has been a most efficient commander and has trained thousands of young men thoroughly in the rudiments of modern warfare. The 45 years' service rendered his country was entirely voluntary. Many of the young men of Washington who have benefited by the training received through Maj. Gen. Stephan's instruction will be glad to see this honor bestowed upon him by the President.

DOMINION PREFERENCES.

A preliminary study of the effects on American agriculture of the trade agreements signed at the British imperial conference has been completed by the Department of Agriculture. It concludes that some commodities, chiefly wheat, apples, oranges, grape fruit, raisins, prunes, bacon and ham, will be affected by the tariff preferences granted to the dominions. For the most part the influence of the Ottawa conference on the American farmer will not be far-reaching.

Wheat is the most important item. About 5 per cent of the American wheat crop goes to the United Kingdom. Dominion wheat was granted 4½ cents preference at Ottawa, which makes it probable that more Canadian and Australian wheat will be consumed in Britain in the future. Yet Britain now obtains only about 40 per cent of her wheat from the dominions, which means that a considerable volume will still be imported from the United States, Argentina and other countries outside of the British Commonwealth.

It should be noted that Great Britain is not the only market for American wheat. If Canada and Australia sell more wheat to Britain, they will have less to sell to other wheat-importing countries. American grain will meet more formidable competition in Liverpool, but less competition in other foreign markets. In this connection the Department of Agriculture reports:

> Since the dominions export more than enough wheat to supply the entire import requirements of the United Kingdom, they would still have to compete in other markets with the United States, Argentina and other exporting countries.
> Under these circumstances the effect of the new preference should be not so much to depress the prices received by growers in the United States and Argentina, as to check the competition of non-empire wheat in the United Kingdom and to increase it in other markets.

The disadvantages imposed upon American farmers by this agreement will be measured by the extent to which the dominions increase their wheat production and not by the extent to which they transfer their business from foreign countries to Great Britain. In view of the present low prices for wheat and in view of the fact that any increased production must be sold in the world market, where competition remains the same, it is doubtful whether the dominions will substantially increase their production.

Apple growers suffer a more direct handicap, but Great Britain will doubtless continue to buy the better grade of American apples. American raisin exporters have been able to hold their own in spite of empire preferences, and there is no reason why they should not continue to do so. It is doubtful whether the dominions can displace American grape fruit. The British market is of only secondary importance to the American orange grower.

Farmers have no cause to worry over the Ottawa agreements. Some adjustments will be necessary here and there, and exports may be curtailed in some instances. If the British preference system should teach American farmers to give more heed to the requirements of the domestic market and to rely less upon exports, it would be a boon to agriculture in this country.

ARMS EQUALITY DENIED.

Great Britain has administered a caustic rebuke to Germany for agitating the question of equality in armaments at a time when the world is struggling to throw off the stupor of depression and to bring about general disarmament. Germany is piqued by the "unfriendly form" of the British reply, but in most other parts of the world the statement was enthusiastically received, because it puts a new spark of life into the disarmament conference.

Germany's demand for arms equality at this time can not be understood without consideration of economic and political conditions within that country. President von Hindenburg and his militaristic government are making a desperate effort to save Germany from Hitlerism. The government has doubtless gone beyond its own inclinations in pushing the armaments demand forward at this time in order to thwart the Hitlerites, who demand complete abrogation of the Treaty of Versailles. The government has been driven to extreme measures of foreign policy to save itself.

Great Britain bluntly informs Germany that the delay in world disarmament gives that country no right to disavow its agreement in the Treaty of Versailles. That section of the treaty which limits Germany's armaments, according to the British view, is designed to "render possible initiation of a general limitation of armaments of all nations". But the disarmament of Germany was not conditional upon the disarmament of the rest of the world. Failure of the conference at Geneva will not release Germany from the obligations of that treaty.

The effect of the British note is to throw the entire question of German national defense back into the disarmament conference. Neither France nor Britain will consider the appeal of Germany aside from the general disarmament problem. It is evident from the British statement that when the conference reassembles at Geneva Britain will apply renewed pressure for a general reduction of arms to forestall Germany's demand for an increase. "It would, indeed, be a tragic paradox", said the statement, "if the outcome of the first disarmament conference was an increase in armaments and the actual rearming of any state".

In spite of its firm denial of Germany's demands, the British note admits the moral right of Germany to insist upon general disarmament. The Reich can not be expected to remain docile while all other countries increase their weapons of war. By bringing the issue forward at this time Germany has thrust the disarmament problem upon the world with renewed emphasis. That country maintains that the issue was raised only by the negative character of the action taken at Geneva.

When the conference reopens, Germany will be in a strategic position to bring pressure upon those governments that are thwarting disarmament. This advantage would, of course, be lost if Germany should carry out her threat to withdraw from the conference. France would then be adamant to disarmament. France might be willing to make some concessions to avoid an open breach over the disarmament provisions of the Versailles treaty. But if Germany is recalcitrant all hope of an early reduction of arms will be lost.

THE SAFETY EXPERTS.

Early next month Washington is to entertain the twenty-first annual Safety Congress. There are to be many exhibitions and demonstrations as well as expert advice from which the National Capital should benefit. This city does not enjoy the reputation it should have for the care of residents and the many visitors within its gates. Its homicide record is bad, and it is surprising that traffic fatalities average twice as numerous among given numbers of the population as they do in New York City.

This is one of the matters which the safety specialists will consider. Their program contemplates making a practical laboratory of the city streets, to study unusual traffic hazards and examine some of the unique methods of control. The delegates are advised that Washington provides exceptional opportunity for the study of traffic, since it has peculiar street layouts, requiring special treatment, with scores of unusual intersection problems.

The engineering angle of traffic accident prevention is to receive special attention, and the visiting authorities will make a tour of the city for traffic observation and demonstration under the guidance of District officials. The progress of safety education in the schools will be explained by Commissioner of Education William John Cooper. One gratifying result of this work has been the notable decrease in the number of automobile accidents involving children, even in the face of a growing number of general accidents.

The Safety Congress is deeply interested in the adoption of uniform traffic laws throughout the country, believing that removal of the confusion due to so many conflicting rules regarding licensing and traffic regulation would add greatly to the efficiency of other safety measures. The deliberations of the congress are by no means confined to traffic safety, but extend to many activities. Safety in the water and life-saving will be exemplified, factory hazards explained, the danger of dust explosions in industry will be demonstrated.

Secretary Doak says that Gov. Roosevelt took five months to learn that President Hoover's railroad policy had benefited 30,000,000 people. Don't chide the man. The fact that he learned, and made acknowledgment, is to his credit.

TESTS FOR DRIVERS

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

On a muggy, early October afternoon two years ago the writer sat in on a conference of motor vehicle commissioners during which was discussed the question of psychological tests for those seeking motor vehicle operators' permits. Apart from the spokesman of the occasion, an enthusiastic advocate of the new deal in testing drivers, the attitude of a majority of the officials in the room seemed to be respectful, nothing more. Certainly there was no enthusiastic response to the idea that by exploring the minds of motorists the traffic authority might trace down the real causes of highway accidents.

One by one, since that time, the State motor vehicle officials who composed that audience have become converts, until today only a few die-hards stand outside the fold.

Witnessing these conversions, proponents of applying a mental yardstick to would-be motorists have become convinced that it merely is a matter of time until such a course will be followed. And the time, they believe, is destined to be shorter than the innocent motorist expects.

The reasons for this change of heart on the part of the men whose life is an endless quest for street and highway safety are not far to seek. Accident statistics are more thoroughgoing and truly reflective of actual conditions than ever before. For one thing, they reveal that the erstwhile tendency to "estimate" the mechanical factor as causing from 8 to 10 per cent of all motor mishaps was giving the driver entirely too much of a break. Moreover, the assumption that road, weather and other conditions external to the actual handling of the car controls accounted for another 15 per cent also is shown to be an overestimate.

The cold fact is that more complete and carefully analyzed accident data tend to support the theory that from 85 to 90 per cent of all mishaps are directly traceable to the human element.

Viewing this unbiased evidence, then, the motor vehicle official is coming around to the theory that he had better begin to go into the mental qualifications of those who operate automobiles. He has a strong feeling that the difference between a safe driver and an unsafe one will turn out to be some quality resident in their respective mentalities. So the driver psychological test movement gathers momentum daily.

There is nothing darkly portentous in the situation. The driver can rest assured that no faddist is afoot to force him to acquire a doctor's degree before he can enjoy the privilege of motor car ownership and use. Advocates of the new procedure are most emphatic in making the point that there is a vast difference between a psychological test and a survey of one's educational attainments.

The average driver is expected to support the idea once he comprehends it, for it means that an effort is going to be made to eliminate the unfit individual whose actions jeopardize all road users.

The Democratic "Case."

POST HASTE.

The great nonpartisan issue now is the demand to know how Gov. Roosevelt stands on the bonus.

At least Gandhi's death fast will be as consistent as his opposition to representation of the "untouchables" in the Indian congress.

Gov. Roosevelt finds that R. F. C. loans to the railroads really benefit 30,000,000 Americans, but so far as any acknowledgment from him is concerned, loans to banks are for the exclusive advantage of the directors.

"Half as many liquor arrests in Virginia as in Washington." But the Capital hopes to do better.

The old boys of the G. A. R. are meeting at Springfield, Ill., for their sixty-sixth annual encampment without demanding a bonus.

Peru and Colombia have more ocean ports than money to improve them, so they threaten to fight over one at the headwaters of the Amazon.

Vitamin A, worth $11,000 a pound, is now to be produced so abundantly you can use it for breakfast food. It will cure almost everything.

Great Britain opposes Germany's demand for increased armament, doubtless understanding perfectly well that Berlin is trying to force French reductions.

The latest bonus champion is our dramatic friend Dr. Sirovich, who laments that Congress is not in session so he could move impeachment proceedings for the way the bonus army is talked about.

The value of long-term loans from the Home Loan Banks is ably explained by Mr. Bodfish, and this is no typographical error.

Chileans institute charges against Carlos Davila to test whether he is guilty of a crime in usurping the powers of a duly constituted government. He is if he fails.

Percy Grainger claims that jazz is now approaching the status of classical music. If that helps to keep it off the radio, make it ultraclassic.

Three State primaries today will probably elevate the lame duck flock in the December session of Congress to well over threescore.

Why doesn't Norman Thomas like the Roosevelt suggestions? The governor certainly couldn't put them into effect unless the Government took over the railroads and the farms.

Latest estimates show that China has a population of 474,000,000. Gosh, and all our arguments have been based on only 400,000,000.

QUESTIONING.

Something seemed to whisper as I stood upon the land
And watched the white-capped waves
come in to die upon the sand:
"There's not a rock out yonder where
the great blue waters play
But has experienced more of life than the oldest man today.

"What is the process working? Why should the waters move?
What is it sky and earth and stream
and stars were made to prove?
And why is man so feeble, and granite
made so strong?
And why must pain be suffered if life
is not for long?"

There by the blue lake standing a great rock seemed to say:
"Man still will come to question ten
thousand years away,
But all I've learned I'll tell you. It can not be for naught
That white waves breaking on a ledge
can stir man's deepest thought."

When You Pledge Yourself to a Leader, You Must Surrender the Right to Think.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN you are very strong, life's problems are simple and their solution obvious.

There are but two kinds of people in the world—good ones and bad ones—and the classifying is done by the good, of which you are one.

Those who dress and act and believe as you do are nice people, and those who are unlike you are heathen or trash or limbs of satan.

Every moot question or controversy or cause has two sides, one wholly right and the other wholly wrong. The right side, which you espouse, enjoys a monopoly of virtue, honor, logic and heaven's blessing, and the wrong side is supported by the perverse, the degenerate, the stupid and the devil.

If your mind reaches the limit of its growth while you are yet in your early teens, years and experience add nothing to the complexity of life and its problems and the beautiful simplicity of your existence never is disturbed by a doubt or an idea.

But if your mental stature increases with the years, and a passion for truth overcomes your pride of opinion, you begin to see through the greatness of history's great leaders.

They were made great by their followers—illiterate and stupid masses that obeyed orders and asked no questions.

You begin to understand why people follow with less docility as they increase in knowledge and understanding.

The problems of life are no longer simple. You discover that great and good men make stupid blunders; that motives always are mixed; that neither side has a monopoly of righteousness or of reason; that good people are a little bad and few bad people wholly devoid of good; that goodness is made to serve evil and evil harnessed to do good.

You have arrived at the age of discretion. You can say with Confucius: "When I hear words that are distasteful to my mind, I must inquire whether they be not right; when I hear words that accord with my own views, I must inquire whether they be not wrong."

You have learned to think for yourself, which is the final proof of intelligence.

And this is the sign of your intelligence—that you are no longer a blind follower. The world has gained an adult mind and lost a swallow-it-whole partisan.

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Roosevelt Magic.
Boston Transcript.

The politics, the logic, and the mental acumen of Gov. Roosevelt's speech bidding for the farmers' support are all concentrated into the following paragraph:

First: The plan must provide for the producer of staple surplus commodities, such as wheat, cotton, corn (in the form of hogs) and tobacco, a tariff benefit over world prices which is equivalent to the benefit given by the tariff to industrial products. This differential benefit must be so applied that the increase in farm income, purchasing and debt paying power will not stimulate further production.

That is to say, the farmer is to be presented with higher prices for his products by means of increased tariff protection on them, but this tariff must be so constructed that the farmer must not be encouraged to produce crops that are advantaged by the higher prices.

Here is the whole political and economic philosophy of the Democratic candidate for the Presidency. Increased appropriations with lower taxes; improved education with less expenditure for schools; agricultural land devoted to forests without a decrease of the fields; war without gunpowder; eating your cake and having it too; and finally, better prices without increased production.

Al Smith on the Veterans' Issue.
Kansas City Star.

With agitation Nation-wide over excessive taxes and governmental costs, the questions raised by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith in the Saturday Evening Post article become strikingly pertinent. Mr. Smith directs particular attention to veteran expenditures. These already are approaching $1,000,000,000 a year, an enormous sum, representing nearly one-fourth the total Government budget. Yet there is the alarming prospect that, under existing legislation, the total outlay for these same purposes will have reached $23,500,000,000 by 1945.

Can the country afford such a drain upon its resources? Mr. Smith stresses the justice in providing for those veterans whose disabilities are related directly to war service, also in adequate care of their dependents. These, he says, "should be provided for to the limit of the country's ability." The doubt and misgiving expressed have to do with others, to abuses that have arisen in grants to those who can have no legitimate claim on the basis of service.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Prevention of Abuses in Liquor Traffic After Repeal Is Provided For in Republican Plan, Says Pennsylvanian.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Republican party is receiving great deal of unnecessary criticism which would, in many cases be praise instead, if a logical explanation were given the people that would clear up the fog of misunderstanding in regard to the party's "liquor plank."

If this had been done in the first place it never would have been referred to by the odious term "straddle" plank. As a matter of fact it is far from being anything of the sort, although many, both wets and drys, have honestly concluded that it looked that way, and have been denouncing the party, and President Hoover in particular, for what they consider an attempt to avoid making a decision on an issue which ought, in all conscience, to be squarely met.

The Republican party has not maintained its almost continuous service to our country since Lincoln by failing to meet issues. Let us consider for a moment just how it met this one.

The administration has certainly made it plain that it does not favor the principle of legalizing, under any circumstances, the old-time liquor racket with its horde of irresponsible private liquor sellers.

Now, if the eighteenth amendment were merely repealed no State would have a constitutional right, if it permitted the sale of liquor at all, to deprive any individual from setting up in the liquor business. The State might require the individual to obtain a license, regulate his closing hours, &c., but it could not limit his sales, prevent him from selling habitual drunks, or prevent several other things would would be a factor in any decent control method. The liquor dealer could call his place of business a saloon, a grog shop or an alcohol emporium or anything that suited his fancy.

But worst of all, with the small private dealer in the liquor business, with an incentive for private profit, it would be next to impossible to prevent large interstate shipments into dry territory through regular channels of commerce.

In order to prevent the reappearance of all these old troubles which were so common before national prohibition, the individual would have to be deprived of certain rights by constitutional amendment, so that the Federal Government could either directly or through an exclusive Government controlled corporation, make and sell liquor to such States as did not have State prohibition.

These States in turn would sell it only through State agencies or State-controlled limited dividend corporations, the object being to keep out unlimited profit as an incentive to the business, and to keep liquor out of interstate commerce.

It is all very simple now to shout "straight repeal," and then mutter something about "no saloon," but when the time comes to actually vote on the question the "wets" would have little chance of success unless at the same time some legally sound constitutional provision were made to take care of what comes after repeal.

The Republican party, two weeks before the assembly of the Democratic convention, pledged itself to a plan of revision and resubmission that met this vexing question honestly, and provided for the development of a plan as outlined above. It not only provides for "repeal," but also for after repeal.

I therefore consider the Republican plank to be, instead of a "straddle," a masterpiece of foresighted statesmanship. In the name of decency and justice why not give credit where credit is due?

Business Uncertainty Bad Enough, Without Threat of Bonus if Roosevelt Is Elected.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Democratic platform definitely pledges 25 per cent of reduction of Federal expense. We are paying $1,000,000,000 a year or 25 cents on every dollar of taxes for veterans. The question, can you compel Roosevelt to come into the open to promise that if elected he will not only fight against the bonus but also drastically cut veterans' appropriations?

There is grief enough in business circles without this uncertainty as to Roosevelt's stand on the bonus. If he is against that grab he should say so. Hoover's position is well known.

Naturalized Citizen Who Voted for Smith Pays High Tribute to Hoover.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Being right is better than being President. But being right and President at the same time is the greatest honor that can come to any man.

Against the clamor of millions of misguided, unthinking pretenders to their country's weal, Hoover has stood and still stands firm in the rightness of his cause for all the people, as against those who think only for themselves, regardless of consequences. Hoover's name (and I voted for Smith) will surely be recorded in our history as worthy to stand beside the very first who led the land in time of storm and stress, says an American by choice since 1872.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I can remember presidential elections as far back as that of Garfield, and it seems to me that there is too much being said in defense of Mr. Hoover. His record stands for itself; he does not need defense. Roosevelt should be smoked out on the bonus question. The Republicans should put up an offensive fight. They have always done so in the past.

COMMODITY PRICES' INDEX GOES UPWARD

Gain Over July 0.7 Per Cent, but Still Below August of Last Year.

(Associated Press.)

An upward spurt in the index of wholesale commodity prices, led by the returns on farm products, was reported yesterday in the Labor Department's analysis of August trends.

The gain for last month over July, reduced to the weighted index of 784 commodities, amounted to 0.7, going from July's figure of 64.5 to 65.2. The farm products group, however, registered a 2½ per cent gain. A similar boost was recorded by textile products, while both the food group and hides and skins showed a 2½ per cent gain.

Of the total list of commodities analyzed, 213 showed gains for the month and 436 remained stationary, while 135 decreased. Despite the net gain for the month, however, the comparison with August of last year showed a decrease of 9½ per cent. The index figure of 100 represents the average of 1926 prices.

Farm products gaining were barley, corn, rye, wheat, calves, poultry, cotton, eggs, hay and peanuts. Increasing food prices recorded were for butter, cheese, rye and wheat flour, fresh and cured beef and cured pork, veal, coffee, lard, sugar and most canned vegetables.

Other commodity classes showing an upward tendency included metals and metal products.

Auto Accident Is Basis Of Suits for $50,000

The Sterrett Operating Service, Alvin C. Pettit and Raymond B. Roberts were each named defendants in $50,000 damage suits filed yesterday in the District Supreme Court by William Jefferys, of New York.

Jefferys charged he was seriously hurt when an automobile belonging to Pettit, and operated by Roberts in the business of the Sterrett company, struck him at Delaware avenue and C street southwest last February.

Miners and Operators In Pay Parley Deadlock

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—The lengthy conference between representatives of the United Mine Workers of America and representatives of anthracite operators was adjourned late today until tomorrow without agreement on proposed wage reductions. A brief statement, issued at conclusion of today's session, merely reported that "no conclusions were arrived at."

"The discussion of today's session," the statement continued, "was upon the comparative wage scales in the industries, annual earnings, production of commodities and other matters relating to these specific subjects."

Pope Bars Veterans; Slap at Mussolini Seen

Vatican City, Rome, Sept. 19 (U.P.). The conflict between Pope Pius and Premier Benito Mussolini was believed renewed today when the Pope refused to receive any callers in audience. His decision was understood to have been inspired by the Vatican's unwillingness to receive veterans of the Bersaglieri corps, whose war feats were commemorated yesterday with the dedication of a monument.

The monument was unveiled by the king and Premier Mussolini near the spot where the Bersaglieri corps entered Rome in September, 1870, to wrest temporal power from the Popes.

Italian League Official At Danzig 3 Years Dies

MOTHER OF GARNER SINKING GRADUALLY

Three Sons and Two Daughters at Bedside; Food Refused by Pet Poodle.

Detroit, Tex., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—The old colonial house of the Garners was in gloom tonight as its mistress, Mrs. Sarah Jane Garner, lay critically ill, her life slowly ebbing away.

That gloom had affected the entire household, from her vice presidential nominee son, John Nance, down to the elderly patient's pet poodle, Fluffy.

Late today physicians announced there had been no change in the pioneer woman's condition. In a morning report, however, it was said she had weakened considerably during the night and seemed to be gradually nearing the end. Her temperature remained high, 103.4 degrees.

Mrs. Garner's greatest desire had been to live to see her eldest son elected and inaugurated Vice President of the United States. Her present critical condition was brought about by a general toxic poisoning, greatly aggravated by her age. She is 81.

All members of her immediate family, three sons and two daughters, were at her bedside. The last to arrive, John Nance, hurried here yesterday from Washington, where he had gone from his Uvalde, Tex., home, to aid in the Democratic presidential campaign.

Mr. Garner said there was no hope for his mother. "My mother can not recover," he said. "It's just a matter of time now."

Today it became known that Mrs. Garner's pet poodle, of which she was extremely fond, had refused to eat since its mistress had become sick abed, and spends most of its time lying beside or under her bed.

CIRCUS ACTS GIVEN AT ST. ELIZABETHS

Hunt Show Closes Stand of Week With Performance at Hospital.

More than 2,500 patients and employes at St. Elizabeths Hospital yesterday morning gathered on the Prospect Hill in the grounds and witnessed a performance of Hunt's Three-Ring Circus.

Many of the patients who enjoyed the show were of the type habitually confined under attendants' eyes. They were accompanied in long lines to the arena of the circus by their attendants.

Mrs. Evelyn Hursh, recreation director for the Red Cross at the hospital for the mentally diseased, pronounced the affair a complete success. She said it was the first time in her fourteen years' experience at the institution that such a large number of persons had been accommodated at an entertainment and that it was the first time within her memory that a circus had visited the hospital.

The patients at St. Elizabeths gave the circus performers much applause. Frank Portillo, veteran clown, came in for many sallies of laughter at his wisecracks and antics.

The Hunt show, which has entertained with the sponsorship of The Washington Post more than 500 orphans during a week's stay here, closed its stand here last night.

$10,425 Suit Is Filed Against Blaine Mallan

Claiming he was entitled to a commission of $10,425 for securing a lease agreement on the Army and Navy Hotel, E. V. R. Sweet, 3625 Eighteenth street northwest, yesterday, in District Supreme Court, filed suit for that amount from Blaine Mallan, an attorney, of the Transportation Building.

Sweet contended he had arranged for the signing of the lease for a ten-year period. He asserted Mallan first agreed to the lease and then refused to sign it.

WAGES AND LIVING COSTS.

Living costs have turned upward after a long and disastrous decline. Wholesale food prices advanced 1½ per cent in August. The index number for all wholesale commodity prices moved up from 64.5 in July to 65.7 for the week ended September 10. This compares with an index of 72.1 in August, 1931, and 100 in 1926.

This upturn of prices is regarded in business and industrial circles as one of the most encouraging signs of recovery from the depression. There is a disposition among the working classes, however, to consider the rising cost of living as another calamity added to unemployment and lower wages. Where purchasing power has been cut to the level of meager subsistence, it is quite natural that a workingman's family should view with alarm a general increase in prices. But other factors should be taken into consideration.

A reversal of the downward slide of commodity prices means that the demand for goods and services is gradually increasing. It means that the orgy of liquidation has been checked, and that purchasers are beginning to take advantage of the bargains that are offered. As soon as the upward price trend is definitely established manufacturers will no longer be afraid to go ahead with their plans for normal operation. Higher prices mean smaller losses or greater profits, and consequently more work with better pay. Labor has everything to gain from a steady and moderate advance in commodity values.

There is considerable encouragement for the workingman in the fact that the increase in commodity prices is not yet reflected in the retail cost of merchandise. If the present trend continues, of course, retail prices must also advance. In due time, however, wages may be expected to follow, thus restoring a more reasonable equilibrium. Workingmen do not object to paying higher prices when work is available and wages are adequate.

It is unfortunate that wages have a tendency to decline even after prices turn upward. This may be inevitable, since wages decline much more slowly than prices after a period of hard times sets in. But there will be powerful forces at work to adjust wage scales in accordance with rising commodity prices. Manufacturers realize that they can not operate at a profit unless the great body of workingmen are able to purchase their products. Purchasing power for the worker and his family is more essential to prosperity in the United States than in any other country. Industry as a whole will doubtless find it good business to operate with very meager profits during the period of adjustment, devoting most of its increased earnings to the restoration of purchasing power.

MAJ. GEN. STEPHAN.

Maj. Gen. Anton Stephan will have a medal bestowed upon him by President Hoover at the White House today in honor of his 45 years' continuous military service to the United States. Gen. Stephan's military career goes back to 1887, when with boyish pride, he enlisted in the "Ordway Rifles," using a broomstick for a gun in drill formation, and wearing a uniform composed of cast-off Civil War clothing. Gen. Stephan is of French descent, and was born at sea while his parents were en route to the United States.

In July, 1887, he was known as Private Stephan. He was soon given the noncommissioned officer's rank of Corporal, which was followed by his promotion to Sergeant within a year. He was commissioned a Lieutenant in 1898, but at the outbreak of the Spanish American War he dropped back to Sergeant. Twelve years after joining the Fourth Battalion, District National Guard, he was commissioned a Major. He served on the Mexican border as Lieutenant Colonel from June 29, 1916, to March 12, 1917. He then saw active service in the World War, where he trained men in France to participate in the action on the front lines. Approximately 500,000 men passed through Col. Stephan's various commands while he was overseas.

He was promoted to the rank of Brigadier General on April 26, 1920, at which time he was made Commander of the District of Columbia National Guard. He was made Major General on July 31, 1923, and given command of the Twenty-ninth Division, which is composed of the National Guard of Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia, and a heavy artillery regiment from Pennsylvania. Maj. Gen. Stephan has been a most efficient commander and has trained thousands of young men thoroughly in the rudiments of modern warfare. The 45 years' service rendered his country was entirely voluntary. Many of the young men of Washington who have benefited by the training received through Maj. Gen. Stephan's instruction will be glad to see this honor bestowed upon him by the President.

DOMINION PREFERENCES.

A preliminary study of the effects on American agriculture of the trade agreements signed at the British imperial conference has been completed by the Department of Agriculture. It concludes that some commodities, chiefly wheat, apples, oranges, grape fruit, raisins, prunes, bacon and ham, will be affected by the tariff preferences granted to the dominions. For the most part the influence of the Ottawa conference on the American farmer will not be far-reaching.

Wheat is the most important item. About 5 per cent of the American wheat crop goes to the United Kingdom. Dominion wheat was granted 4½ cents preference at Ottawa, which makes it probable that more Canadian and Australian wheat will be consumed in Britain in the future. Yet Britain now obtains only about 40 per cent of her wheat from the dominions, which means that a considerable volume will still be imported from the United States, Argentina and other countries outside of the British Commonwealth.

It should be noted that Great Britain is not the only market for American wheat. If Canada and Australia sell more wheat to Britain, they will have less to sell to other wheat-importing countries. American grain will meet more formidable competition in Liverpool, but less competition in other foreign markets. In this connection the Department of Agriculture reports:

> Since the dominions export more than enough wheat to supply the entire import requirements of the United Kingdom, they would still have to compete in other markets with the United States, Argentina and other exporting countries.
> Under these circumstances the effect of the new preference should be not so much to depress the prices received by growers in the United States and Argentina, as to check the competition of non-empire wheat in the United Kingdom and to increase it in other markets.

The disadvantages imposed upon American farmers by this agreement will be measured by the extent to which the dominions increase their wheat production and not by the extent to which they transfer their business from foreign countries to Great Britain. In view of the present low prices for wheat and in view of the fact that any increased production must be sold in the world market, where competition remains the same, it is doubtful whether the dominions will substantially increase their production.

Apple growers suffer a more direct handicap, but Great Britain will doubtless continue to buy the better grade of American apples. American raisin exporters have been able to hold their own in spite of empire preferences, and there is no reason why they should not continue to do so. It is doubtful whether the dominions can displace American grape fruit. The British market is of only secondary importance to the American orange grower.

Farmers have no cause to worry over the Ottawa agreements. Some adjustments will be necessary here and there, and exports may be curtailed in some instances. If the British preference system should teach American farmers to give more heed to the requirements of the domestic market and to rely less upon exports, it would be a boon to agriculture in this country.

ARMS EQUALITY DENIED.

Great Britain has administered a caustic rebuke to Germany for agitating the question of equality in armaments at a time when the world is struggling to throw off the stupor of depression and to bring about general disarmament. Germany is piqued by the "unfriendly form" of the British reply, but in most other parts of the world the statement was enthusiastically received, because it puts a new spark of life into the disarmament conference.

Germany's demand for arms equality at this time can not be understood without consideration of economic and political conditions within that country. President von Hindenburg and his militaristic government are making a desperate effort to save Germany from Hitlerism. The government has doubtless gone beyond its own inclinations in pushing the armaments demand forward at this time in order to thwart the Hitlerites, who demand complete abrogation of the Treaty of Versailles. The government has been driven to extreme measures of foreign policy to save itself.

Great Britain bluntly informs Germany that the delay in world disarmament gives that country no right to disavow its agreement in the Treaty of Versailles. That section of the treaty which limits Germany's armaments, according to the British view, is designed to "render possible initiation of a general limitation of armaments of all nations". But the disarmament of Germany was not conditional upon the disarmament of the rest of the world. Failure of the conference at Geneva will not release Germany from the obligations of that treaty.

The effect of the British note is to throw the entire question of German national defense back into the disarmament conference. Neither France nor Britain will consider the appeal of Germany aside from the general disarmament problem. It is evident from the British statement that when the conference reassembles at Geneva Britain will apply renewed pressure for a general reduction of arms to forestall Germany's demand for an increase. "It would, indeed, be a tragic paradox", said the statement, "if the outcome of the first disarmament conference was an increase in armaments and the actual rearming of any state".

In spite of its firm denial of Germany's demands, the British note admits the moral right of Germany to insist upon general disarmament. The Reich can not be expected to remain docile while all other countries increase their weapons of war. By bringing the issue forward at this time Germany has thrust the disarmament problem upon the world with renewed emphasis. That country maintains that the issue was raised only by the negative character of the action taken at Geneva.

When the conference reopens, Germany will be in a strategic position to bring pressure upon those governments that are thwarting disarmament. This advantage would, of course, be lost if Germany should carry out her threat to withdraw from the conference. France would then be adamant to disarmament. France might be willing to make some concessions to avoid an open breach over the disarmament provisions of the Versailles treaty. But if Germany is recalcitrant all hope of an early reduction of arms will be lost.

THE SAFETY EXPERTS.

Early next month Washington is to entertain the twenty-first annual Safety Congress. There are to be many exhibitions and demonstrations as well as expert advice from which the National Capital should benefit. This city does not enjoy the reputation it should have for the care of residents and the many visitors within its gates. Its homicide record is bad, and it is surprising that traffic fatalities average twice as numerous among given numbers of the population as they do in New York City.

This is one of the matters which the safety specialists will consider. Their program contemplates making a practical laboratory of the city streets, to study unusual traffic hazards and examine some of the unique methods of control. The delegates are advised that Washington provides exceptional opportunity for the study of traffic, since it has peculiar street layouts, requiring special treatment, with scores of unusual intersection problems.

The engineering angle of traffic accident prevention is to receive special attention, and the visiting authorities will make a tour of the city for traffic observation and demonstration under the guidance of District officials. The progress of safety education in the schools will be explained by Commissioner of Education William John Cooper. One gratifying result of this work has been the notable decrease in the number of automobile accidents involving children, even in the face of a growing number of general accidents.

The Safety Congress is deeply interested in the adoption of uniform traffic laws throughout the country, believing that removal of the confusion due to so many conflicting rules regarding licensing and traffic regulation would add greatly to the efficiency of other safety measures. The deliberations of the congress are by no means confined to traffic safety, but extend to many activities. Safety in the water and life-saving will be exemplified, factory hazards explained, the danger of dust explosions in industry will be demonstrated.

Secretary Doak says that Gov. Roosevelt took five months to learn that President Hoover's railroad policy had benefited 30,000,000 people. Don't chide the man. The fact that he learned, and made acknowledgment, is to his credit.

TESTS FOR DRIVERS

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

On a muggy, early October afternoon two years ago the writer sat in on a conference of motor vehicle commissioners during which was discussed the question of psychological tests for those seeking motor vehicle operators' permits. Apart from the spokesman of the occasion, an enthusiastic advocate of the new deal in testing drivers, the attitude of a majority of the officials in the room seemed to be respectful, nothing more. Certainly there was no enthusiastic response to the idea that by exploring the minds of motorists the traffic authority might trace down the real causes of highway accidents.

One by one, since that time, the State motor vehicle officials who composed that audience have become converts, until today only a few die-hards stand outside the fold.

Witnessing these conversions, proponents of applying a mental yardstick to would-be motorists have become convinced that it merely is a matter of time until such a course will be followed. And the time, they believe, is destined to be shorter than the innocent motorist expects.

The reasons for this change of heart on the part of the men whose life is an endless quest for street and highway safety are not far to seek. Accident statistics are more thoroughgoing and truly reflective of actual conditions than ever before. For one thing, they reveal that the erstwhile tendency to "estimate" the mechanical factor as causing from 8 to 10 per cent of all motor mishaps was giving the driver entirely too much of a break. Moreover, the assumption that road, weather and other conditions external to the actual handling of the car controls accounted for another 15 per cent also is shown to be an overestimate.

The cold fact is that more complete and carefully analyzed accident data tend to support the theory that from 85 to 90 per cent of all mishaps are directly traceable to the human element.

Viewing this unbiased evidence, then, the motor vehicle official is coming around to the theory that he had better begin to go into the mental qualifications of those who operate automobiles. He has a strong feeling that the difference between a safe driver and an unsafe one will turn out to be some quality resident in their respective mentalities. So the driver psychological test movement gathers momentum daily.

There is nothing darkly portentous in the situation. The driver can rest assured that no faddist is afoot to force him to acquire a doctor's degree before he can enjoy the privilege of motor car ownership and use. Advocates of the new procedure are most emphatic in making the point that there is a vast difference between a psychological test and a survey of one's educational attainments.

The average driver is expected to support the idea once he comprehends it, for it means that an effort is going to be made to eliminate the unfit individual whose actions jeopardize all road users.

The Democratic "Case."

POST HASTE.

The great nonpartisan issue now is the demand to know how Gov. Roosevelt stands on the bonus.

At least Gandhi's death fast will be as consistent as his opposition to representation of the "untouchables" in the Indian congress.

Gov. Roosevelt finds that R. F. C. loans to the railroads really benefit 30,000,000 Americans, but so far as any acknowledgment from him is concerned, loans to banks are for the exclusive advantage of the directors.

"Half as many liquor arrests in Virginia as in Washington." But the Capital hopes to do better.

The old boys of the G. A. R. are meeting at Springfield, Ill., for their sixty-sixth annual encampment without demanding a bonus.

Peru and Colombia have more ocean ports than money to improve them, so they threaten to fight over one at the headwaters of the Amazon.

Vitamin A, worth $11,000 a pound, is now to be produced so abundantly you can use it for breakfast food. It will cure almost everything.

Great Britain opposes Germany's demand for increased armament, doubtless understanding perfectly well that Berlin is trying to force French reductions.

The latest bonus champion is our dramatic friend Dr. Sirovich, who laments that Congress is not in session so he could move impeachment proceedings for the way the bonus army is talked about.

The value of long-term loans from the Home Loan Banks is ably explained by Mr. Bodfish, and this is no typographical error.

Chileans institute charges against Carlos Davila to test whether he is guilty of a crime in usurping the powers of a duly constituted government. He is if he fails.

Percy Grainger claims that jazz is now approaching the status of classical music. If that helps to keep it off the radio, make it ultraclassic.

Three State primaries today will probably elevate the lame duck flock in the December session of Congress to well over threescore.

Why doesn't Norman Thomas like the Roosevelt suggestions? The governor certainly couldn't put them into effect unless the Government took over the railroads and the farms.

Latest estimates show that China has a population of 474,000,000. Gosh, and all our arguments have been based on only 400,000,000.

QUESTIONING.

Something seemed to whisper as I stood upon the land
And watched the white-capped waves
come in to die upon the sand:
"There's not a rock out yonder where
the great blue waters play
But has experienced more of life than
the oldest man today.

"What is the process working? Why should the waters move?
What is it sky and earth and stream
and stars were made to prove?
And why is man so feeble, and granite
made so strong?
And why must pain be suffered if life
is not for long?"

There by the blue lake standing a
great rock seemed to say:
"Man still will come to question ten
thousand years away,
But all I've learned I'll tell you. It
can not be for naught
That white waves breaking on a ledge
can stir man's deepest thought."

When You Pledge Yourself to a Leader, You Must Surrender the Right to Think.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN you are very strong, life's problems are simple and their solution obvious.

There are but two kinds of people in the world—good ones and bad ones—and the classifying is done by the good, of which you are one.

Those who dress and act and believe as you do are nice people, and those who are unlike you are heathen or trash or limbs of satan.

Every moot question or controversy or cause has two sides, one wholly right and the other wholly wrong. The right side, which you espouse, enjoys a monopoly of virtue, honor, logic and heaven's blessing, and the wrong side is supported by the perverse, the degenerate, the stupid and the devil.

If your mind reaches the limit of its growth while you are yet in your early teens, years and experience add nothing to the complexity of life and its problems and the beautiful simplicity of your existence never is disturbed by a doubt or an idea.

But if your mental stature increases with the years, and a passion for truth overcomes your pride of opinion, you begin to see through the greatness of history's great leaders.

They were made great by their followers—illiterate and stupid masses that obeyed orders and asked no questions.

You begin to understand why people follow with less docility as they increase in knowledge and understanding.

The problems of life are no longer simple. You discover that great and good men make stupid blunders; that motives always are mixed; that neither side has a monopoly of righteousness or of reason; that good people are a little bad and few bad people wholly devoid of good; that goodness is made to serve evil and evil harnessed to do good.

You have arrived at the age of discretion. You can say with Confucius: "When I hear words that are distasteful to my mind, I must inquire whether they be not right; when I hear words that accord with my own views, I must inquire whether they be not wrong."

You have learned to think for yourself, which is the final proof of intelligence.

And this is the sign of your intelligence—that you are no longer a blind follower. The world has gained an adult mind and lost a swallow-it-whole partisan.

PRO AND CON

Roosevelt Magic.

Boston Transcript.

The politics, the logic, and the mental acumen of Gov. Roosevelt's speech bidding for the farmers' support are all concentrated into the following paragraph:

First: The plan must provide for the producer of staple surplus commodities, such as wheat, cotton, corn (in the form of hogs) and tobacco, a tariff benefit over world prices which is equivalent to the benefit given by the tariff to industrial products. This differential benefit must be so applied that the increase in farm income, purchasing and debt paying power will not stimulate further production.

That is to say, the farmer is to be presented with higher prices for his products by means of increased tariff protection on them, but this tariff must be so constructed that the farmer must not be encouraged to produce crops that are advantaged by the higher prices.

Here is the whole political and economic philosophy of the Democratic candidate for the Presidency. Increased appropriations with lower taxes; improved education with less expenditure for schools; agricultural land devoted to forests without a decrease of the fields; war without gunpowder; eating your cake and having it too; and finally, better prices without increased production.

Al Smith on the Veterans' Issue.

Kansas City Star.

With agitation Nation-wide over excessive taxes and governmental costs, the questions raised by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith in the Saturday Evening Post article become strikingly pertinent. Mr. Smith directs particular attention to veteran expenditures. These already are approaching $1,000,000,000 a year, an enormous sum, representing nearly one-fourth the total Government budget. Yet there is the alarming prospect that, under existing legislation, the total outlay for these same purposes will have reached $23,500,000,000 by 1945.

Can the country afford such a drain upon its resources? Mr. Smith stresses the justice in providing for those veterans whose disabilities are related directly to war service, also in adequate care of their dependents. These, he says, "should be provided for to the limit of the country's ability." The doubt and misgiving expressed have to do with others, to abuses that have arisen in grants to those who can have no legitimate claim on the basis of service.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Prevention of Abuses in Liquor Traffic After Repeal Is Provided For in Republican Plan, Says Pennsylvanian.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Republican party is receiving great deal of unnecessary criticism which would, in many cases be prevented instead, if a logical explanation were given the people that would clear up the fog of misunderstanding in regard to the party's "liquor plank."

If this had been done in the first place it never would have been referred to by the odious term "straddle" plank. As a matter of fact it is far from being anything of the sort, although many, both wets and drys, have honestly concluded that it looked that way, and have been denouncing the party, and President Hoover in particular, for what they consider an attempt to avoid making a decision on an issue which ought, in all conscience, to be squarely met.

The Republican party has not maintained its almost continuous service to our country since Lincoln by failing to meet issues. Let us consider for a moment just how it met this one.

The administration has certainly made it plain that it does not favor the principle of legalizing, under any circumstances, the old-time liquor racket with its horde of irresponsible private liquor sellers.

Now, if the eighteenth amendment were merely repealed no State would have a constitutional right, if it permitted the sale of liquor at all, to deprive any individual from setting up in the liquor business. The State might require the individual to obtain a license, regulate his closing hours, &c., but it could not limit his sales, prevent him from selling habitual drunks, or prevent several other things would would be a factor in any decent control method. The liquor dealer could call his place of business a saloon, a grog shop or an alcohol emporium or anything that suited his fancy.

But worst of all, with the small private dealer in the liquor business, with an incentive for private profit, it would be next to impossible to prevent large interstate shipments into dry territory through regular channels of commerce.

In order to prevent the reappearance of all these old troubles which were so common before national prohibition, the individual would have to be deprived of certain rights by constitutional amendment, so that the Federal Government could either directly or through an exclusive Government controlled corporation, make and sell liquor to such States as did not have State prohibition.

These States in turn would sell it only through State agencies or State-controlled limited dividend corporations, the object being to keep out unlimited profit as an incentive to the business, and to keep liquor out of interstate commerce.

It is all very simple now to shout "straight repeal," and then mutter something about "no saloon," but when the time comes to actually vote on the question the "wets" would have little chance of success unless at the same time some legally sound constitutional provision were made to take care of what comes after repeal.

The Republican party, two weeks before the assembly of the Democratic convention, pledged itself to a plan of revision and resubmission that met this vexing question honestly, and provided for the development of a plan as outlined above. It not only provides for "repeal," but also for after repeal.

I therefore consider the Republican plank to be, instead of a "straddle," a masterpiece of foresighted statesmanship. In the name of decency and justice why not give credit where credit is due? R. E. NEWELL.

Business Uncertainty Bad Enough, Without Threat of Bonus if Roosevelt Is Elected.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Democratic platform definitely pledges 25 per cent of reduction of Federal expense. We are paying $1,000,000,000 a year or 25 cents on every dollar of taxes for veterans. The question, can you compel Roosevelt to come into the open to promise that if elected he will not only fight against the bonus but also drastically cut veterans' appropriations?

There is grief enough in business circles without this uncertainty as to Roosevelt's stand on the bonus. If he is against that grab he should say so. Hoover's position is well known.

COMMODITY PRICES' INDEX GOES UPWARD

Gain Over July 0.7 Per Cent, but Still Below August of Last Year.

(Associated Press.)

An upward spurt in the index of wholesale commodity prices, led by the returns on farm products, was reported yesterday in the Labor Department's analysis of August trends.

The gain for last month over July, reduced to the weighted index of 784 commodities, amounted to 0.7, going from July's figure of 64.5 to 65.2. The farm products group, however, registered a 2½ per cent gain. A similar boost was recorded by textile products, while both the food group and hides and skins showed a 2½ per cent gain.

Of the total list of commodities analyzed, 213 showed gains for the month and 436 remained stationary, while 135 decreased. Despite the net gain for the month, however, the comparison with August of last year showed a decrease of 9½ per cent. The index figure of 100 represents the average of 1926 prices.

Farm products gaining were barley, corn, rye, wheat, calves, poultry, cotton, eggs, hay and peanuts. Increasing food prices recorded were for butter, cheese, rye and wheat flour, fresh and cured beef and cured pork, veal, coffee, lard, sugar and most canned vegetables.

Other commodity classes showing an upward tendency included metals and metal products.

Pope Bars Veterans; Slap at Mussolini Seen

Vatican City, Rome, Sept. 19 (U.P.). The conflict between Pope Pius and Premier Benito Mussolini was believed renewed today when the Pope refused to receive any callers in audience. The monument was unveiled by the king and Premier Mussolini near the spot where the Bersaglieri corps entered Rome in September, 1870, to wrest temporal power from the Popes.

MOTHER OF GARNER SINKING GRADUALLY

Three Sons and Two Daughters at Bedside; Food Refused by Pet Poodle.

Detroit, Tex., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—The old colonial house of the Garners was in gloom tonight as its mistress, Mrs. Sarah Jane Garner, lay critically ill, her life slowly ebbing away.

That gloom had affected the entire household, from her vice presidential nominee son, John Nance, down to the elderly patient's pet poodle, Fluffy.

Late today physicians announced there had been no change in the pioneer woman's condition. In a morning report, however, it was said she had weakened considerably during the night and seemed to be gradually nearing the end. Her temperature remained high, 103.4 degrees.

Mrs. Garner's greatest desire had been to live to see her eldest son elected and inaugurated Vice President of the United States. Her present critical condition was brought about by a general toxic poisoning, greatly aggravated by her age. She is 81.

All members of her immediate family, three sons and two daughters, were at her bedside. The last to arrive, John Nance, hurried here yesterday from Washington, where he had gone from his Uvalde, Tex., home, to aid in the Democratic presidential campaign.

Mr. Garner said there was no hope for his mother. "My mother can not recover," he said. "It's just a matter of time now."

Today it became known that Mrs. Garner's pet poodle, of which she was extremely fond, had refused to eat since its mistress had become sick abed, and spends most of its time lying beside or under her bed.

$10,000 Asked for Beating.

David J. Brown, of Ballston, Va., yesterday instituted suit for $10,000 damages from George A. Garrett, said to be an investment broker, because of an alleged beating administered Brown September 11. Brown asserts he was in the hospital for two days suffering from the alleged attack.

CIRCUS ACTS GIVEN AT ST. ELIZABETHS

Hunt Show Closes Stand of Week With Performance at Hospital.

More than 2,500 patients and employes at St. Elizabeths Hospital yesterday morning gathered on the Prospect Hill in the grounds and witnessed a performance of Hunt's Three-Ring Circus.

Many of the patients who enjoyed the show were of the type habitually confined under attendants' eyes. They were accompanied in long lines to the arena of the circus by their attendants.

Mrs. Evelyn Hursh, recreation director for the Red Cross at the hospital for the mentally diseased, pronounced the affair a complete success. She said it was the first time in her fourteen years' experience at the institution that such a large number of persons had been accommodated at an entertainment and that it was the first time within her memory that a circus had visited the hospital.

The patients at St. Elizabeths gave the circus performers much applause. Frank Portillo, veteran clown, came in for many sallies of laughter at his wisecracks and antics.

The Hunt show, which has entertained with the sponsorship of The Washington Post more than 500 orphans during a week's stay here, closed its stand here last night.

Sweet contended he had arranged for the signing of the lease for a ten-year period. He asserted Mallan first agreed to the lease and then refused to sign it.

THE FLYING FAMILY.

THE Flying Family is safe, but the general opinion seems to be that Popper and Mommer Hutchinson should be immediately spanked and sent back to school in the hope that they may grow up to be a credit to their children.

* * * *

The stager of the world's goofiest distance flight is Mr. George Hutchinson. A trawler rescued the family from the ice in east Greenland, but the world in general seems to think that a father who would try to start housekeeping on an ice floe should be allowed to stay there and carry on the experiment unassisted.

* * * *

It was a peculiar flight from the first. Not only did Mr. Hutchinson take his wife and children, but four other passengers on a proposed transatlantic flight. It was the first attempt to transplant a neighborhood by air.

* * * *

The mystery of the flight is why Mr. Hutchinson left the dog, cat and parrot.

* * * *

Another difficult thing to explain is why the Flying Family didn't take some of the neighbors' children, too.

* * * *

Who the other four passengers are hasn't yet been satisfactorily cleared up. Maybe they were just members of Mrs. Hutchinson's Tuesday contract bridge club.

* * * *

When Mr. Hutchinson was rescued it is understood he took a seat on the most comfortable ice cake and expressed the opinion that woman's place was in the Arctic circle, and that part of every public school's curriculum should be a course in transatlantic flying for infants in arms.

* * * *

He blamed the crash on back-seat driving and the fact that he had to keep turning around to warn the children they mustn't get out on the wings to play hide and seek.

* * * *

The usual indorsements are awaited by the public. Papa Hutchinson will probably testify in the page advertisements that there's no motor oil like Colox for frightening little children out of ten years' growth, and that if a man wants to get rid of his wife an Ipswich monoplane is just as good as a Reno judge.

* * * *

And Mrs. Hutchinson can, of course, write a testimonial saying that if she had known what was coming she would have had a Comfy mattress installed on those Greenland ice cakes.

NOT AFRAID OF THE BOGEY MAN.

WELL, one thing is certain: those Hutchinson children will never be frightened again by those stories about Peter Rabbit and Little Reddy Fox.

Conventions of Baptists To Be Held Here in May

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Dr. Hight C. Moore, senior secretary of the Southern Baptist convention, announced today the convention's annual session at Washington in 1933 would be held from Friday, May 19, through Monday, May 22, just preceding the session of the Northern convention. The latter will begin May 24, and on the day between the two, the conventions will hold a joint session.

The purpose of the consecutive sessions, Dr. Moore said, "is not looking toward a union of the two conventions, but rather as a medium of good fellowship and to bring about a closer coordination and cooperation between the Baptists of the North and the Baptists of the South."

Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

THE Republican national committee has begun a series of campaign programs over networks which will be heard five times weekly. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, will speak Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock over WRC.

A farm program will be broadcast over the WJZ network each Monday, Tuesday and Thursday in the East at 12:15 o'clock. A women's program on Wednesdays and Fridays will be broadcast at 2:15 p. m.

This marks the first time that political parties ever have utilized national radio networks on a regular daily basis in their campaigns.

EVIDENTLY designed to enter into competition with commercial broadcasters in the advertising field is the "Illustrated Voice." It is a machine which Western Union messengers will take into homes, operate and take back when the performance is finished. It projects pictures with accompanying music and advertising, the latter furnished by a phonograph record. The photographs shown are not moving pictures but of the still variety.

One of the first uses to which it will be put will be the projection of political speeches.

"The service is expected to prove popular even for afternoon teas and bridge parties," said W. Wadsworth Wood, its inventor. "For instance, Mrs. X may telephone for the 'third lesson on contract bridge' by a noted bridge authority and receive it by messenger in a few minutes for the entertainment of her guests. A number of large corporations have contracted for the service, including General Electric, Westinghouse and Du Pont. Pictures, diagrams, charts and other visual matter have been coordinated with the recorded voice for a wide variety of subject matter, and the scope and distribution of the service will be rapidly broadened."

"THE Sacking of America," an address tonight (WMAL, 9 o'clock) by Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, will include his views on Government extravagance and Government interference in private business.

The Northern Dramatic Company, beginning tonight, will broadcast each show twice weekly, on Tuesdays at 8:15 p. m. and Fridays at 8:30 p. m., over Station WOL. "The Rosary," which is in three acts, is being rebroadcast tonight by popular request.

"Smiling Ed" McConnell, familiar to listeners throughout the South and East as the "one-man radio show," will inaugurate a new series of programs over WMAL at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

Louis Brownlow, former District Commissioner, heads a list of speakers to be heard during the broadcast of "You and Your Government" over WJZ tonight at 7 o'clock. The other speakers are Representative Carl R. Chindblom, of Illinois; Katherine A. Frederic, of the National League of Women Voters; William Hard and Henry P. Seidemann, of the Brookings Institution.

"THE grandson of Abdul Abulbul Amir," Frank Crumit's new song (WRC, 7 p. m.), will probably be good for a laugh. * * * Likewise Irvin Cobb, if he appears as scheduled on the N. B. C. Artists' Program (WRC, 7:30 p. m.). Lowell Thomas will assist Cobb. * * * And my goodness, Ed Wynn, the Fire Chief, clanging along (on his horse) right after them (WRC, 8:30 p. m.). * * * "The Society Burglar," Lucky Strike (WRC, 9 p. m.). Kathleen Stewart, classical pianist (WJZ, 10:15 a. m.) * * * Another session of the Boston Conference on Retail Distribution (WMAL, 12 noon) * * * "Bulldog Drummond Returns," Eno Crime Club (WMAL, 1:30 p. m.) * * * The second movement, andante, from Mozart's "Symphony in E Flat," by Howard Barlow's Orchestra.

Roosevelt's 'Magic' Doubted by Eaton

New Jersey House Member Says Many Democrats Will Back Hoover.

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Thousands of New Jersey Democrats, Representative Eaton (Republican), New Jersey, said tonight, will vote the Republican ticket in November. In a statement given out at Republican headquarters, the representative added:

"The people of New Jersey have an innate sense of fair play. They realize the heroic, sacrificial battle President Hoover has put up in the interest of the Nation and they are not going to let him down now. Besides, Gov. Roosevelt in his speeches was using words, words, words—making rash promises and outlining ridiculous plans for the building of a happy Nation."

Earlier in the day he addressed the Women's National Republican Club and said:

"The nubbin of the Democratic campaign to date is that President Hoover has created the present depression and that Mr. Roosevelt, with one touch of his magic wand, will usher in universal prosperity."

Nashville, Tenn. (U.P.).—Out on Paradise Ridge the brandy makers haven't been bothered by a lack of peaches and apples. They are using grapes and turning out a product that is grape brandy, if you are one of the boys, and cognac, if you're from town and don't know the difference.

FOREIGN NEWS IN BRIEF

Shanghai, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—The United States consul advised all American missionaries at Laichowfu, Ewanghsien and Tengchow today to be prepared to evacuate these places as a result of disorders in the northern portion of the Shangtung promontory arising out of a clash between military chiefs in the vicinity.

Wendover, England, Sept. 19 (A.P.). Joan MacDonald, second daughter of the Prime Minister, will be married tomorrow to Dr. Alastair Mackinnon. The wedding will be in a small Congregational Church.

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 19 (A.P.). W. W. Yen, China's spokesman in the League of Nations council, filed a vigorous protest with the league today against Japan's recognition of Manchukuo. He asked that the league's action on this issue be hastened and that steps be taken "to uphold respect for the decisions already made by the league assembly."

Newchang, Manchuria, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Negotiations for the release of two British subjects who were kidnaped by bandits recently near here were renewed today following receipt of a letter from the bandits demanding a ransom of 700,000 Chinese dollars in addition to a quantity of ammunition and jewels. Previous attempts to ransom the victim failed because the bandits refused to believe that their pardon by Manchukuo authorities would prevent the Japanese officials from executing them.

London, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Ramon De Valera, president of the Irish Free State, paid a fleeting visit to London today on his way to Geneva to preside over the meeting of the League of Nations council and to open the sessions of the league assembly. He saw no members of the British government except an undersecretary from the dominions office, who greeted him officially.

Quebec, Quebec, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Fourteen alleged Communists, arrested for participating in May Day riots in the mining districts of northern Quebec, are to be deported during the first week in October, immigration officials said today.

Birkenhead, England, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Police were brought across the harbor from Liverpool to assist local authorities when riots over the weekend culminated in a fight between police and 500 unemployed armed with sticks and spikes torn from iron railings. A number were injured on both sides and seven were arrested.

Rouyn, Quebec, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Through the trails of northern Quebec prospectors were rushing today to a rich gold strike reported in the townships of Rouyn and Johannes, near the gold and copper mine at Noranda. Nearly 200 claims have been registered and the number is increasing as word of the discovery spreads.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Missing since Tuesday the bodies of Russell Turner, 35-year-old war veteran, and Margaret Mitchell, 19, were found today floating in the power canal.

J. L. Baker Indictment Story Proves Erroneous

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—John L. Baker was not indicted in connection with the killing in Manchester last spring of Police Judge C. P. Stivers, as erroneously reported in an Associated Press dispatch regarding the slaying of two men, Frank Baker and John Brockman, Sunday.

The dispatch referring to the murder indictments returned confused his name with that of another man. The Associated Press is glad to make this correction.

France Is Asked to Aid Plane Search With Boat

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—The Department of State has forwarded a request to the French government that a survey boat be sent out in search of the airplane American Nurse, lost on a transatlantic flight to Rome, Dr. Paul Pisculli said tonight.

Dr. Pisculli, a brother of Dr. Leon Pisculli, one of three persons aboard the plane, said he made the request after the master of the liner France cabled him that he was positive he had spotted the American Nurse 450 miles southwest of the Irish coast last Wednesday. The copilots were William Ulbrich and Miss Edna Newcomer.

Gandhi Defies Cell Change On Eve of 'Hunger Strike'

Asserts Proposed Removal From Prison Proper to Bungalow Humiliating; Avers He Will Fast Beginning Today Until He Dies.

Bombay, India, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—The Mahatma M. K. Gandhi tonight defied the Indian government to remove him from his cell in Yerovda prison where, at midday tomorrow, he will begin his "fast unto death."

India's "great soul" is undertaking his hunger strike as a protest against Great Britain's communal settlement, involving separate electorates for the nation's "untouchables."

Bombay officials announced earlier in the day that the little brown nationalist leader would be removed from the prison proper and placed in a bungalow inside the prison grounds.

Certain restrictions, as to the number of visitors he might have, were resented by Gandhi, who characterized them as "humiliating conditions." Accordingly, he challenged the government to remove him forcibly from his cell.

Under the government plan, Gandhi would be permitted to have only six visitors at a time in the bungalow without police surveillance.

Regardless of where he goes, he intends to abstain from all food until death overtakes him, and he reiterated today that there is small chance he will withdraw his decision. He will take his last food at the noonday meal and thereafter will eat or drink nothing except water with salt or soda stirred into it.

Hindu leaders called on Gandhi today seeking his opinions on the communal settlement. He told them that he is prepared to consider a plan that would guarantee a certain number of legislative seats to the "untouchables," who occupy the lowest level of the Indian caste system. This guarantee of seats, Gandhi said, would be substituted for the separate electorates proposed by Great Britain.

Gandhi, who weighs less than 100 pounds, has been conditioning himself for his fast for several days. Gradually he has been reducing the amount of food in his diet, which consists of vegetables, fruits and goat's milk. He also has been refraining from his usual exercise in order to store up energy for the ordeal of his hunger strike.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Just some of the lovely things we made over in our very own wardrobe! (Dah-ray Suggestions.)

I DON'T know what it is, but there just is something about makeovers that is dear to my heart! I simply can not resist using a good fabric to the bitter end—and on the same count, when a nice something in my wardrobe gives up the ghost long before its day, I just have ten thousand catfits.

To a Parisienne, there is absolutely no stigma attached to the word "makeover." Lots of people think that to refashion or remodel or make over a garment implies a necessity—well, admitting that it sometimes does, yet it is more often than not an amusement for madame, a creation, than an economy.

Every so often I go through closets and trunks and things, and grab out this and that, that requires refashioning for any number of reasons, and redesign m'self some new togs. I have sketched for you a pajama, for instance, that I just refashioned. The material was most awfully good crepe, but it would shrink just about the time that I put on one or two extra pounds. So I bought a hunk of black velvet, which is awfully reasonable now, and lovelier than it ever was, and put a flare around the bottom of the pajamas, and a stripe down the sides—as you can see in the illustration. Then a little bolero followed, and discount it though you try, I have a new pajama suit that is as new to me as though I had bought every inch of the fabric new.

While on the subject of makeovers, or refashioning something into something else—how do you like the little lingerie blouse in the upper right-hand corner? Sh-h-h-h-h, 'twas panties! Golly, now that the French-Maid-Who-Is-Spanish is no longer in the family, I am more appreciative of the beautifully handworked and million-tiny-stitched undies she used to make for me in her spare finger time! So needing a lingerie blouse to wear with black pajamas, I just grabbed the beautifully made crepe de chine panties with their two embroidered butterflies, their georgette frilled edge all hand bound to the crepe and refashioned it as you can see.

And, makeovers are all the rage, my deahs! Don't sniff at 'em—just take whatever you wish to remodel, rip it all or almost all up, wash and iron the pieces, or have 'em cleaned, and then start to work as though you had new pieces of material.

* * * *

The little vestee-blouse, sleeveless, but adorably flared at the waist, and showing the his monogram on each lapel, is the triumph of the year! You see, when he pulled out the Irish lawn handkerchief and I got one look at its $70 a dozen look—which is what I knew such a hankie would cost in Dublin, Ireland—I just yellllll-l-l-l-l-ed! 'N' I yelled hard enough to get another one—and then I made something out of the two of them that is the envy of the elegants of the world—a vestee blouse to wear with my tailored suit or my tailored pajamas. And then, of course, nothing but I must have a couple of 'em made from two bandana handkerchiefs, and they are as cute as a bug's ear, too. Well, better send that stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of the Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet, and just see for yourself if you don't want to make some of these vestee blouses from men's handkerchiefs!

Au revoir!

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

Grease spots on washable clothes can be removed, as a rule, by rubbing the spot thoroughly, and then washing the whole garment, with warm water and soap, as in ordinary laundering. Soaps containing naphtha or kerosene are efficient. But if a grease spot has appeared on a silk or wool garment, or on a rug or some other furnishing, you may have to depend on an absorbent such as fuller's earth or cornmeal, or on a solvent, such as carbon tetrachloride, chloroform, ther, gasoline, naphtha or benzol.

Much depends on the kind of a spot you have to deal with. Fresh grease spots may consist of pure fat or oil. Old grease spots or stains from automobile, wheel, or machine greases, usually contain more or less dust, dirt or fine particles of metal. The use of absorbents generally is effective only on fresh spots of grease or oil unmixed with particles of dirt or metal. The advantage of using them is that they do not wet the fabric or leave rings as so often happens when water or grease solvents are employed.

Rings form either because of extra dressing in the fabric which spreads out when you try to clean the spot, or by the spreading of soil by the fluid. The weave and color of the material that has been stained also affects its tendency to form rings when dry cleaned. A ring will not show as plainly on rough and figured fabrics such as rep or printed crepe, as it does on smooth and plain colored materials, like light, neutral-colored satin.

"Spots may be taken out of almost any fabric, however, if the cleaning fluid is applied carefully," says an expert in the Bureau of Home Economics. Carbon tetrachloride is the least likely of the cleaning fluids to form rings. It has the additional merit of being noninflammable.

"Place a smooth pad of clean white material under the part of the garment to be cleaned. Next, put clean white blotting paper on the pad, and place the garment wrong side up with the stain on the blotting paper, right side next to the blotter. Use a soft rag and take care not to allow the stained material to become very wet. Always brush lightly from the outside of the spot toward the center and spread the moisture unevenly into the surrounding goods. The secret is to spread or 'feather' out the liquid into the fabric surrounding the treated section until there is no definite edge when the material dries. This prevents the ring. It is always well to hasten the drying by brushing with a dry rag."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

NEW USES FOR INSULIN.

INSULIN has not proved to be a cure for diabetes, using the word cure in the proper sense. If a person has a case of genuine diabetes, he can not take a course of insulin and so thoroughly repair his organic defects as that thereafter he will remain normal in his capacity for handling sugar. It has also failed to meet public health expectations. The death rate from diabetes has increased rather than decreased since the use of insulin became general.

Although it has failed in these two particulars its discovery has been of very great service. It has enormously increased the comfort, security and working efficiency of diabetics. Many who make use of insulin are able to keep in apparent good health, to eat enough to satisfy their needs and to work efficiently. It has proved especially helpful in promoting the welfare of diabetic children.

The closer study of diabetics stimulated by the discovery and use of insulin has taught us many valuable points about the way the body stores sugar, how and where it is converted back and forth, and the part contributed by certain organs to these changes. It has shown us the significance of changes in blood sugar, and especially the importance of deficiency of blood sugar.

Incidentally, studies growing out of the use of insulin have thrown much light on a group of disorders which were formerly called acidosis, some of which were serious, and all of which were the cause of uncomfortable symptoms. The danger now is that enthusiasm in the use of insulin, especially in nondiabetic disorders, may get the better of judgment.

In three numbers of the Quarterly Cumulative Index of Medicine, there appeared reference to 32 diseases or conditions for which, besides diabetes, insulin is now being used. However, there was some overlapping. Among these were:

Heart disease, kidney disease, disease of the pancreas, high blood pressure, pellagra, malnutrition, underweight, liver disease, diphtheria, true rheumatoid arthritis, morphine addiction, alcohol addiction, polyuria, asthenia, due to emaciation; stomach disorders, exopthalmic goiter, gastric and duodenal ulcers, grave anemia, sluggish liver, tuberculosis, severe vomiting of pregnancy, acute and chronic urticaria, deficiency in vitamin B, emaciation following gall bladder infections, gall stones, malaria, post-operative mastoiditis, emaciation in babies, pruritus in jaundice and also as a local application in accessible cancers and ulcers.

None of these conditions is related to diabetes. It is true that in many it is used as an accessory. For instance, it is given with dextrose in conditions where sugar is needed, but it can not be given unless some agent, such as insulin, is given to assist in handling. Another illustration is its use as an aid in promoting nutrition in those various disorders where emaciation and underweight contribute to the disease picture.

However, most of these extra-diabetic uses of insulin are based upon a rather vague notion as to its effect on acidosis and as to the part acidosis plays in the symptoms of the major disease. In the course of time the efficacy of some of these uses will be established. No doubt most of them will be discontinued.

FACE DOMINATORS.

R. V. C. writes: You are wrong about its being the nose that dominates the face, and it is strange how a person in your position could make such an error, an error in which any physiognomist could correct you. It is the mouth which dominates and gives expression and character to the face. A face with a poor nose may still be pretty and handsome, but never with a poor mouth.

REPLY.

The eyes should have some champion.

NOT CONTAGIOUS.

Constant reader writes: 1. Is catarrh contagious? I have been in close contact with people and no one has taken it.

2. I am very worried. People talk about me and turn away. Please state if there is a cure.

REPLY.

1. It is not.

2. If you read the advertisements in the papers you doubtless suspect that you have halitosis.

ALBUMIN IN THE BLOOD.

W. L. writes: An examination of the urine reveals albumin. Is this dangerous? I am 31 years old.

REPLY.

Albuminuria may or may not be dangerous. What else abnormal does the analysis show? What other symptoms are there?

Culbertson on Bridge

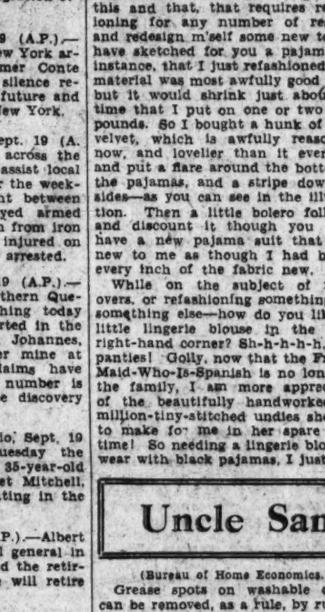
YOU NEVER CAN TELL.

WHEN a vulnerable player picks up a hand containing five honor-tricks after one non-vulnerable opponent has opened the bidding and his partner has responded with a Takeout, he can not be blamed if he suspects that there is a Senegambian concealed somewhere in the woodpile. It is still possible that the Opening bid may be sound and that the Takeout may also have some values behind it; so while it would be unwise to permit the opponents to run away with the hand, a certain degree of caution is advisable. The hand below, which Mr. B. L. Tighe, jr., of Jackson, Miss., submitted as one of the funniest and worst bid hands in his experience, conclusively proves this fact.

South—Dealer.

East and West vulnerable.



The actual bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.

South	West	North	East
1◇(1)	Pass	2♣(2)	2◇(3)
Pass	2♡(4)	Pass	4♡(5)
Double	Pass	Pass	Redble.(6)
Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) A sound, though weak, nonvulnerable bid.

(2) An entirely sound Takeout.

(3) East is overwhelmed with his honor-trick holding. His hand is not strong enough to justify the Forcing bid of two diamonds, which requires that East and West reach game. So assured is East that South has opened a "psychic" that he throws caution to the winds in making this bid.

(4) Hapless West can not bid clubs nor diamonds because these suits have been bid by the opponents. With his perfect Yarborough, he therefore responds in the only way possible, except a pass, which would probably be more destructive of partnership morale than any penalty, however severe.

(5) Entirely incomprehensible. East's correct bid now is two spades, and this bid would give North and South few options except to permit East to play for a part-score, which might be made, and in no case would be severely penalized.

(6) Still convinced that the opponents' bids are entirely psychic and forgetting that he has forced his partner to make some bid.

The result of the hand was a penalty of 4,400 points, as the hand was set six tricks, West saving from the wreck only the Ace of spades, the Ace of diamonds and the Ace-King of trumps.

What Today Means to You

"VIRGO."

IF September 20 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:20 to 10 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. and from 7:40 p. m. to 9:10 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:30 a. m. to 12:10 p. m. and from 5:15 p. m. to 6:50 p. m.

The stars foretell for September 20 influences that will stimulate and promote energetic activity. There will be sensed an ever-present desire to get things done, and done quickly. Decisions can be made safely and affairs, already too long delayed, can definitely be closed. Heart doubts can also be set at rest.

Children born on this September 20 will be serious problems to their parents in their early years, as they will be both wilful and wayward. In their later 'teens, however, something will happen which will open their eyes to the realities of life, and they will undergo a complete metamorphosis, and turn out well.

You, if born on September 20, are, although there is no reason for being so, pessimistic and lugubrious. You live in the shade, and fight shy of the sun. You seem to revel in misery and self-pity. If nature had dealt with you in a stingy spirit, your attitude could be at least understood, although it could never be justified. Nature, however, has been generous, as you are endowed with an active mind, a good brain, and ability far above the average. When these good qualities could stand you in good stead, when opportunities are available which your inherent gifts could capitalize with advantage, you throw up the sponge and say to yourself, "What's the use? The whole thing will be a wash-out."

Your disposition is not one that makes for congeniality, and your circle of friends is limited. You prefer solitude or seek the companionship of others who feel that they have a grudge against life. You are an omnivorous reader, but take little pleasure in romance or a happy-ending. You seek tragedy. Your horoscope denotes much less success than that to which you are entitled, although you will find a certain degree of happiness in being unhappy.

London, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—Methodists of all races and from all parts of the world gathered here today for the official celebration of the Methodist Union. The ceremony, which begins tomorrow, marks the final union of the three branches of the Methodist Church in Great Britain, and makes it the largest Protestant church in the world.

The act of union has been described as the most notable event in the religious history of the country since the birth of John Wesley. The duke and duchess of York are to be present tomorrow to represent the king, while delegates from the Anglican and other Protestant churches will extend greetings.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

Skin Bleaches That Are Harmless Take Time.

YEAR in, year out, the month of September brings a deluge of letters bemoaning suntan, beseeching bleach recipes. Invariably these letters call for a strong bleach, a quick bleach. Occasionally the sensible word "harmless" is included. There are many women who want to whiten the skin three shades in one sitting. I'm sorry to disappoint and disillusion them. But you can't rout in one day the tan that has accrued over a whole summer season. Not unless you are ready to suffer whatever serious consequences such strong bleaching may bring.

M. B. is one of many who wants "a strong bleach that will work in a week" and J. E. wants "a bleach that will remove freckles but not suntan."

A harmless bleach must be given time to do its whitening gradually. Of course, the type of skin and the degree of freckles and tan influence the time element. As for bleaching freckles and not the surrounding skin, unless there are a few freckles, sparsely sprinkled over face, neck or arms, it is difficult to dim the freckles only. A bit of cotton wound on the edge of an orange stick may be dipped into the bleaching preparation and then carefully touched to the freckle itself. If the freckle crop is not a meager one, I'm afraid this will prove a tedious and difficult task.

Start With Mild Bleaches.

Remember that in the matter of bleaches, more than any other toilet preparations, each skin responds in its own way and often even a thick, heavy skin is irritated by one bleach or another. Therefore it is necessary to experiment to find the bleach that your skin can "take" best and it is the wisest plan to start with a mild bleach first and as the skin becomes accustomed to its action, change gradually to a stronger bleach.

Another warning: If the skin is sunburned (not suntanned) and irritated, soothe it with a lubricating cream or unguent before attempting to bleach.

Before applying your bleach, cleanse the skin thoroughly. If yours is the dry, sensitive type of skin better use a cream for cleansing, otherwise bathe in lukewarm water and soap, and rinse thoroughly. Hydrogen peroxide makes a simple bleaching remedy. Daub it on the skin with a piece of absorbent cotton. Do not get it too near eyes, lashes, brows or hair edges. Allow it to dry, unless the skin smarts too painfully in which case remove at once. Follow by gently patting a soft, nourishing cream over the skin.

Peroxide and lemon juice, half and half, make another good bleaching remedy. The cornmeal and buttermilk masque is another old-reliable preparation that quite quickly lightens a suntanned skin.

If you want still more recipes for simple bleaches that can be made at home, send self-addressed, stamped envelope for my bulletin on "freckles and bleaches," also the one on "masques."

Elsie Pierce, famous beauty lecturer, will answer any questions on beauty you wish to ask her. Address Miss Pierce, in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

TAKOMA PARK HITS AMBULANCE DELAY

Councilman Sherburne Denounces Walter Reed's Work in Death Case.

Even if he has to go to President Hoover, Town Councilman R. G. Sherburne, of Takoma Park, Md., is going to find out why a Walter Reed Hospital ambulance took twenty minutes for a three-minute run that might have saved a life.

The councilman announced his plan amidst applause at the meeting of the Takoma Park town council last night. The council voted to leave the matter in the hands of Dr. Frederick L. Lewton, mayor, and Mr. Sherburne.

The question arose in the course of an examination into the advisability of purchasing an inhalator for use by the town fire department. Mayor Lewton announced that he had received a letter from the commanding officer of the Army hospital asking whether or not a letter written by Mr. Sherburne should be considered an individual act or as an official act of the council.

Ellington Case Reviewed.

Mr. Sherburne said he did not believe it mattered, that a public institution supported by taxpayer's money such as Walter Reed should be reasonably courteous even in answering a letter from a private citizen. He said that he had written to the hospital to ask why the ambulance required 20 minutes for the three minute run of an ordinary automobile.

"Prompt action might have saved this man's life," he said in his letter regarding the failure of the hospital to respond promptly to a call for aid in the case of George W. Ellington, Department of Agriculture scientist, who died August 23 from the effects of hydrocyanic gas poisoning. Mr. Sherburne said he specifically told the hospital that a pulmotor and a doctor were needed and that neither were on the ambulance when it arrived at the same time the Rescue Squad of the Washington Fire Department arrived from Twelfth and D streets.

Clerk-Treasurer Appointment.

He asked council approval of his continued efforts to find out whether or not the town could hope for emergency aid from the hospital, and to press for reasons why the hospital failed to render aid in the Ellington case.

"When a public institution needs overhauling, we should take it to the President of the United States, if necessary," he said, "and that is what I am willing to do." Here applause from the citizens broke into his remarks.

The council went into executive session to consider applicants for the post of clerk-treasurer of the town, but no announcement will be made until the appointee has been approved by the bonding company, Mayor Lewton said. There are twenty applicants.

The town receipts for August were $6,572.19; expenditures were $4,480.45, and the town now has a balance of $22,220.32 in its treasury, the finance committee reported.

FLAEMMCHEN AND PREYSING

Joan Crawford and Wallace Beery, as the stenographer opportunist and industrial magnate, in the incomparable picturization of "Grand Hotel," now playing for the first time at popular prices at the Palace.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

THE controversy as to whether Roger Pryor, who created the part on the stage, or Lee Tracy, who is currently performing it in celluloid form at the Metropolitan Theater, is the better Alvin Roberts in "Blessed Event" is getting almost as warm as the largely artificial battle as to whether John or Lionel Barrymore was the better actor in "Arsene Lupin," or "Grand Hotel," or wherever they happened to be.

Lee Tracy

Personally, I am pretty thoroughly of the opinion that the matter can be settled by tossing a coin.

There is no gainsaying that in the original production, confined, of course, to the comparatively narrow limitations of the stage, Roger Pryor gave a variegated and colorful performance of the role, with a change of pace that sharpened the character of the gossipmonger appreciably. He was infinitely Mr. Tracy's superior in what may be termed the "death-chair scene," in which the fear of retribution and a just God is thrown into the heart of Frankie Wells, the tough young man from Chicago, by a vivid and blood-chilling description of precisely what he is headed for. In comparison, Mr. Tracy's reading of the scene sounds almost as if he might be telling Frankie a funny story!

On the other hand, I doubt if Mr. Pryor—even had the opportunity been offered in the stage play—could leap on tables and be quite the play-boy columnist Mr. Tracy is in the added cabaret scenes that punctuate the closing sequences of the picture. He is alive, irresponsible and utterly irrepressible in these explosive moments. So what?

So from one point of view the laurels are all Mr. Pryor's, and from another point of view the laurels are all Mr. Tracy's. So why not call it a draw?

Or, as I say, if you must have a winner, get out the dice box!

And in case you have wondered who this Dick Powell is who appears in the Bunny Harmon role—a character, by the way, that was never visible in the stage version—he is a youthful master of ceremonies who has served on the stages of many Warner theaters a little farther West than this, and was pulled into the studio for this initial screen assignment in "Blessed Event!" He did the job so well that the Warners have put him under a term contract for screen roles instead of further m. c.'ing.

He croons an excessively mean roundelay, at that.

And as long as we are talking about the Warner Brothers and their houses, you might as well know now as later that something besides golf came out of the national amateur open, just played under the auspices of the Baltimore Country Club on the Five Farms course, over yonder in the Monumental City.

On the sidelines, of course, was Bobby Jones, who, like the mail carrier on his day off, takes a nice long walk following the play, when not in it himself. Also present were Harry M. Warner, president of his brothers, Dan Michalove and others of the executives high in the councils of the Freres Warner. Just by chance—heh, heh, heh!—I say, just by chance, all these boys met at the nineteenth hole or somewhere—Bobby and Harry and Danny and all the rest.

So Harry looks at Bobby and says, "Oh, Bobby, what long ears you have." Or maybe I'm wrong. That sounds like another story. So Harry looked at Bobby and said, "Bobby," says he, "what you say we go out to the Coast and make another series of those golf shorts like 'How I Play Golf' that were such a hit?"

"All right," says Bobby, "when do we start?"

And that's practically all there was to it. Which is why you will hear shortly that Bobby Jones will make another series of golf short-reelers, beginning along in February, according to present plans, to be called "How to Break 90," or "How It Feels to Break 90," or something like that.

And when the official announcement is broken out, don't say I didn't tell you.

Picture "permeers" are coming along in unaccustomed profusion this week-end.

Thursday night at the Rialto, "Back Street," with John Boles and Irene Dunne in the pivotal roles of the Fannie Hurst fiction, will blast the padlocks off the front door to signalize the reopening of the house after many months of darkness.

On Friday night, the road show engagement of "Strange Interlude" will be inaugurated at the National, with Norma Shearer and Clark Gable in the principal roles. As was remarked in Sunday's Post, the role of Nina Leeds has already been seen on the National stage as portrayed by Pauline Lord, Elisabeth Risdon and Nancy Sheridan. It will be interesting to compare Miss Shearer's performance with those of her distinguished predecessors.

On Friday at the Earle, Washington will catch its first glimpse of Columbia's production of "The Night Mayor," with Lee Tracy in the title role. You will be given one guess as to what metropolitan chief executive, who recently resigned his office and is now enjoying a sea trip to Italy and back, is reputed to have suggested the groundwork for this footage of celluloid.

Afterthoughts on the interview—if that is what it was—with Edmund Lowe: He makes you feel immediately at home by beating you to the punch with, "So you are the fellow I've heard so much about from Vic McLaglen and Mrs. Lowe!" . . . When he knows it was Eddy Gilmore, the publicity man, who wised him up just a few minutes before you reached the theater. . . . And you know it, too. . . . But it makes you feel good, anyway. . . . When he gets a chance, he is a fight fan and likes boxing as exercise. . . . Just now the tour of personal appearances is keeping him in great physical shape. . . . Barring the high blood pressure, a little dash of the old neuritis and a slight sclerosis of the liver. . . . Or maybe he was only kidding. . . . He lives down at the other end of Malibu Beach, away from all that. . . . Hopes you'll come back again. . . . And makes you think he means it. . . . And that's what I call taking a chance!

In the passing of Ralph A. Graves the Capital has lost a journalist and man of letters whose influence extended well beyond the narrow boundaries of the District of Columbia; a conscientious and gifted workman, whose efforts always were on the side of rectitude, clean thinking and high idealism.

During more than a decade of intimate association, when his was the office and the desk I now occupy, I came to know and love Ralph A. Graves' high character, kindliness and infinite patience. Ever the first to attack the salacious, the sinister and the suggestive, he was as unfailingly last to offend, humiliate or condone injustice.

The writing craft has lost one of its most able and most worthy representatives; the community one who was gentleman, scholar and an enduring credit to his profession.

And I mourn the loss of a friend.

LICENSE FINES GIVEN IN ALEXANDRIA DRIVE

Police Court Collections to Aid City in Paying Its Current Debts.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The work of summoning persons into police court to explain their failure to obtain city licenses, both automobile, business and professional, is being continued, with several persons being fined each day. According to the city collector there is a large number of these delinquents, and it will be several weeks before the police have summoned them all. The fine assessed in police court is $10 and costs.

In addition to the license fees uncollected, which amount to several thousand dollars, there is a large amount due the city in delinquent real estate taxes on property in every section of the city, and it is claimed that many persons wait to pay their real estate and personal taxes until they are forced to do so.

It is claimed by the city officials that the collection of these unpaid taxes and license fees will aid the city in paying current obligations without the necessity of making temporary loans in anticipation of payment of taxes, which is often done, and which is an expense to the city in the form of interest on these loans.

Two Neighbors Protest New Bethesda Teahouse

Establishment of the country club teahouse at 4340 Watkins avenue (East-West Highway) in Bethesda, Md., has been protested by three neighbors, who appeared before the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission to oppose the establishment. The protesters are James L. Martin, 4502 Watkins avenue; Paul Ryon, 4500 Watkins avenue, and T. L. Moody, 4414 Watkins avenue.

The protest is based on two grounds, that the inn is a business and can not be conducted legally in a residential zone and that the signs in front exceed the limit set for home occupations. The teahouse is operated by Mrs. J. Fred Imirie, wife of the county building inspector.

GAYETY

"GIRLS A LA CARTE." An Empire Circuit burlesque attraction, presented by I. Hirst, featuring Kitty Ellis, Lola Bartram, Marion LaMarr and Joe Moss, supported by Chickie Wells, Sammy Clark, Nancy Lee and Chick Chandler. Reviewed Monday night.

Hailed from behind a prosaic desk to view the first burlesque show seen in over five years, the writer found the current attraction at Jimmy Lake's emporium of laughs and pulchritude stimulating to both eye and ear. It also seemed evident that the trend to daring feminine apparel on the boards of other theaters has forced burlesque to even greater—or should we say shorter—lengths to reveal the natural beauty of the feminine form, to the evident delight of a well-filled house.

"Girls a la Carte" would seem to indicate that one may take his choice and we would prefer the little blonde, second from the right, in the front row. Unhonored and unsung in official programs and notices, this young woman nevertheless redeems a mediocre chorus by the spirit and vivacity with which she does her part in every chorus number.

The reference to programs reminds us that Kitty Ellis, Chickie Wells, Sammy Clark, Lola Bartram, Nancy Lee, Jack Ryan, Marion LaMarr and Joe Moss are the headliners of the show but, Jimmy, how is an emergency reviewer going to tell which is which—especially when he goes to his appointed task with wifely instructions, "Don't you dare go back stage?"

We judged, however, that the headliners among the feminine names would be identified with the lovely ladies who took off the most clothes. Joe Moss, a former Washingtonian, was readily recognized by the reception he received, but the juvenile lead proved to be Chick Chandler, whose name was not mentioned on the program, but who "stole" the show on several occasions. Marty Bohnes also had his moments with some exceptionally clever eccentric dancing and a terrific struggle with an understung pair of pants.

* * * *

Dear Mr. Editor: It really was a most enjoyable show with plenty of good comedy. Perhaps the best I can say is that I have decided to add burlesk to the dizzy round of my social obligations in the future—and "such resolutions must be earned." G. H. B.

2 UTILITIES ORDERED TO CREDIT INTEREST

Commission Decrees 5 Per Cent Must Be Added to Reserve Fund.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday decided to order the Washington Railway & Electric Co. and the Washington and Georgetown Gas Light Cos. to credit their depreciation reserves with 5 per cent interest a year, computed monthly, as it had instructed the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. to do on Saturday.

The order will be issued so that all public utilities in the District will be treated equally, Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the commission, explained. The Capital Traction Co. and the Potomac Electric Power Co. already credit interest to their reserve funds, and the Washington Rapid Transit Co. has no depreciation reserve.

Simultaneously, the commission decided to eliminate considerable accounting work on the part of the utilities by greatly reducing the number of reports required. Only the data essential to the records of the commission will be required hereafter, Gen. Patrick said, although the utilities will be expected to furnish additional information whenever called upon.

Among the reports to be discontinued are a monthly accident report; a daily passenger and mileage report by the street car and bus companies, now to be made monthly; a monthly report on renewals and track repairs; a monthly report of equipment charges, and the Potomac Electric Power Co.'s revised schedule report.

Rendering Plant Rehearing Sought

Efforts Will Be Made Tonight at Arlington Board Meeting.

Efforts to have the zoning appeal board of Arlington County reopen discussion of the permit granted Norton & Co. for a rendering plant at the intersection of the Washington-Richmond highway and Columbia pike will be made when the board meets tonight.

While the county board has gone on record to appeal to the circuit court for a review on the matter, as have citizens of Aurora Hills and Virginia Highlands, the committee is of the opinion that if the matter can be reopened and the citizens heard, the matter may be more easily settled.

Phil P. Campbell, former member of Congress from Kansas, voiced his strong opposition to the establishment of the plant at the proposed location. He says that he will do everything in his power to prevent its erection. However, he stated, he thought the ends of justice could be more easily reached through a rehearing than by the contemplated litigation in the courts.

GRAND JURY CLEARS FAIRFAX CONSTABLE

Circuit Court Opens Term; 12 Indictments Returned for Felonies.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 243, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Fairfax 166.

The grand jury of the Fairfax County Circuit Court, which opened its September term yesterday with Judge Walter T. McCarthy presiding, returned 12 indictments for felonies. Commonwealth's Attorney Wilson M. Farr made twelve presentments direct to the court for misdemeanors. The grand jury ignored charges against Constable C. B. Runyon, of Falls Church District, in the slaying of Frank Lewis, colored, near Bailey's Cross Roads, and another charge against Earl Heatwole, growing out of an automobile accident last summer, in which Margaret Cromwell, of Washington, was killed.

Members of the grand jury yesterday were: W. S. Browning, foreman; Harvey L. Marshall, George C. Gillingham, Charles E. Stanton, H. B. Coyner and J. B. Armfield.

Percy L. Crosby, of McLean, cartoonist, who was summoned for grand jury service, failed to appear. At the close of court yesterday Judge McCarthy told one of the county policemen to tell Crosby to come to Fairfax this week and explain his delinquency, stating at the same time that if he had a valid reason for not appearing for grand jury service in accordance with the summons, it was his duty to notify the court.

Overcrowding of Buses.

The grand jury returned a recommendation to the court concerning the overcrowding of school buses and urging that the proper officials take immediate steps to correct the situation.

Indictments were returned against the following: James Barber, for murder; George Boswell, for larceny; Josephine Foultz, for possession of still; Frank Gorham, second offense of driving while drunk; Harvy Hall and Harry Howard, for grand larceny; Randolph Morris, for possession of still; Ross B. Rogers, grand larceny; Joseph Scott and Frank Shulmier, for larceny; Charles Schanholtz, second offense against State prohibition law; Meyer Teitelman, for manslaughter; Eleanora Whitney, felonious wounding, and Earl Wilson, seduction.

Presentments Made.

Presentments were made to the court by Commonwealth's Attorney Farr charging transportation and possession of ardent spirits against the following persons: William Allen, Arthur B. Ball, R. L. Hinson, James Kehoe, Thomas Joseph Kehoe, Blanche Platt, Wade Polen, Charles Pugh, A. C. Rawlins, and against Overton Wright for possession and against William Paul and Francis Welch Landon for driving while drunk.

On pleas of guilty Francis Welch was fined $100 and costs and 30 days in jail, suspended during good behavior, and Overton Wright, $50 and costs and one month in jail suspended. Thomas Peyton, indicted at a previous term of court for a statutory offense, and George Boswell, indicted for larceny, entered pleas of guilty and were given indeterminate sentences, which were suspended by Judge McCarthy. Under the Virginia law the period of probation under such suspended sentence extends for the maximum period that it would be possible for the court to sentence them to the penitentiary.

Charges against Edgar Harris, Margaret Kenny and Buck, alias Buford, Raines were nolle prossed by Farr.

Cottage City Approves $35,000 for Road Work

By a vote of more than two to one, citizens of Cottage City, Md., yesterday approved an expenditure of about $35,000 for street improvement in the town.

Votes in yesterday's referendum showed 93 in favor of the improvement, and 44 against it. The money will be spent in laying curbs, paving and gutters on nearly all streets in the town.

Arnold, scribe; Louis Bullicek, treasurer; and Harry B. Mason, secretary. Officers appointed are: John C. Parker, captain of the host; Jesse T. Nichols, principal sojourner; Harold Philip, Royal Arch captain; G. M. Ward, third veil; Simon Lassaca, second veil; Ralph Horner, first veil; the Rev. Elmer Lucas, chaplain; H. W. Father Blames Son In Child 'Kidnaping' Family Dispute at Beltsville, Md., Results in Abduction Arrest.

Oliver Jenkins, of Beltsville, Md., was yesterday arrested on a kidnaping warrant sworn out by his father, James A. Jenkins, who accuses his son of taking away another son, Jesse, 6 years old. The father has also sworn out a similar warrant against his wife, Mazie, who is said to have the child.

According to Magistrate John A. Downing, who will hold a hearing on the case Thursday, the trouble started when the father and a third son, Louis, brought home a daughter who had been in an institution. Oliver sided with his mother, who objected to the daughter being in the home. Mother and son left the house, later returning for Jesse, who was taken to Virginia.

Oliver was arrested at the home of Louis, who swore out a warrant against him for disorderly conduct. Oliver was released in bond of $1,000 for the hearing Thursday, when he will be represented by J. Wilson Ryon.

Pulaski Furniture Strike Called Off

Mayor Calfee Effects Settlement; Men Accept Cut in Wages.

Pulaski, Va., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Employes of the Coleman Furniture Co. who walked out last Tuesday, in protest against a wage cut, called off the strike today. The men will be reemployed without prejudice as rapidly as conditions permit.

Between 50 and 60 returned to work this morning and others will be taken on as the various departments of the factory resume production.

Settlement of the dispute was brought about largely through efforts of Mayor E. W. Calfee, who brought the conflicting interests together through the medium of a disinterested committee of three after the men had been told that the furniture company was not in position to maintain operation except at a reduction of expense and that the local economy situation with winter approaching, would be seriously complicated with the addition of 200 idle workers and many dependents.

GEHRIG GIVES YANKEES' INFIELD EDGE OVER CUBS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

TOM MILLS, Georgetown coach, is as easily discouraged as a bear cub within reach of a honey vat...Mills came back to the Hilltop three weeks ago to find the squad deprived of a secluded training camp for the first season in seven years...And the squad that greeted him was Georgetown's smallest in a decade...Yet Mills found the faith to pull the season's best note of optimism...He was glad the squad was small...Too many candidates only breed discontent, he said...Mills makes Pollyanna seem like a grouch...But George Washington coaches will have full right to a grouch for the rest of the season if Washington and Lee upsets the Colonial applecart on Saturday...It behooves the G. W. team to win the Washington and Lee game as much for the sake of the Alabama gate here on October 8 as for alma mammy...Coach Pixlee will reveal only as many plays as are necessary to beat the Generals...And with 1,000 G. W. students planning to make the trip to Lexington, the Buff and Blue is beginning to feel traditional...The suspected presence of W. and L. scouts has confined the Colonial workouts to fundamentals...Dutch Bergman will present a new-model Tom Whelan at Catholic U....The backfield star of 1930 and 1931 has become too versatile and too valuable to carry the brunt of the Cardinals' running attack...He'll pass and he'll kick as well as run the ball this season...And it will be a better C. U. team for a' that...Out at College Park Coach Curly Byrd is fortunate to have the Quantico Marines as playmates in practice three days a week...The Marines are ideal sparring partners, with enough punch on both attack and defense to bring out the best that is in the Old Liners...And Earl Widmeyer, second to Toppino in the Eastern Olympic trials, is blasting the hoary theory that sprinters lack the shiftiness to become good backs...He scored all three of Maryland's touchdowns against the Marines Saturday, the third through the line, where he showed puh-lenty of leg drive...The best football minds still say that as far as equipping a team with the plays is concerned, Curly Byrd is king...And this department also subscribes to the belief...Georgetown, too, has found Al Kelly, the sprinter, a great help in the back field...Kelly passes as well as runs...Kelly promised his parents he would confine his athletics in college to track...But last year he received permission to play on his class team...It opened the avenue to his varsity hopes...Father McDonough, observing Kelly's play with the Sophs, stamped him as varsity timber...He added that any boy who could survive the class games at the Hilltop had nothing to fear in varsity competition...They were that tough...Father McDonough's assertion overcame parental objection...Watch this guy Kelly, is the watchword at the Hilltop.

Phils Near 3d Place, Beating Dodgers, 5-3

Philadelphia, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—The Phillies knocked young Van Mungo from the hill in the first two innings today to defeat Brooklyn, 5 to 3, and pull within a half game of third place in the National League, now held by the Dodgers.

Roy Hansen, who started for the Phils, was knocked from the box in the third, but Ad Liska took his place and held Brooklyn in check.

G. W. Lineup Shifted for 1st Game

Nielson, Tackle, and Blackistone, Center, Are Ineligible.

Parrish Again Is Sent Into Line for Game With W. and L.

WITH several hundred onlookers, George Washington University's big football squad worked out yesterday afternoon at the Tidal Basin Field, its first appearance in Washington for the season.

The coaching staff, fearing the possible presence of Washingoin and Lee scouts in the audience, ordered a complete elimination of all of the Colonials specialty plays and confined work to simple fundamentals.

Ras Nielson and Frank Blackistone, regular tackle and center on the varsity squad, will not play against Washington and Lee Saturday in the first game of the Colonials' season. Both are transfer students and ineligible under Southern Conference rules. Their loss, combined with the injury of Lee Carlin, who is out for two weeks with a broken collar bone, will take some of the spring out of the team.

Parrish Returns to Line

Billy Parrish, the handy man of the training season, was shifted into Nielson's place at tackle yesterday and responded in good style to line play. Parrish, who is the 190-pound brother of Finis Parrish, regular back, started out the training season with aspirations to become an end. After a week of end playing at Camp Letts, Md., he was shifted to full back for another week, where he performed creditably, and yesterday saw him struggling in the line.

The team will work out daily at the Tidal Basin today, tomorrow and Thursday, but there will be no scrimmaging, for with the injury of several backs, notably Carlin, and the ineligibility of Blackistone and Nielson, the squad has been trimmed down too fine for much rough tampering. The squad leaves Friday morning for the opening game, at Lexington.

Russo, Hudson Injured In Georgetown Workouts

Two blows were struck Georgetown University's 1932 grid hopes yesterday when Guido Russo, 205-pound guard from Brooklyn, N. Y., suffered a severe knee injury, which may keep him out for the season, and an examination of Capt. Ray Hudson's hand, injured Saturday in scrimmage, showed that it was broken.

Russo, whose bulk and experience were badly needed in the green line that will be Georgetown's this year, suffered a severe cartilege injury yesterday in scrimmage. Hudson, rated one of the best ends in the Middle Atlantic section last year, will be out of Georgetown's opening game against Mount St. Mary's October 1, at Griffith Stadium.

The first real insight on the strength of the 1932 Hoya machine may be had tomorrow afternoon when the A and B squads tangle in something approximating a regulation game. In the interim rough line scrimmage will be the program at the Hilltop training field.

Coach Tom Mills is especially pleased this season with the work of Wilmer Bradley, 180 half back, who is a 10-second sprint man and one of the brainiest gridmen to wear a Georgetown uniform in the last five years. Bradley reported this year faster and stronger than ever and is being counted upon heavily in the coming campaign.

Maryland U. Line-Up For Saturday Is Listed

Here is the probable varsity lineup for Maryland's opening game Saturday against Washington College:

Ray Poppelman, Al Woods, Dick Nelson and Earl Widmyer, backs; Charles Keenan and Vaul Rouzer, tackles; John McDonald and Al Farrell, guards; Tom Webb, center. There is little to choose from among the following aspirants for ends: Don DeVeau, Rufus Vincent, Willis Benner, Bill Wood and Stewart McCaw.

Maryland won 13 to 0 last year.

C. U. and St. John's In Free Game Saturday

Catholic University and St. John's, of Annapolis, will play a practice game at Brookland Stadium Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, to which there will be no admission charge. A complete game will be staged.

It will be the first time in a decade that the two colleges have pitted their teams against each other. It will be the first true line Coach Bergman will have on the strength of his 1932 entry.

Gar Wood Surpasses Boat Mark Unofficially

Algonac, Mich., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—The feeling among residents of this small marine village tonight was that, barring bad weather or another mishap, a new world's speed record for motorboats will be set tomorrow morning on the St. Clair River here by a "home town boy."

For Gar Wood, in his 48-cylinder Miss America X, raced down the mile straightaway today at a speed of 126.09 statute miles an hour, 5.59 miles an hour faster than the fastest mile ever run by Kaye Don in Miss England III, holder of the present record of 119.75 miles an hour.

Wood, however, advised that he had found a broken ring in a gear box. Inspection led to the postponement of the trial until 7 a. m. Tuesday morning.

Pin Boys' Strike Ended By Cut-Rate Talent at Convention Hall Alleys

THE importance of pin boys in the game of bowling, something the average player of the game is prone to forget, was made strikingly apparent last night at Convention Hall when 28 colored pin boys went on an organized strike in protest to the slicing of their wages from 4 to 3 cents a game.

The strike, evidently carefully planned, went into effect just as the Masonic League matches were about to start. Charles Bell, manager of the vast bowling establishment, took immediate charge of the situation and dispatched cabs to Washington's Harlem to recruit substitutes.

Upon the arrival of the strike-breakers, eighteen of the strikers repented and asked for their positions back, and police protection from their more militant strikers. Bell admitted them back to their posts, arranged for police protection, and within ten minutes the world's largest single-floor bowling emporium was resounding on all cylinders.

The wage cut, Bell said, was in line with a general movement to lower the operating costs of Convention Hall.

NATS PLAY TWIN-BILL TODAY

Meet Red Sox at Boston; Still Figure on Second Place.

Special to The Washington Post.

BOSTON, Sept. 19.—Manager Walter Johnson and his Nationals arrived here today following a long train ride from Cleveland, and will start their final week's play with a double-header against the Red Sox tomorrow. Bill McAfee and Monte Weaver probably will draw the Washington mound assignments, while there is no telling whom Skipper Marty McManus will call on.

Indications are that the Nationals clinched third-place money in the pennant race when they won the second game of Sunday's double-header in Cleveland, to hold a three and one-half game advantage over the Tribe, and, by the same token, they hardly have a chance to overtake the runner-up Mackmen, who gained half a game on them today and are now four games in front.

Nats Still Battling for Second

The Nats, however, have not given up their second-place fight. Should they clean up in the four games here, they figure they will have a good chance for the Mackmen's toes Wednesday and Thursday will be the league-leading Yankees, who probably will discard the makeshifts line-up they have been using of late and call on their regulars for these contests.

"If we're less than three games behind the Mackmen when we leave here," said Manager Johnson tonight, "we're likely to beat the A's out, for we meet them Friday and Saturday in Philadelphia and Sunday at home, and I've got a hunch that we will 'take' them if it turns out that second place is at stake in the series."

Al Brown Stops Pladner In First-Round Attack

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Al Brown, lanky Panama Negro, who is generally recognized as bantamweight champion of the world, knocked out Emile (Spider) Pladner, of France, in the first round of a fifteen-round championship bout here tonight. Brown weighed 117¾; Pladner, 118.

The 6-foot Negro ended Pladner's championship aspirations with two punches after only 2 minutes 21 seconds of fighting.

They sparred cautiously in midring as the fight opened, but Brown suddenly found an opening and shot home a hard right that sent Pladner down for a count of six. Groggy, he tried to bull his way into close quarters until his head cleared but Brown stabbed him away with a long left. Coolly, the Negro measured his foe with another terrific right and the Frenchman went down for the full count.

Knight Wins One-Sided Battle

State Official Stops Courtney Bout at End of Fifth.

Cowboy's Eye Closed; Tow Gets Decision as Crowd Boos.

By DAVE HERMAN.

Groggy and helpless, his left eye completely closed, George Courtney, the Tulsa, Okla., light-heavyweight, with twelve years of ring warfare behind him, hung on the ropes at Twin City Arena in Laurel last night, while the ghosts of his fighting ancestors swept by him.

His 194th fight had come to a dramatic finish at the end of the fifth round. Battered and bruised, he wheeled around, saw the hand of Joe Knight raised in triumph, and flung himself back on the ropes, weeping like a baby.

"Let me go, let me fight," the Oklahoma cowboy yelled, as his manager and trainer came over to comfort him. "My father and grandfather were fighters and they were never stopped."

Solar Plexus Blow Drops Courtney

Hardly had the fifth started when Knight shot a left to Courtney's solar plexus. George dropped in agony, and the old courage brought him up after the count of eight. When the round was over Fred C. Schanberger, Maryland Boxing Commission chairman, ordered Referee Brockman to stop the bout.

The entire program of 30 rounds was nothing to brag about. Incidentally, there's something "fishy" about the scales in the dressing room. For instance, in the semiwindup of eight rounds they threw big Bob Tow, weighing easily 195 pounds, against Ray Swanson, Knight's partner, who probably didn't weigh over 165. They announced them as 190 and 180. Tow was a head taller than Swanson. Yet the little fellow waged a great fight, won most of them through the sixth, and actually was leading until Tow wore him down with a heavy bombardment in the seventh and eighth. They gave Tow, of Birmingham, Ala., the decision unanimously. What a booing the slim crowd gave the verdict.

Vance No Match For Joe King

Also, Joe King, of Lakeland, Fla., with a tremendous reach and big weight advantage, was given the decision over Walter Kirkwood, batting for Frank Vance. They went four, with King much the better fighter. Sammy Hogan beat Jack Quigley in a four, while Roy Kid Manley, of Little Rock, Ark., gained revenge by winning a slashing four-rounder from Sailor McKenna. Manley worked in place of Arthur DeBeve, the Frenchmen, who said he couldn't understand why he wasn't fighting.

Ruth Bombards Stands In New York Workout

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth, far more robust than during his first workout Saturday, banged a dozen baseballs into the far reaches of the Yankee Stadium right field bleachers today to indicate that he will be as fit as ever for his tenth world series.

Exploitation of Amateur Boxers Denounced by N. B. A. President

BALTIMORE, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Decisive action by the National Boxing Association upon the amateur fight question was urged today by Gen. John J. Clinnin, president of the body, as the opening session of the national convention, which was held on a boat trip down Chesapeake Bay.

"Immature boys are becoming punch-drunk wrecks as a result of exploitation," Gen. Clinnin said. "Our investigation shows mere boys have been matched against much older fighters and within a year or two at best they will be nothing but wrecks."

Mentioning cases of one man managing ten to fifteen boys and fighting them from one to six nights a week, he added, "I request decisive action. I urge the commission to seek the standardization of laws in various States, to clean up the corrupted ring conditions."

The delegates tonight went to the Twin Cities Arena at Laurel, Md., to witness a boxing show.

CHISOX BOW; GROVE WINS 25TH GAME

Macks Score, 9-6, as Grove Tops Major League Hurlers.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Robert Moses Grove was not at his very best today, but he was good enough to account for his twenty-fifth victory of the American League season as Philadelphia defeated the Chicago White Sox, 9 to 6, in the final game of the season at Comiskey Park. Grove is the first major league hurler to win 25 games this season.

The Sox clipped Grove for twelve hits, including three doubles, but only in the fifth inning were they able to do any real damage. The Athletics picked on Phil Gallivan, Bill Chamberlain, Red Faber and Biggs for ten hits, clustering them in the first four innings, during which they scored eight of their nine runs.

The A's started early, combining two walks with Mickey Cochrane's twenty-third home run of the season, and a double by Jimmy Foxx for three runs.

Jolley Red Sox Star As Tigers Bow, 5 to 4

Detroit, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Smead Jolley, whose profession is outfielding, donned the catcher's mask, mitt and chest protector for the Boston Red Sox today and figured prominently in a 5-to-4 victory over the Tigers in the series closed here today. Jolley hit a home run with two men on base in the second inning.

"Babe" Didrikson Out of Golf Meet

Olympic Star to Take Rest; Putting and Iron Play Needs Practice.

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—The golfing ambition of Mildred ("Babe") Didrikson, Dallas' stellar all-'round athlete, will not lead her this year to the women's national championship, despite special dispensations understood to have been made to permit her to compete.

Since her sensational victories in two events at the Los Angeles Olympic games and, prior to that, in the Chicago tryouts where, as a one-woman team, she swept the meet, the Babe has been going at a terrific pace that finally had demanded she slow down. At present Miss Didrikson is taking a brief, delayed vaction before resuming her regular employment as a filing clerk for the company under whose colors she performs.

Consistently more than 200 yards off the tee with her marvelous strength and rhythm, Miss Didrikson finds her scores usually mounting close to 100, sometimes over, because of lack of the same ability with the irons and the putter.

Somerville Avoids Home-Town Fete

U. S. Golf Champ Ignores Mayor's Wires but Celebration Is Planned.

London, Ont., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—C. Ross Somerville, first Canadian ever to win the United States amateur golf championship, was back at home today, even more silent and calm than before he left to win the title at Baltimore last week.

It took a lot of the finest sleuthing in London to find out that he actually was home. Five times Mayor George Hayman had telegraphed "Sandy" at Baltimore asking the time of his arrival home without once getting a reply.

So there was no committee of welcome, no public reception or dinner arranged. Even his mother did not know he was coming.

"I couldn't get any information out of him," she said. "He had his dinner and a cigarette and then went to bed. Perhaps he'll tell me about it later."

The city council went into session tonight to determine the manner of honoring him.

Judge Has Last Say In Baseball Argument

Special to The Washington Post.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept 19.—An argument between Andrew Linnor and Larry Prime as to whether Babe Ruth or Lou Gehrig is the better baseball player was adjourned to the workhouse today by Police Judge Lillian Westropp.

The two men started the argument last night on the sidewalk in front of their home. Linnor stuck up for Babe Ruth and Prime for Gehrig.

They just couldn't seem to get together, so it was decided to call out the fire department and get the firefighters to decide the question.

The firemen couldn't find the blaze and police were summoned to aid in the search for the party who turned in a false alarm.

At the court today the firemen said Ruth, police said Gehrig, and Judge Westropp said 60 days.

CUBS AIMING AT PENNANT TODAY

Return Home to Meet Pirates in Crucial Double-Header.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—What the original baseball writer meant by a "crucial series" opens at Wrigley Field tomorrow before a howling crowd of championship-hungry Cub fans.

Pittsburgh's pursuing Pirates tangle with the Cubs in the first two battles of a four-game series that may end the National League pennant fight in just one inning or send it staggering to the very end of the season.

One victory in tomorrow's double-header will clinch the pennant for the Cubs even if they should lose their other five games while Pittsburgh won all the others left on their schedule.

Sweep for Pirates Would Swetonic, Spencer Enigmas

A clean sweep of the four-game series by the Pirates would make the situation alarming for the Cubs, who own a six-game lead tonight, with as many games to play, over the Pirates, who have four left with the Cubs and four with St. Louis. After the Pirates, the Cubs have a pair with the botheraome Cincinnati Reds at Wrigley Field.

Given a great homecoming ovation today as he led his Cubs home after a successful Eastern invasion Manager Charlie Grimm was confident that it all would be over by tomorrow night.

"We'll clinch the pennant by winning the first game of tomorrow's double-header and then get some well-earned rest," he told the admiring crowd that thronged the railroad station. "I plan to use Guy Bush in the first game and follow with Pat Malone. One of them should be able to do the clinching act and I think Bush will do it, so even Malone can get a rest. We plan to give Cuyler, Stephenson, English, some pitchers and myself a little vacation from baseball as soon as the deed is done."

Alarm Cubs of Cubs

Steve Swetoni, probably the biggest Cub pitching nemesis of the year, and Glen Spencer, another tough gentleman from a Cub angle, were regarded as certain Pirate hurlers for tomorrow's crucial series, which may attact a crowd of 25,000 to 45,000 fans. The Pirates have to win to stay in the race and will shoot the works.

Series Rivals Each Rely on One Rookie

Crosetti and Herman Are "Kid" Players in Infield.

Power Lent by Gehrig Is Advantage of Yankees.

(Herewith is the first of a series of articles comparing the Yankees and Cubs, likely rivals in the world series. Today's article deals with the infields.)

By STUART CAMERON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—Columbia Lou Gehrig, the big German, whose two interests in life are baseball and eating, represents about the only difference to be found between the infields of Chicago's Cubs and the New York Yankees.

Gehrig has been first-basing for New York almost as long as the oldest Yankee fan can remember. His rugged and determined play afield, plus the bat, which for years has made him a major league hitting leader, probably establishes the Yankee infield as the better of the two to see service in the approaching world series.

Gehrig is power. The other infielders are good baseball players.

Grimm Little Better Than .300 Hitter

Gehrig's principal rival is Charley Grimm, the individualistic and popular playing manager of the Cubs. Grimm, because of his fighting qualities, must be ranked as one of the first four first basemen in the game, despite the fact that he is only little more than a .300 hitter.

Each infield boasts one "kid" player. The Yankee youngster is Frank Crosetti, 21. Obtained from San Francisco at the start of the season, Crosetti is expected to play in the series because he is the "least worst" of the shortstops now on the Yankee roster. The other is Lyn Lary. Lary's fault of mixing erratic play with brilliant saves and throws, coupled with a drooping batting average, have forced him to step aside in favor of the Coast boy, also a weak hitter, but a more dependable performer.

Opposed to Crosetti will be one of the game's veterans, Mark Koenig, recently rescued from the minors, who has been hitting above the .350 mark with the Cubs. Koenig well might be the batting star or bust of the coming series. He hit at .500 for the Yanks against Pittsburgh in 1927. One year later he hit only .128.

Herman Youngster on Cub Infield

The Cubs' youngster is Billy Herman, second base. Billy came up from Louisville only a little more than one year ago and has averaged between .315 and .327 since that time. Herman, who plays with an almost studied nonchalance, is a dependable fielder. So is "Pooch 'Em Up" Tony Lazzeri, Herman's immediate rival. Lazzeri's batting, however, has not been so hot. He's flirted with the .300 mark all season and just now is a peg or so below it.

A real old-timer and a veteran will be the rivals at third. Joey Sewell will be the Yankee entry. He played his first series in 1920, three weeks after having joined the Cleveland Club. Sewell batted well under .200 in the 1920 series with Brooklyn and mishandled six chances afield.

Woody English is the Cubs' third baseman. Just 24, he has had enough experience to be rated as a seasoned performer and a reliable one.

GALLANT SIR WINS OPENING GRAW FEATURE BEFORE 10,000

Charity Nets $20,000 on First Day

Favorite Beats Canron 1-2 Length in Stretch Duel.

Lazi Canter Winner of First Race at $25.30 Mutuel.

By WALTER HAIGHT
(Post Staff Correspondent).

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, Sept. 19.—Charity, ideal weather and the return of big time racing to Maryland for the fall season served to lure some 10,000 race fans to this historic track this afternoon, and although favorites took beatings in the first four races, Gallant Sir came out of the West to account for the feature, dubbed the Old Post Road, with John Public making him an odds-on choice. At that, the Norway Stable color bearer had the battle of his young life to defeat little Canron, an 8-to-1 shot, by a half length. Clotho, from the Whitney barn, was third.

Charity will receive in the neighborhood of $20,000.

The feature was strictly a two-horse race. After Canron had delayed the start for some minutes, the W. W. Vaughn filly hopped in front with Gallant Sir, on the side, second. The latter went wide at the clubhouse turn, but swung in to take the lead. Canron stuck right up to his saddle post and they battled that way until the sixteenth from the finish, where Canron came up to even terms only to drift back a bit at the finish.

Hebert Claims Foul in Feature

Jockey Hebert claimed a foul, protesting that Woolf had crowded him to the rail at the stretch turn, but the judges gave the official nod on the order of finish.

Lazi Canter, the property of J. Fred Adams, came up on the outside to defeat the favored Red Run in the opener for 2-year-olds foaled in Maryland. Rock Sun, of the Stonehall-Levering Entry, was third. Red Run and Rock Sun battled it out most of the way until the Adams gelding moved into the battle. For a time it appeared that Imperialist, which closed at 100-1, would take the purse. This one was fourth.

Camp Boss, fresh from successful campaigning in the West, made a show of the field in the second race, coasting home in front of Squeaky and Ima Queen, a pair of long shots. The public went to War Saint in a big way, but he faded out of the picture after making something of a move at the stretch turn.

Sonny Workman, Washington's own rider, scored his first victory of the fall season on Rush Hour in the third. The Labrot colt drew away at the finish to beat Royal Blunder by three lengths with Snaplock a head further away. Peacock Blue, winner of five straight in the West, set the pace to the stretch turn where Rush Hour and Snaplock moved ahead to be followed by Royal Blunder. Cantoria, the favorite, folded after three-eighths.

Big Beau Beaten By Old Master

The fourth straight favorite bit the dust in the Shore Acre when Old Master showed the way home to Big Beau, the chief medium of mutuel play. The margin was five lengths. Sir Kendall, a 70-1 shot, was third. English Knight and Sir Kendall led for most of the way to the stretch turn, but there the real battle began. Polo Bar, backed down from 8-1 to 2-1, finished like an express train, but the rush was only good for fourth place.

Knee High scored a neck victory in the sixth to make the favorites two up for the afternoon.

Traffic Judge ran Society Talk into submission and stayed out on top to beat Zembla and Tarnish in the finale.

Young W. Todd, who shone in Chicago this summer, rode the last two winners.

JOE AND ASBESTOS

(Watch Sunday's Post for New Secret Code) —By Ken Kling

Three wins in three picks yesterday with the opening of Maryland. Old Master, $11.70; Gallant Sir, $3.30, and the code horse paid $6.40. Joe's bank roll went to $158.59, Asbestos' to $22.83. Asbestos bets $1 win and $1 third Jolly Pilot at Havre de Grace; Joe $3 win and $3 third Sefhs Ballot at Lincoln Fields.

Dear Readers—
Aqueduct may have it's lovely willow trees, but you can't coal scenery — and having an eye for business, Joe and Asbestos know that one cannot swell his bankroll on the anaemic prices that the bookies offer around the N. Y. tracks. For this reason the boys are hopping out to Havre de Grace, the scene of Maryland's big fall opening, and will attempt to wrestle a few shekels from the machines—
Here's hoping.— Ken 9-20

RED RUN, steadied for the first three furlongs, disposed of ROCK SUN when straightened into the home stretch, but faltered against the finish. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CAMP BOSS, $7.90, $4.10, $3.50; SQUEAKY, $9.90, $6.30; IMA QUEEN, $16.10.

CAMP BOSS, taken under mild restraint when assuming early command, shook off WAR SAINT when midway of the turn, responded readily to vigorous pressure when reaching the home stretch, and came out slowly nearing the finish. SQUEAKY followed close up in the early stages, made a stout effort when shaken up for the stretch drive, and fought it out willingly. IMA QUEEN, securing racing room on the inside after being outrun for the first half mile, came with good energy at the end. WAR SAINT, given a mild breathing spell after holding a forward position, weakened under a stiff drive through the home stretch. MUD showed a good test.

RUSH HOUR, permitted to go along with the leaders, moved to the front with a rush when straightened into the main stretch, and drew out without pressing the finish. ROYAL BLUNDER, strongly ridden to move into position on the inside after the start, was placed to punishment in the final three furlongs and outstayed SNAPLOCK. OLD MASTER, avoiding crowding going to the first turn, followed close to the pacemakers, went into an easy lead when reaching the home stretch and drew out at will. BIG BEAU, worked his way to the leaders steadily and finished with good courage. GALLANT SIR, on the outside going to the final turn, was forced wide, but having good speed, gained command when reaching the back stretch, was steadied along while resisting CANRON and, vigorously handled in the finish, was just enough. CANRON, a strong factor after losing the lead, held on with rare courage, but appeared to be in tight quarters approaching the finish. Hebert's claim of foul was disallowed.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $700; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 5:06. Off at 5:08½. Winner, O. Two-dollar mutuels paid—KNEEHIGH, $6.00, $3.40, $2.50; FLAMING MAMIE, $4.90, $3.20; SYRIAC, $4.10.

KNEEHIGH, allowed to settle in her best stride and in hand for the first six furlongs, went into a brief drive on the final turn and holding on grimly, gained command, outstayed FLAMING MAMIE. Latter, rated close up, moved up with the winner and continued gamely for the final drive. SYRIAC came to the outside in the final half mile and finished with good energy.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $700; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:35½. Off at 5:37. Winner, R. P. TRAFFIC JUDGE, under restraint while kept close to SOCIETY TALK, assumed command when ready and was easily best. ZEMBLA worked her way up on the outside, responded to pressure, but was unable to threaten the winner. TARNISH worked her way up while saving ground, and was gaining steadily in the final test.

Steel Shares Lead Stocks Into Decline of 1.3 Points

Trading Dull as Sales Reach Low Turnover of 1,262,585 Shares.

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Sogginess of steel issues, notably U. S. Steel preferred which broke 7 points, imposed a drag on the stock market today, and lower quotations were the rule in most directions. Losses averaged into a net decline of 1.3 points.

Trading was the dullest in about two months, only 1,262,585 shares changing hands.

In the absence of fresh developments pertaining to industrial prospects, Wall Street was forced to look back at trade indices covering trends of the past week. Against the favorable implications of the car loadings statement, however, was a report that steel production had eased a trifle. The loss in itself was inconsequential, but it may have suggested to some traders and other holders of steel shares that the anticipated September boom had been sidetracked.

Steel preferred's tumble carried the price to 68, against a recent high of over 90, so that the reaction has been sizeable. Gossip as to the dividend's safety is being revived in Wall street, although the meeting at which action will be taken is still more than a month away. The common dropped 2½ net, while shares of the independents were rather spongy.

American Can and Coca Cola were down a couple of points, while Allied Chemical, Union Carbide and Anaconda gave up around one each. Case, which had rallied more than 2, finished with a loss; American Telephone turned a fair advance into a small decline, and there were fractionally lower final quotations for du Pont, General Motors, General Electric, National Biscuit, Sears Roebuck and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Gains of a point or two by leading rail stocks, made during the forenoon's sluggish advance, melted into recessions of roughly similar extent for such shares as New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Lackawanna.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Trading on the stock exchange opened quietly with good support in investment issues, gold mining shares and oils. Other sections were dull, declining later on disappointing Wall street and Paris news. The close was easy.

Berlin—Prospects that the World Bank would consent to a reduction in the Reichsbank discount rate was a bullish factor on the boerse. The closing was quietly sustained.

Paris—Trading was undecided on the bourse due to poor advices from New York, London and elsewhere. Rentes alone remained generally well sustained in view of the government's overwhelming majority for the conversion plan. The market closed irregular.

Stocks.

Sogginess of Steel preferred sent prices down 1.3 points. A low turnover of 1,262,585 shares was recorded.

Bonds.

Wait-and-see policy held bond trading in check. The average loss was two-tenths of a point. Some rail issues gained.

Curb.

Prices drifted lower in quieter trading. Utilities lost 1 point. Oils held up well. Total sales reached 170,000 shares.

Wheat.

Weakness of other markets reacted on wheat, and prices tumbled. An increase in grain supply also influenced trading. Corn and oats were down. September wheat sold at 49⅛ to 49¼.

Cotton.

An advance of $1.50 per bale was lost in liquidation, but later trading added 6 to 10 points gain. December sold at 6.89. Bombay bought at Liverpool.

National Tea Reports $4,677,734 in Sales

CURB DRIFTS LOWER IN QUIETER TRADING

Utilities Lose Point Net; Oils Hold Firm; Sales, 170,000 Shares.

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—The curb market settled down today to an unusually quiet trading pace, stocks trending lower although their retreat was orderly. Sales approximated 170,000 shares against 210,000 on Friday.

Utilities, after an early upturn, yielded from fractions to more than a point net. Electric Bond & Share common was down 1½, while Cities Service, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and American Superpower eased fractionally. Niagara Hudson Power was an exception, gaining moderately in a fairly active turnover.

Oils held up well, aside from a 2-point drop by Gulf, despite the lowering of gasoline prices in some sections. The Standards were little changed.

In the specialty group, Atlas Corporation was a fairly active feature, gaining a fraction. The company announced after the close of the day's market that it had made an offer to stockholders of the Pick-Barth Corporation whereby they could exchange their securities for shares of Atlas.

Glen Alden Coal, Hiram Walker, Crown Cork "A," Pittsburgh & Lake Erie and Ford of Canada B furnished moderate gains, although turnover was not large.

Investment Bankers Urged To 'Clean House' of Abuses

Chicago, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—A demand that investment bankers "clean house" by systems already used in other fields of banking and credit was made today at the secretary-managers' conference of the National Association of Credit Men.

Henry H. Heimann, of New York, executive secretary of the credit association, outlined a plan which he said the investment bankers could practice. A similar program was put into effect seven years ago by the credit men, he said, and had done much to eliminate unethical practices.

"In 1926, the credit association found credit in America was being abused by fraudulent practices," he said, "and a fund of $3,000,00 was provided from the entire industry to finance an investigating force.

"With Federal cooperation, this plan has resulted in 1,100 convictions on Federal charges.

"The investment banking business likewise suffers from abuses within its ranks. If the investment bankers would set up a self-supporting organization to dig out and prosecute fraudulent practices, it would restore confidence and make unnecessary any increase in Government regulation."

Frisco Receivers Sought in Suit

Stockholders of Railway Charge Mismanagement; Bankers Accused.

St. Louis, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—A stockholders' suit for appointment of a receiver for the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Co., based on charges of mismanagement by the board of directors and conspiracy by which certain bankers and directors profited, was filed today in Federal Court. It is charged the pending reorganization plan is designed to benefit the bankers and certain favored groups of security holders, and would result in still further diluting the equity of owners of the company's stocks.

Two New York bond and banking houses, Speyer & Co., and J. & W. Seligman & Co., named as bankers for the Frisco, as the road is known, are alleged to have profited to the extent of $10,000,000 or more through unwarranted flotation of securities and to the extent of $5,000,000 or more through purchase by the Frisco of 183,333 1-3 shares of common stock of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co., with consequent damage to the Frisco and its stockholders.

The complaining stockholders are Martin C., Ira M., Berry and Herbert C. Ansorage and Hortense Kramer, of New York.

Editors See Gain In Trade Activity

Some Lines Are Moving Slowly in Attaining Upward Trend.

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Business and industrial magazine editors throughout the country, reporting trade trends during the early part of this month to the Associated Business Papers, Inc., observed a slow upward movement in many lines.

It was reported building contracts increased substantially, midsummer advances in cement prices were holding steady, carloadings showed a better than seasonal rise, credit was more readily available for railway improvements and labor troubles showed a tendency to decrease. Pig iron demand and ingot production were found to be rising somewhat slowly, while machinery orders were a trifle ahead of July; oil producers and refiners were slowing down production customary to this period; chemical consumption continued to rise while the country's stocks were declining; the paint trade exhibited improved demand from both industrial and consumer sources; woodworking plants were doing moderately better, but millwork buildings continued low.

The editors especially stressed the improvement in the textile industry. Cotton stocks, it was said, were the lowest on record with unfilled orders the highest since March, 1929; wholesale dry goods buying was found to be heavy, stores apparently stocking against rising commodity prices. Printers reported increasing requests for estimates, particularly in the large Eastern cities. The hotel business showed some improvement and meat packers stated that consumption was maintaining a normal level.

BOND PRICES SLUMP IN IRREGULAR SALES

Wait-and-See Tactics Hold Trading in Check; Loss Is Two-Tenths.

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Prices in the bond market were somewhat mixed today, with most traders and investors maintaining a "wait-and-see" policy.

Some of the low-priced railroad liens displayed mild activity at one time and a few moved up around a point.

Among the carrier loans that advanced were Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s, Illinois Central 4½s, Missouri Pacific 5s and 5½s, Nickel Plate 4½s and Southern Railway 4s. Some of these bonds failed to retain their maximum gains.

The majority of the utilities and industrials showed irregular trend. American & Foreign Power 5s were under moderate pressure, as were U. S Rubber 5s, Goodrich 6½s and Warner Bros. 6s. Communications issues moved uncertainly.

Renewed activity in the South American loan group attracted some attention. The Argentines again advanced a point or more, while bonds of Colombia, Peru, Sao Paulo and Uruguay exhibited quiet strength. The European list was a trifle irregular.

United States Governments held to a steady and rather quiet range.

Karstadt Bond Owners Unite for Protection

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—A protective committee for holders of first mortgage collateral 6 per cent sinking fund bonds of Rudolph Karstadt, Inc., German Department Store Co., has been formed under the chairmanship of Robert O. Haywood, of Dillon, Read & Co., it was announced today.

Flour Prices Steady.

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—It is reported in the trade that flour prices are being maintained at a steady level by both mill agents and jobbers. This is in line with the reported attitude of mills against important concessions under present market conditions.

Chemicals' Price Tone Better.

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Most chemical products continue to exhibit a steady tone, it is reported in trade circles.

Reichsbank Gets Permit To Regulate Bank Rate

Basel, Switzerland, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—The board of directors of the Bank for International Settlements voted today to interpose no objection to a request by the German Reichsbank for suspension of the clause in the Hague plan by which the Reichsbank discount rate was fixed at 5 per cent. This opens the way for a lower rate.

The board renewed for three months from September 5 the World Bank's share of the outstanding Reichsbank credit. The directors also discussed at some length problems of monetary and credit policy in connection with the forthcoming world economic conference.

France to Convert Some of Its Rentes

Embassy Instructs Holders in America on Rights Under New Law.

The French Embassy formally announced yesterday that the French Parliament has voted a law for the conversion of rentes, 5 per cent 1915-1916, 6 per cent 1920, 6 per cent 1927 and 5 per cent 1928; obligations, 6 per cent 1927, and treasury bonds, 7 per cent 1927, issued in francs. This conversion will be effected without any formality.

Holders of French rentes who would not accept the conditions of the conversion and who would like to be reimbursed, are requested to call at the French chancery, 2034 Sixteenth street northwest, not later than next Saturday, to be furnished with all necessary information.

The new rate of the converted rentes will be 4½ per cent, redeemable in 75 years.

COTTON PRICES RISE AFTER HEAVY DROPS

Advance of $1.50 Per Bale Cut to 6 to 10 Points; Bombay Is Buyer.

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Advances of about $1.50 a bale in cotton on tropical storm apprehensions and relatively steady Liverpool cables were checked by renewed hedge selling and liquidation today, but after losing nearly all its gain, the market stiffened up again in the late trading.

December contracts after advancing from 6.78 to 7.15 sold off to 6.79 and closed at 6.89, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 6 to 10 points.

The opening was 5 to 7 points higher in response to the steadiness abroad and reports of better prospects for a settlement of the Lancashire labor disputes.

March Prices Fluctuate.

Later October sold up to 7.00 and March to 7:30 making net gains of 33 to 35 points on active positions, but the market met renewal of Southern or spot house selling at these prices, and reacted to about the low levels of the morning. Fear of an unfavorable weather map tomorrow brought in a renewal of covering in the late trading, however, and the close showed rallies of 10 to 11 points from the lowest.

Liverpool advices said that liquidation had been absorbed by Bombay buying and covering in that market influenced by fear of the tropical storm. There were also reports that Lancashire mills were hopeful of reopening next week as a compromise on the wage disputes was expected and houses with both Liverpool and continental connections were buyers here during the day. Business generally was in fair volume.

Exports today, 32,124, making 855,087 so far this season. Port receipts, 32,048. U. S. port stock, 3,429,251.

Delay Seen in Steel Volume.

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Less emphasis is being placed on the potential early benefits of Reconstruction Finance Corporation construction loans, the opinion now being held that steel for most projects will not be required in important volume for several months to come, according to the Fitch survey.

GRAIN VALUES DROP ON OTHER REACTIONS

Net Losses Up to One Cent Recorded; Corn and Oats in Decline.

Chicago, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Grain prices tumbled late today, affected by weakness of securities, increase of the United States wheat visible supply and persistent huge Canadian receipts.

Winnipeg reported arrivals of 4,330 cars of wheat, against 2,970 a week ago, and only 556 at this time last year, and the Spanish wheat crop was reported 20,000,000 bushels larger than a year ago. In the late selling flurry December and May corn values fell to a new bottom record for the season.

Wheat closed nervous at almost the day's low 5/8 to 1 cent under Saturday's finish; corn, unchanged to 1/2 down; oats, 1/8 to 1/4 off to 1/4 up, and provisions unchanged to 7 cents decline.

Late Brisk Upturn.

Sharp breaks of nearly 2 cents in wheat prices toward the last were preceded by brisk upturns earlier that resulted largely from unfavorable weather in Canada and Argentina. Bulls expected that snow and rain in Canada might slow up threshing, but opinion prevailed subsequently that the movement would not be curtailed to any great degree. Temporarily, however, cotton market strength had a stimulating effect on wheat.

Aggressive selling by houses with Eastern connections and by some Chicago professional traders accompanied the price setbacks in the final 30 minutes. Buying power was not broad enough to digest the offerings. Export business proved disappointing, 500,000 bushels, all Canadian, whereas Canadian farmers marketed 6,637,000 bushels on Saturday. Talk that Nebraska and northwest Kansas acreage would be cut 25 to 50 per cent failed to act as an offset.

Corn and oats receded with wheat. Provisions lacked support.

Commodity Prices In Swing Upward

213 on the List Showed Gains 436 Held as Unchanged.

(Associated Press.)

An upward spurt in the index of wholesale commodity prices, led by the returns on farm products, was reported yesterday in the Labor Department's analysis of August trends. The gain for last month over July, reduced to the weighted index of 784 commodities, amounted to 0.7, going from July's figure of 64.5 to 65.2. The farm products group, however, registered a 2½ per cent gain. A similar boost was recorded by textile products, while both the food group and hides and skins showed a 1½ per cent gain.

Of the total list of commodities analyzed, 213 showed gains for the month and 436 remained stationary, while 135 decreased. Despite the net gain for the month, however, the comparison with August of last year showed a decrease of 9½ per cent. The index figure of 100 represents the average of 1926 prices.

Farm products gaining were barley, corn, rye, wheat, calves, poultry, cotton, eggs, hay and peanuts. Increasing food prices recorded were for butter, cheese, rye and wheat flour, fresh and cured beef and cured pork, veal, coffee, lard, sugar and most canned vegetables. Other commodity classes showing an upward tendency included metals and metal products.

INSURANCE LOAN CUT CALLED UPTURN SIGN

Policy Borrowings Drop 21 Per Cent in August; Repayments Made.

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—One of the signs of improvement in general business is that fewer policyholders of the New York Life Insurance Co. are seeking loans on their policies, it was said today by Thomas A. Buckner, president of the company.

There has been a decrease in the number of applications for policy loans and a substantial decrease in the aggregate amounts of loans applied for, he reported. Measured by the first six months of 1932 the cash outgo for policy loans made by the company decreased during July and August 21 per cent; measured by the peak month during the first half of the year, the cash loans made during July and August show a reduction of 30 per cent in volume. Mr. Buckner also said there had been a "substantial increase" in the number of policy loans repaid in whole or in part.

"The company's liquid cash position is strong—in fact, stronger than ever before in all its 87 years of operation," said Buckner. "Assets have been steadily increased and the cash income has been sufficient at all times to meet all obligations, to make new investments and to have large bank balances on hand. During the first seven months of 1932 the company's new paid for business has averaged just under $2,000,000 for each working day.

"The company has not borrowed from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation nor have we sold any securities for the purpose of raising funds."

Kansas City Southern Railway reports for September, net railway operating income of $80,571, compared with $331,807 last year.

Liggett & Myers Income Expected to Improve

New York, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Dow, Jones & Co. says that the Liggett & Myers company may this year show an improvement in earnings over 1931, when net was equal to $6.87 a share on the combined common and common "B" shares.

BUTT

Hardell Builds Tech Eleven Around Gormely, Star Back

TECH resumed preparations for its opening game yesterday in its own back yard, but not until Hap Hardell had read a twelve-page manuscript setting forth the team's rough spots to be ironed out.

Hardell is not as pessimistic as he has been in previous years, not quite. He lost seven regulars, four of them Post all-high selections, but a husky corps of reserves and new recruits promise to fill the gaps.

Tech's backfield will be built around Johnny Gormely, powerful 6-footer, who was strictly a blocking back last year. Johnny needs plenty of tutoring in the art of carrying the ball, but Hardell believes he will develop into one of the best ground gainers in the high school series.

With Gormely in the back field is Stewart Foley, a half back, whose forte is kicking. Foley boots long, snaky spirals that will play havoc with more than one receiver this season. However, another lad Hardell did not mention, Max Brinkman, was outkicking Foley yesterday and may be of great value to the team.

Capt. Allison Melklejohn, end; Fred Baxter, center; Mourhess, center, and Gremlich, guard, are linemen who look like they have first-team ability.

Tech opens its season against Baltimore City College, at Baltimore, Friday.

Raymond Team Leads For Playground Title

Raymond Playground was leading Garfield, 2 to 1, in matches yesterday, in the play-off for the junior Playground Tennis League championship when darkness halted play.

Garfield's lone victory yesterday came when Brown, after the loss of the first set, nosed out the ace of the Raymond team, Poretsky, 7—9, 6—2, 6—1. Rosenberg, of Raymond, evened up the score by swamping Burke, 6—0, 6—2. Harrad put Raymond out in front by beating Dungan, 6—4, 8—6.

The score was 9—9 in the first set of the Rosenberg-Harrad vs. Burke-Duncan match, when play was called, while J. Burke and Brown, of Garfield, had won the first set, 6—4, from Wilson and Inoff, of Raymond, in the other doubles match.

The two doubles matches will be completed tomorrow afternoon at Chevy Chase Playground. The winning team will meet Burroughs Thursday afternoon for the championship of Section A, the winner of that match meeting Georgetown Friday for the junior championship. Georgetown won Section B.

District Grid Officials Discuss New Rulings

Forty-five District football officials and their guests met last night at the Lee House further to interpret the new rules which will govern football this season.

Points discussed last night had to do with the dead ball rule, which holds that whenever any part of a player other than his hands and elbows touch the ground play must immediately stop. It was ruled that on a place kick, if the player holding the ball kneit on his helmet, thus avoiding touching the ground with his knee, he would be penalized fifteen yards for "unsportsmanlike conduct." However, the meeting went on record to forward the problem to the Eastern Officials Association for an interpretation.

The meeting could not interpret the rule on fouls by the defensive team while a forward pass was in the air and decided to ask the Okerson board for an official judgment.

Hitting The Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

Lucky Strike bowlers took two out of three from King Pin on the Lucky Strike drives last night as the National Capital League started its 1932-33 season. In total pins, only two separated the teams, but the King Pins brought this about by rolling a 695 third game. Campbell had high game, 157, with high set honors going to McPhilomy, 409.

The Jewelers' League opened on the same alleys, with ten teams seeing action. George D. Horning, M. Pirronne and Castleberg's made clean sweeps over Galts, No. 2, Galts, No. 1, and Art Metal, respectively, while Goldsmiths took two from R. Harris and Blustains landed the odd game from Heller Plating.

Broadway Delicatessen was the only team in the King Pin League at King Pin last night to gain a sweep in the opening matches, it downing Shoe Mart. King Pins and Frankies took two from Hechts and Nationals in other matches decided. Alsop, of King Pin, had high game, 129, while McDonald, of Hechts, had the best set total, 342.

The District Bowling League opened for the season last night at Northeast Temple with a resounding upset as Temple, the defending champions, went down before Georgetown Recreation a new team, two games to one.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

DOG fanciers among the Chinese nobility of centuries ago led to the practice of emperors bestowing titles on their favorite pets. In the second century Emperor Ling Ti gave his pet Pekingese the highest literary title in the land. Four centuries later Emperor Kao Wei made his pet dog, Ch'ih Hu—"Red Tiger"—a Chun Chun, a rank comparable to a duke in European nobility.

Ch'ih Hu was given every consideration due a noble of his rank—some even greater. When the emperor went riding the dog rode ahead on a mat placed on the emperor's saddle. The dog also enjoyed an income from his office.

Colors give added realism to strange things and happenings illustrated by John Hix on a full page in The Sunday Post.

BETTER FACILITIES FOR YACHTS URGED; REVENUE DECLINES

District Wharf Committee Asks That More Piers Be Added.

Improved facilities for the use of yachts and small pleasure craft in the Washington Channel were recommended by the District wharf committee in its annual report to the District Commissioners yesterday. Pointing out that "practically every form of outdoor recreation and sport" are encouraged in the Capital, the report stated: "It is believed that the yachtsman and the small boat owner without club affiliations are entitled to better accommodations than now exist."

Large yachts often visit the Washington port only to find unsatisfactory anchorage facilities, the committee points out, adding: "Adequate and convenient provision should be made for these as well as facilities for the storage, repair and servicing of small boats."

Water commerce, however, is on the decline, the report says, chiefly because of the competition of motor trucks. The Baltimore & Virginia Steamboat Co., which operated steamers for many years between Washington and Baltimore, discontinued operation early this year, the committee recalls, and "further curtailment of river traffic may occur."

"Two and not more than three piers would be ample to accommodate steamboat traffic and one pier for general public use on a wharfage basis," the committee holds. "The three piers at the Municipal Fish Market were not designed for heavy loads and should, therefore, not be so used. With the imminent industrial development of Buzzards Point, it is believed that terminal facilities, when required, for heavy and bulky cargoes should be provided along this part of the Anacostia River."

One pier with suitable head house should be provided for the joint use of the Harbor Police and Fireboat Headquarters, the report recommends, and the present concrete pier now used by the Harbor Police, the Workhouse Wharf, the Municipal Fish Market and piers and the Capital Yacht Club property should be retained. The superstructure of the fish market piers requires replacement. The District Morgue should be removed, it says.

The total revenue from wharf rentals, including the fish market and public space on the Virginia approach to the Key Bridge, amounted to $40,902.52, a reduction of $2,402.53 from that of the previous year. The loss resulted from the vacating of several wharfs.

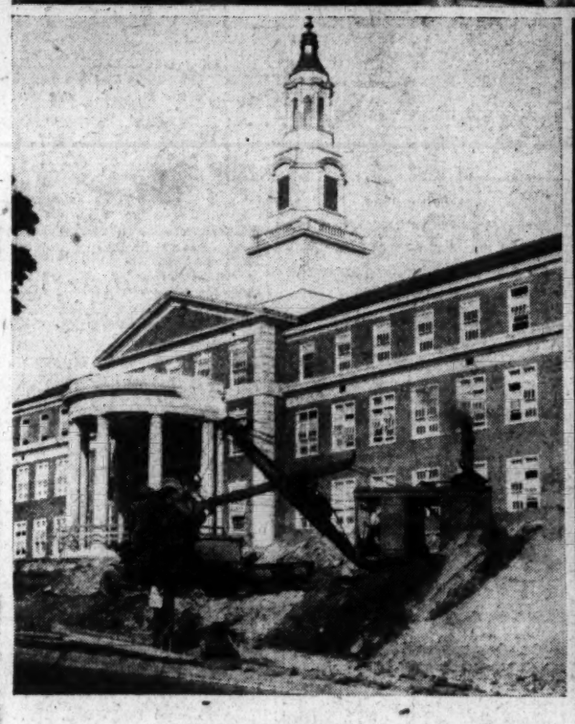
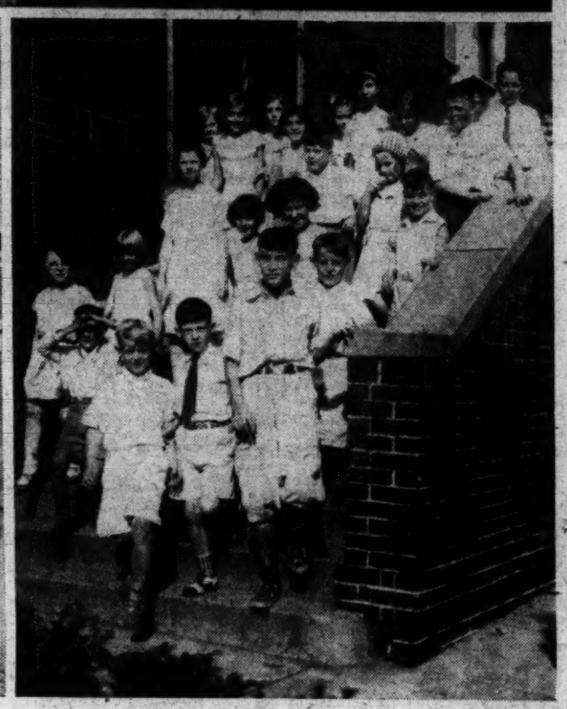
SUMMER OFFICIALLY ENDS FOR CAPITAL CHILDREN





Post Staff Photos.

Yesterday was the first day of school—as a good many youngsters are willing to testify in no uncertain terms. The throng that last night crowded into McKinley High School to register for evening classes are shown in the upper photo. The lower pictures show a hasty bit of landscaping being done at the new Roosevelt High School and a crowd of happy children as they were released from studies at Petworth School yesterday afternoon.

TWO HELD TO JURY IN DEATH OF YOUTH

Witnesses Say One Automobile Failed to Halt at Stop Sign.

A coroner's jury yesterday held two men for action of the grand jury in the accident at Tenth and Maryland avenue southwest, in which 10-year-old Francis Tippett was fatally injured.

The boy was standing on the sidewalk when an automobile operated by James R. Anderson, colored, of 607 Gordon street northeast, swerved to avoid collision with a car operated by Herbert A. Whitney, valuation expert for the Bureau of Internal Revenue, who lives in Alexandria, Va. Anderson's car jumped the curb and overturned, crushing the boy beneath it.

According to testimony offered by witnesses, Whitney's car failed to stop at a stop sign at Maryland avenue. His defense that the sign was located on a lamp post at a height which made it difficult to see from a sedan, was corroborated by several policemen who investigated the accident.

Two hitch hikers who were riding with Anderson, and who were slightly injured in the crash, told the jury that the car operated by Anderson was proceeding at an approximate speed of 35 miles an hour. Whitney's car, it was said, was going at about 15 miles an hour. The boy was the son of Mrs. Harry E. Tippett, of 928 C street southeast. Funeral services will be held at 9:15 a. m. today. Burial will be in the Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Women Seek Brother To Tell Him He's Heir

It's bad enough to be away from home and broke, but it is singularly unfortunate to be away from home broke, while unknowingly in possession of money which would probably keep you from being hungry.

Two Washington women fear their brother may be in just this situation, so they appealed to police last night for aid in locating Alexander Kandel, 23 years old, who left the Capital three years ago for California.

The sisters, Goldie and Toba Kandel, of 521 Peabody street northeast, say an inheritance large enough to start him in business has been left their brother.

Wife of Federal Employe Is Denied Due Promotion

Marriage seems to be a millstone in the Government service. A new cause for bitterness on the part of married persons developed yesterday when it became known that men and women recommended for advancement will not receive it if married to other Government workers.

An actual case was filed at the National Women's Party headquarters. It involved a disabled veteran and his wife, also a veteran of the World War. She was recommended for promotion by her department.

This recommendation was denied by the Civil Service Commission on the ground that she was married to another Government employe. The decision was based upon the portion of the economy act that states, "In the appointment of persons to the classified civil service, preference shall be given to persons other than married persons living with husband and wife."

The affected worker said: "A single person or one married to a person not in the civil service would obtain the promotion, although he or she might not have dependents, while I who have dependents am denied the raise in salary solely because I did not marry outside the Government service."

Mr. Horigan lives at 3202 Klingle road northwest. He is 55 years old and has been employed in the Department of Agriculture for several years. His condition was described as serious.

Mrs. Mary Connell, 61 years old, of 1343 Park road northwest, was part way across the intersection when struck by the machine of Mrs. Viola A. Childs, 25 years old, of 6223 Eighth street northwest, police said. Mrs. Connell was taken to Garfield Hospital.

FIRST DAY PRESAGES RECORD ATTENDANCE AT PUBLIC SCHOOLS

82,318 Students Enrolled, Ranging From 5 Years Old to Grown-Ups.

An army of 82,318 students, ranging from toddlers of 5 to mothers and fathers of grown-up sons and daughters, enrolled in Washington public schools yesterday and last night.

This registration presages a peak enrollment of unprecedented proportions. Of yesterday's enrollment, 76,155 entered the day schools, while 6,163 stormed the doors of the evening schools.

McKinley, the largest evening school, was the scene of a huge congregation of students of all ages and types—young men and women, who were forced to leave school to go to work, others who can not find employment and men and women advanced in years who never finished their educations and are now anxious to do so.

Registration cards were turned in by 4,000 students at the white evening schools and by 2,163 at the colored. This enrollment is expected to be doubled within a few weeks.

Low first-day enrollment at these schools is believed to be due to the fact that they are opening earlier than ever before. This early opening will enable the students to cover the same amount of work as day school pupils.

The opening day enrollment at public schools last year was 68,969. This low enrollment was due to the fact that it was a Jewish holiday. The total figure jumped on the next day to 75,391, a fairer comparison with the opening day enrollment of this year.

Enrollment in the white high schools yesterday aggregated 10,189. Enrollment on the same day last year was 8,916. In the three colored high schools the enrollment was 3,272. Last year's figure was 2,976.

The junior high white schools reported a registration of 9,690. Last year's enrollment was 7,674. Enrollment in the colored junior high schools yesterday was 4,490, and last year, 4,075.

Elementary white schools reported an enrollment of 30,648, and the colored, 16,155. The Wilson Teachers College, for white students, had an enrollment of 447, and the Miner Teachers College, for colored, 367.

The white vocational schools reported an enrollment of 495, and the colored, 402.

Enrollment at the individual white high schools was as follows: Central, 2,586; Eastern, 2,348; McKinley, 2,352; Roosevelt, 1,403, and Western, 1,500.

At the individual colored high schools the enrollment was as follows: Armstrong, 1,272; Cardoza, 568, and Dunbar, 1,434.

No congestion was in evidence at any of the schools, according to officials at the Franklin School. The new Roosevelt School was equipped with seats and desks for all students. Cafeteria and laboratory equipment are yet to arrive. Temporary chairs and tables have been installed in the cafeteria.

Lewis Mudd, 56 years old, of 1006 K street southeast, suffered severe body injuries last night when hit by an automobile near his home. He was taken to Casualty Hospital.

TWO UNDER ARREST AFTER GUN BATTLE

Policemen Met by Bullets; Rum and Equipment Found in Apartment.

While police continue an extensive search for the tenants of a certain first-floor apartment at 2131 O street northwest, two men are being held for investigation following their capture in the building early yesterday, at the climax of a gun battle which aroused residents throughout the neighborhood.

Investigating a report that thieves were breaking into an apartment, Policemen J. L. Pumphrey and R. M. Davis, of the Third Precinct, hurried to the O street address.

Shown the apartment, the policemen attempted to force entrance. They were met by a volley of shots. A call for help brought more police cars and the building was surrounded.

Meanwhile, two men were seen to scurry across an inside court and break into another apartment. Policeman R. S. Montgomery, attached to the Traffic Bureau, blocked the men's escape by forcing the door of their new retreat, and overpowering one of the pair. Montgomery wrested a revolver from his prisoner, and shouted instructions to his fellow officers, police said.

Learning the other man had again fled across the small court, three policemen gave chase. He was captured in the apartment first entered.

In this apartment police found a large quantity of alleged liquor and manufacturing equipment. It is believed the prompt arrival of Pumphrey and Davis interrupted a planned "hijacking" expedition.

The two men arrested said they were Clyde Soper, 27, of 719 D street southeast, and John Williams, 28, of no fixed address. They said they forced entrance to the apartment by the use of a pair of table knives.

Man's Leg Is Broken When Struck by Taxi

Knocked down by a taxicab as he was crossing Third street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest last night, William Smith, 56 years old, of 5322 Illinois avenue northwest, was taken to Emergency Hospital with a fractured right leg.

Police said the taxi was driven by Robert A. Simpson, of 340 F street southwest. He was not held.

Boy Admits Theft Laid To Brother

The judgment of Capt. H. W. Thompson, acting inspector in command of the Detective Bureau, in ordering the release of David B. Grisso, 17, of 204 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, even after he was "positively" identified by Carl W. Burgess as the assailant who robbed him of $70 at 401 K street northeast several weeks ago, was vindicated yesterday when police received word that a brother of Grisso was arrested in Indianapolis, Ind., and had admitted to the holdup.

David Grisso was arrested Wednesday, and in police line-up was identified by Burgess, manager of a chain store at the K street address, as the youth who held him up. Inspector Thompson, saying that he was certain the identified boy was innocent, ordered him released, and sent a lookout for his brother.

Police in Indiana arrested two youths, who gave their names as Jacob Gordon Grisso, 19, of 204 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, and Thomas Sheehan, 22, no address.

In a dispatch received by Washington police yesterday it was said the two admitted robbing the grocery and six other stores here, as well as two stores in other cities.

JUSTICE HITZ HOME IS ROBBED OF GEMS; THEFTS ON INCREASE

Maid Going to Prepare House for Return of Official Finds It Ransacked.

Fifteen housebreakings were reported to police yesterday, one of which included the residence of Associate Justice William Hitz, of the District Supreme Court, at 3124 Woodley road northwest. The jurist's home was ransacked and a small amount of jewelry stolen.

A sharp increase in homes broken into during the last two days was indicated.

Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, who instituted the statistical bureau in the Police Department, said yesterday that an increase of housebreaking during this month has been noted and that captains of precincts where the robberies had occurred had been informed of the rise. Added precautions against house thieves had been taken, he said.

Charts kept since the bureau was inaugurated show the sections of the city where the most crimes are reported, and the police commander in that section is asked to submit a report to Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, Inspector Edwards said.

The robbery at the home of Justice Hitz was discovered by a maid, who went there to prepare the house for occupation by Justice Hitz, who is expected to return within the next two weeks from a three months' vacation in Maine.

Thieves gained entrance to the home by cutting a screen and forcing the basement window. The premises were found ransacked and the jewelry stolen.

A thief who entered nine homes in the Eighth Police Precinct during the last week by using a jimmy is being sought. The methods used in each case, it was declared, indicate that one person was responsible for the robberies.

G. P. O. DEPOSITORS IN SUSPENDED BANK TOLD ASSETS GROW

North Capitol Savings May Secure Harvard Hall Apartment Rents.

Approximately 1,800 employes of the Government Printing Office who are depositors in the North Capitol Savings Bank, closed July 14 by governmental order, were heartened yesterday when John S. Bryan, Federal receiver for the bank, announced imminent conclusion of negotiations whereby rentals from Harvard Hall, large apartment building at 1650 Harvard street northwest, may be secured to swell the assets of the bank for the benefit of the depositors.

The bank owned the stock of a company which owned Harvard Hall and the Valley Vista, another large apartment at 2032 Belmont road northwest, but it was impossible to save the latter strucutre from foreclosure sale in August. Mr. Bryan made his announcement at a meeting held in Harding Hall of the Government Printing Office Building and called by the contact committee acting between the executive committee of Government Printing Office depositors and himself. More than 200 G. P. O. employes attended the meeting.

Explaining the long and involved process of a bank receivership, he recommended patience on the part of the depositors; assured them of the safety of their credentials, duplicates of which are guarded by the Treasury Department, in case of fire; and urged the filing of claims by all depositors before November 25, legal time limit. He warned them to pay no attention to rumors regarding the amount of the first dividend, saying it would depend upon the amount collected on the bank's assets at the time it was paid, and that no one could tell what this would be at the present time.

Mr. Bryan said that there were approximately 15,000 depositors with North Capitol Savings Bank when it closed, and of these approximately 1,800 were employes of the Government Printing Office, approximately 1,000 of the Postoffice Department, and approximately 1,000 of the Union Terminal.

Jewelry valued at $1,800 was stolen from the apartment of Miss Jane Enke, 2000 Sixteenth street northwest, police were told last night.

Man Saved From Canal; Suicide Try Is Indicated

A man, who said he is John E. Bean, 75 years old, of 3536 T street northwest, was rescued from the C. & O. Canal yesterday afternoon, after he had hung his coat and vest on a tree and waded into water over his head.

James Noke, of 3807 M street northwest, and Daniel Powell, of 4219 Canal road northwest, who saw Bean struggling in the water, pulled him to shore. Police said they found a note left on the bank by Bean. It indicated a suicide attempt, they said. The man is in an undetermined condition at Emergency Hospital.
